[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHATTANOOGA (Tenn.) Sept. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Twenty thousand Grand Army of the Republic veterans will bivouac under canvas tents in the heart of the old Confederacy by tomorrow evening. Today sixty special and regular trains poured veterans into this city, which is a mass of flags and bunting lights. In camp and hotel corridors the incidents of fifty years ago are revived and the battle above Lookout Mountain is fought over again by the Blue and the Gray, but as friends this time, and in memory only. This is the first Grand Army encampment held so far South.

The contest for the office of commander-in-chief is animated and forty headquarters have been opened in the hotels by friends of the leading candidates. Commander-in-Chief Lucius Fairchild has opened headquarters, and the Sons of Veterans and Women's Relief Corps are well represented.

Message Is Sent Ten Thousand Miles by High-Power Station.

[By Cable and Direct Wire to The Times.]

SYDNEY, Sept. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A wireless communication was sent over 10,000 miles last week by means of the flagship Australia, which is traveling from Durban to Albany, Queensland. A message from the Governor of New Zealand to Lord Gladstone at Pretoria was sent from Washington to the high-power station at Sydney, thence to Perth and thence via the Australia in mid-ocean to Cape Town and Durban.

PUTS HIS TRUST IN TAMMANY.

Gov. Sulzer Declares He Will Be Acquitted Expecting the Democratic Legislators to Be Just.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ALBANY (N. Y.) Sept. 14.—"I'm going to be acquitted," said Gov. William Sulzer tonight at a conference with ex-Judge D-Cady Herrick of his counsel, concerning the impeachment trial, which will commence Thursday before the State Senate and the Court of Appeals, sitting as a court of impeachment.

His statement follows:

"I am going to be acquitted. I will have a fair trial. I have said some hard things about some of the Senators and they have said some hard things about me; but this is a trial, not a political fight. They are both judges and jurors and I believe most of them are large enough and honest enough to rise above any personal feeling they may entertain toward me because of what I have said about them, and do me justice, and that is all I want."

ARCHBISHOP DENOUNCES FAKE.

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Sept. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Archbishop Quigley of the Catholic diocese of this city created a sensation today when he had a letter read in every Catholic pulpit of Chicago denouncing as a fake a newspaper story purporting to be based on a letter from him in which he is quoted as denouncing the tango and similar dances in scathing terms.

Seas Sweep Army Transport.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Sept. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Escaping from a cyclonic storm, during which the vessel was badly battered and the passengers donned life preservers to be ready for any emergency, the United States army transport Logan, arrived today.

Capt. George H. Pierce, who for the last year has been master of the transport, died on the Logan. He was put aboard the vessel at Nagasaki, but soon after died of apoplexy.

Passengers on the troop ship give great credit to Capt. Williams and the officers of the vessel for the manner in which they handled the big craft during the cyclone. It was on the evening of September 3 that the storm first broke over the ship. Three hours later the seas began sweeping the decks. The cabins on the starboard side of the vessel were swept time after time by the seas, and the occupants, including women and little children, began taking refuge in companionways.

The mizzen truck, that supports the aft ends of the aerials for the wireless equipment, was snapped off and all the equipment mixed up. Seas threw their pockets, putting the [illegible] out of business and leaving the ship helpless.

The seas swept the bridge of the Logan. Officers were lashed to their posts of duty. Lying in trough of the sea, the vessel rolled like a cork. Oil in tremendous quantities was thrown over. This lessened the terrific rolling.

In the saloons little children, sons and daughters of army and navy officers, clung sobbing to their fathers and mothers. Many of the women were praying, while husbands and fathers, officers in the service, were doing everything in their power to comfort their families.

After six hours the ship escaped from the cyclone, but it was not for two hours more that the vessel resumed her course.

When Honolulu was reached many first cabin passengers were obliged to go ashore and secure clothing to replace that ruined by the water.

The Logan had 133 first cabin passengers and seventy-four in the second cabin. Among the Philippine officials were Elmer A. Bickman, Governor of the Benguet Province, and W. M. Gregey, Provincial Treasurer.

WEALTHY DRUGGIST DIES.

Part Proprietor of Big Establishment at San Jose Succumbs After Long Illness.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN JOSE, Sept. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] J. F. Stephenson, part proprietor of one of the largest drug businesses in this city and before his temporary retirement several years ago, owner of a string of drug stores, died here today aged 44 years. Stephenson was born at Hacienda in this county.

For several years he has been a leading figure in the affairs of the California Druggists' Association, and was also well known in fraternal circles, being prominent in several orders, including the Elks, under whose auspices the funeral services will be held tomorrow at the family home, No. 406 South Third street. Religious services will be conducted at St. Joseph's Church.

Stephenson was ill for two years with a complication of diseases and his death has not been unexpected for several days.

Oh, See the Countess!

ROYAL VISITOR'S TRUNKS CROWD OUT QUEEN MARY.

[BY CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Sept. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] [illegible] the Countess of Torby, sister-in-law of the Czar of Russia, has arrived for a visit to Queen Mary and to stay for the Connaught wedding in October. She brought with her 104 dresses and all the accessories to the consternation of thrifty Queen Mary. Balmoral lacks accommodations for so extensive a wardrobe. Queen Mary had to give up part of her private apartments, packing most of her wardrobe into trunks, having for herself only four rooms available.

Countess Torby, who is the wife of Grand Duke Michael of Russia, is said to be the most extravagant dresser among European royalty.

GOLDFIELD ELKS HELP HOMELESS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

GOLDFIELD (Nev.) Sept. 14.—The hotels of Goldfield served dinner tonight by candle light. In the midst of the meal the electric lights unexpectedly were turned on. The diners stood up and cheered as orchestras played lively tunes.

It was the beginning of the second night of Goldfield's darkness. The illuminated lights marked the end of the floods which resulted from yesterday's cloudburst.

A bright sun today exposed the wrecks of about fifty cabins and cottages. The total property loss remained estimated at $100,000. About $30,000 was lost by damage to flooded mines and the loss of power during thirty hours.

As far as searchers could learn no more were killed than the two women whose bodies were found yesterday. They were Mrs. R. C. Degarmo and Mrs. Eulalia Robilious.

The Elks lodge and the Women's Club cared for the homeless during the night. Flooded homes were put in habitable shape when the waters receded today. By tomorrow trains are promised with the double burden of passengers and mail.

Big Turnout.

SHRINERS' DAY AT STATE FAIR.

ISLAM TEMPLE BAND WINS IN MUSICAL CONTEST.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 14.—Today was Shriners' day at the State Fair and 13,000 admission tickets were sold, a record for Sunday attendance. The big attraction of the afternoon was the band contest. It was won by the Islam band of San Francisco with a mark of 93 3-3 per cent. The Fifth Regimental band of San Francisco was scored high with a marking of 87 per cent. The San Francisco concert band and the Italian band of San Francisco were the other organizations to compete in class A event. A prize of $500 went to the winning musicians.

The Oakland Boys' Club band won a prize of $400 in the class B competition. The University of California band opposed it. The percentage of the winning organization was 82 as compared with 68 for the varsity.

In class C the Grass Valley concert band took the honors and a $400 prize. The Reedley, Nevada City and Jackson bands were the others competing.

LANE TO RESUME HIS TRIP.

Secretary of Interior So Much Improved He Will Take Up His Itinerary Through Nevada.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

OAKLAND (Cal.) Sept. 14.—The condition of Secretary of the Interior Franklin K. Lane was so much improved today that the Cabinet official accepted a dinner invitation today at the home of Assistant Secretary of the Interior Adolph Miller, in this city. It was announced that should the secretary's condition continue to improve as it has during the past two or three days, he will resume his interrupted journey eastward, within a week or ten days.

Secretary Lane purposes to swing through Nevada, where he will look into the Truckee-Carson reclamation project, going thence to Denver, where the proposition of converting Estes Park into a national reserve will be investigated.

WILL HOLD SUNDAY COURT.

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Sept. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Police Judge Mahoney for the second time has released on their honor the prisoners arrested on Saturday to appear before him on Monday, as he regards the cells at the station house entirely unfit for human beings to occupy over Sunday. In the future, however, Judge Mahoney will sit at 6 a.m. every Sunday and will see to it that cells of youths and first offenders are supplied with books and magazines.

A SQUITH SHOT AFTER HIKE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BOSTON, Sept. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Disavowal of any act of abuse toward the horse "Asquith," which drew the suffragist hikers' hurdy-gurdy from New York to Boston, has been made by Miss Elizabeth Freeman. Miss Freeman said when she bought the horse in New York, he was pronounced sound in wind and limb by a veterinarian. She says "Asquith" was walked every step of the way from New York to Boston. Agent Spaine of the Massachusetts Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, who shot the horse, says the animal was extremely old, was driven from New York to Massachusetts in violation of law, and suffered from "side bone" of both fore feet, an ulcerated left hind leg, a bad cough, was somewhat windy, had an elevation of temperature and must have been doped when bought in New York.

CRUSHING DEFEAT FOR REBELS.

Three-Day Battle at Topolobampo Said to Have Broken Back of Revolution in Sonora.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 14.—Weird details of a three-day battle at Topolobampo, Sonora, are given in correspondence published here. The correspondent asserts the defeat of the rebels "broke the back" of the revolution in Sonora, and was brought about when, August 28, the Mexican cruiser Tampico brought 400 troops from Masatlan, and put them ashore. When the Federals were driven back, the rebel ranks were raked with machine guns on the warship and in the end the rebels took to their heels.

"After the retreat," says the correspondent, "the town was sacked by thirty women who accompanied the Federals on the Tampico."

The bodies of the rebels, according to the story, were chucked into the water, where they bobbed about amid carcasses of dead horses. Hundreds of women and children, munching corn husks and drinking ditch water are described as a background to the scene.

The Federals' total loss, including desertions, is placed at 135; that of the rebels at 100. Col. Theodore Valdivieso, commanding the landing party, was shot through both arms and was taken to Masatlan on the Norwegian steamer Jason.

Commander Bradshaw, Lieut. Hagen and Dr. Hale of the United States steamship Yorktown, returning to town from a visit to the interior on a train, were caught in a cross fire, but were unhurt.

Previous advices from Topolobampo ascribed a decisive victory to the rebels.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

STOCKTON, Sept. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A deed conveying over 1400 acres of land from Henry Rumenapf and others to the Security Land Company of Bakersfield has been recorded here. The selling price was $100,000. The land lies about twelve miles southeast of Stockton along the banks of French Camp Creek and is known as the Gawnee ranch. This land was bought in early days by a man by the name of Gawnee and was farmed by him for many years. This land will later be subdivided into small tracts. Roads will be built through the tract, pumping plants installed and other improvements together with a demonstration farm, will be made.

SEEK ALCO AUTOISTS.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 14.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] The slayer of Mrs. Grace Dooley, who met death under automobile wheels a week ago on the Great Highway, an ocean beach thoroughfare, is still uncaught, but suspicion fastened yesterday upon a maroon-colored Alco car carrying a Los Angeles pennant, and the scope of the search has been extended to the southern metropolis. A car of the description stated was seen near the scene of the tragedy shortly before it occurred. The Los Angeles police have been notified.

American Refugees Reported to Be Captives of Roving Bands of Rebels.

Magonistas Plot Counter Revolution to Establish Socialist Republic.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CARRIZO SPRINGS (Tex.) Sept. 14.—Old settlers and border fighters are reported to be organizing quietly to lynch the band of Mexican filibusters in jail here as soon as they are turned over to the Texas officers by the military authorities. It is feared that this will lead to reprisals in Mexico and precipitate a crisis in Mexican affairs. The feeling against the filibusters, who are accused of murdering Deputy Sheriff Ortiz, is intense.

Roving rebel bands in Morelos and Durango are reported to have captured American refugees. The Mexican government fears to send troops against the rebels who are holding the Americans as hostages, lest the Americans be harmed and intervention become inevitable.

SOCIALISTS PLAN A NEW REPUBLIC.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

EAGLE PASS (Tex.) Sept. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Through confessions made by several members of the band of Mexican filibusters surrendered yesterday after a battle with American cavalrymen, the military authorities in control of the border have obtained the first inkling of a widespread movement to proclaim a new revolution in favor of the Flores Magon branch of Socialists who have their headquarters in Los Angeles.

Upon being brought to Carrizo Springs last night, some of the prisoners expressed a desire to obtain immunity by exposing the full details of the plot to establish a Socialistic republic but the officers declined to entertain their propositions and the entire party was locked up in the County Jail.

A few hours later murmurings of mob violence became so insistent that Col. Sibley at Eagle Pass was required to send additional troops to guard the prisoners.

LEADER A SOCIALIST.

The American leader of the filibusters asserted that his name is Barney Cline, and that he has been active in Socialistic propaganda both at Los Angeles and El Paso. He declined to make a statement until after he had been given an opportunity to consult counsel. Meanwhile, the question of jurisdiction arose and although Lieut. Allen, whose troops captured the filibusters, wanted to take the prisoners to Eagle Pass and turn them over to his superior officers, the civil authorities of Dimmit county demurred and asserted that they would hold the men on warrants charging wilful murder.

The cavalry officer subsequently consented to the imprisonment of the men in the County Jail until the question of jurisdiction had been settled.

The Mexicans and their American captain were immediately declared incommunicado and no one was allowed to approach the jail.

LYNCHING THREATENED.

Upon learning that the prisoners were Socialists, the old settlers made open threats that the men would be taken from jail and lynched as soon as the troops left town. Should it be decided to try the men in the county court, Col. Sibley answered that he would withdraw his soldiers tomorrow morning after officially surrendering them to the civil authorities.

BRIDE KEEPS A DIARY ANTICIPATING DIVORCE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ST. LOUIS (Mo.) Sept. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mrs. Charles Hufschmidt, who was formerly Miss Margaret Ryan, and for several years was cashier at Faust's and the Planters' and Marquette hotels, said today that three weeks after her marriage, in anticipation of being compelled to sue for divorce, she began keeping a diary to be used as evidence against her husband. He is a soda water manufacturer in East St. Louis. Her divorce petition has been filed.

The first entry in the diary is dated February 24 of this year, and accuses her husband as nagging and fault-finding just a few weeks after the marriage. Later entries relate that he stayed out late at night without giving excuses, and on June 30 he seized from the table a steak she had cooked, swung it over his head and threw it at her. She dodged and the mark where the steak struck is still on wall.

On August 1, the diary notes, Hufschmidt bought himself a bed for $19.50 for his own use. August 20, 23 and 24 are named as dates on which he is alleged to have struck her.

On August 31, another entry states a friend telephoned Mrs. Hufschmidt that her husband was at dinner with another woman at a South St. Louis summer garden. He told her, she says, he was to meet some bottle manufacturers in St. Louis.

With another woman and two men, Mrs. Hufschmidt went to the summer garden and there she says she saw her husband at a table with a woman. She went to the Magnolia Police Station and asked for his arrest, but it was refused. Hufschmidt learned she was in the garden, she relates, and hid in a building until she left.

Undercurrent.

HUERTA MAY GET SUPPORT OF THE CATHOLIC PARTY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 14.—It is rumored that the representatives of the Catholic party, which failed to nominate a Presidential candidate, will throw their support to Gen. Huerta.

Col. David de la Fuente, Provisional Minister of Communications, presented his resignation to the President today. It is understood that it will be accepted.

Interest in possible resumption of negotiations with the United States is overshadowed by the opening of Congress tomorrow and the delivery of Provisional President Huerta's message.

The message is expected to review recent developments in the relations between Mexico and the United States and to reveal intimately the attitude of the administration.

That there will be two well-organized wings on the floor of the Chamber of Deputies, whose chief object will be to oppose the influence of the Catholic party, is common report in political circles. These factions will be headed by Jorge Vera Estanol, formerly Minister of Public Instruction and Rodolfo Reyes, who has just retired from the Ministry of Justice. Members of the parties influential in the previous session—the reform and liberal independents—probably will unite with one or the other of these leaders.

Emergency.

ONE HUNDRED AMERICANS FALL INTO REBEL HANDS.

Women and Children Refugees from Torreon Among the Captives—United States Embassy Appeals to the Mexican Authorities to Act Promptly—Villa's Chief of Staff Taken Prisoner by Huerta's Forces.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 14.—One hundred Americans, including a number of women and children refugees from Torreon, are reported to have fallen into the hands of rebels while proceeding overland to Saltillo. The authorities at Saltillo decline to take the responsibility of sending a force to their rescue, fearing, they say, that the rebels might commit atrocities upon the refugees, which possibly otherwise would be avoided.

The report comes from an official source at Saltillo, but has not been confirmed. The American Embassy has been advised and has called upon the Mexican forces to investigate the matter and do whatever is possible to relieve the Americans, should the report prove true.

Senor Gamboa, the foreign Minister, has had no advices further than the communication to the Embassy. He expressed regret but added that it was no more than might be expected as the result of the "neutrality policy" of the United States, which had hampered the administration in proceeding with a strong hand against rebels and bandits.

Gen. Trucy Aubert, a Federal commander, with 1600 men, who is proceeding from the north to the relief of Torreon, passed Saltillo yesterday. He is traveling over approximately the same route as the Americans and it is regarded as possible that the rebels will disappear before him in advance. He is, however, making slow progress. Meantime the fate of the refugees remains in doubt.

The Americans are headed by Deputy Consul Gen. J. C. Allen of Monterey, who went to Torreon to notify American residents there of President Wilson's warning. They left Torreon on September 1, traveling by the most available conveyances across the plains in the direction of Saltillo, there having been no railroad communication for many weeks. They were passed on the way by J. R. Everett of Palestine, Tex., near Parras, about half-way to Saltillo or approximately eighty miles from Torreon. Everett reached Saltillo September 1 and reported that the caravan was making slow headway owing to the bad roads and poor equipment.

The Vice-Consul at Saltillo, John R. Silliman, telegraphed to the embassy tonight that H. Degener and another American had left Saltillo at 7 o'clock in the morning on horseback to try to learn the fate of the American refugees.

Another American who arrived at Saltillo from Torreon today reported that the caravan left Parras on September 11, up to which time it had met with no misadventures.

VILLA'S REBELS BITE THE DUST.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

EL PASO (Tex.) Sept. 14.—Three hundred rebels of Francisco Villa's command were killed in a fight Friday with the Federal forces of Gen. Marcelo Caraveo and Antonio Rojas at Bustillos, Chihuahua, according to official Federal messages received today at Juarez from Gen. Mercado of Chihuahua. Among the prisoners were Col. Fortirio Talamantes, Villa's chief of staff and 100 wounded rebels. The buildings of the Bustillos ranch, which belongs to Alberto Madero, an uncle of the late President of Mexico, were set on fire by the Federal shells and destroyed.

Gen. Jose Ynes Salazar with 400 Federal troops left Juarez today on a special train to intercept Villa and the remnants of his force who are marching towards the border. Villa is reported to have already passed through Madera headed northward and to be nearing Casas Grandes.

AUBERT MARCHES TO AID TORREON.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MEXICO CITY (Mex.) Sept. 14.—Gen. Trucy Aubert and Col. Guasque, with 2000 men and artillery, are moving westward from Saltillo to relieve Torreon. They are traveling in military trains, preceded by work trains repairing the railroads.

Federals under Alberto Guajardo, a reformed revolutionist, are reported to have arrived at Monclova from Nuevo Laredo, after having been victorious over six different bands of Carranza adherents. Government officials consider that the backbone of the revolution in Coahuila has been broken.

Concepcion del Oro, in Zacatecas, where some Americans have been marooned for several months, is about to be relieved by Gen. Pena, who is proceeding southward from Saltillo. Aguascalientes, which has been reported threatened by rebels, is said to be sufficiently garrisoned to ensure its safety.

Arrivals here confirm the growth of the rebel movement in Sinaloa, where Mariano Arrieta, with several hundred men from Durango, is preparing for an attack on Culiacan, capital of the State.

BUFFALO CARRIES MANY REFUGEES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN DIEGO, Sept. 14.—A radiogram received here tonight from Capt. Blamer of the auxiliary cruiser Buffalo, now on her way up the coast from Mexican ports, says that the vessel will arrive at San Diego next Tuesday and that she is bringing 110 refugees, most of them from Guaymas and Empalme.

The Bedford will leave Guaymas for the North tomorrow. She, too, will bring refugees, but their number is not given in tonight's message.

FORTY-THREE REBEL CHIEFS.

Men Under Arms Against the Mexican Government Are Said to Number Less Than Six Thousand.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN LUIS POTOSI (Mex.) Sept. 14.—A list of rebel and bandit chiefs in this and border States, compiled from reliable sources, shows a total of forty-three at the head of bands ranging from thirty to 600 men each. Data gathered from ranch owners, refugees, Federal officers, railroad men and residents of the towns raided show an aggregate of 5600 men under arms against the government.

The largest group, numbering 600 and commanded by Raoul Madero, brother of the late President, is near Herraduria, 100 miles to the northwest. Other bands, of 400 or 500 each, under Ernesto Santescoy, Alberto Torres and Jose Cabo, are operating in the north, east and south of the State. The remainder are widely scattered over San Luis Potosi and the neighboring States of Nuevo Leon, Tamaulipas, Queretaro and Zacatecas.

Two of the most daring rebel leaders, Candido Navarro and Pedro Santos, were killed recently, but the others are striving for the notoriety which these had achieved. More than twenty-two towns have been raided in the last few months, most of which are in possession of rebels or are visited at will. The three larger groups have six machine guns, but the smaller ones are not always well equipped, even with rifles and are usually short of ammunition.

The smelters at Matehuala, Wadley and San Luis Potosi, the rubber manufactory at Cedral and the salt works at Salinas, as well as many other industries have closed down. The mails arrive from one to three weeks late.

MISSIONARIES ARE REFUGEES.

Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and Latter Day Saints Close Down Institutions and Churches.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

GALVESTON, Sept. 14.—A dozen missionaries were among the American refugees who landed here yesterday from the steamer Mexicano. The Rev. Joseph Tucker of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, said:

"All our institutions are closed and missionaries and teachers have started home as a result of notification from our church."

"HORRORS!" SAYS PRINCE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 14.—Prince Albert of Monaco, who derives an income of $500,000 a year from the roulette and trente et une tables at Monte Carlo, yesterday was shocked at dice games played on cigar counters here. The Prince, who is on his way West on a big game-shooting trip, said that Americans gamble too much.

"Those little dice games take money away from the homes where it is needed," he said. "I think the percentage is too much in favor of the house in these dice games. I know the game and I don't believe in it.

"I am not a gambler. I just watched this game in a hotel in New York. I don't gamble."

EVERY DOLLAR SPENT

for advertising should, in addition to purchasing a certain amount of general publicity, yield a reasonable per cent. of profit on the investment.

Newspaper circulation without definite value means nothing. To an advertiser one reader who has purchasing power is worth a multiplicity of those without means with which to buy advertised articles.

Many years of undisputed leadership on the Pacific Coast in all the features that go to make up a great modern, metropolitan daily newspaper has enabled The Times to build up a stable, permanent, far-reaching circulation that is much larger and of infinitely better quality than that of any of its local contemporaries.

The Times does not issue a Sunday paper Saturday night, send incomplete editions to out-of-town points, misbrand its editions or resort to any other subterfuge to deceive its advertising patrons, or make its circulation appear to be larger than it actually is.

Every claim made regarding The Times circulation superiority will stand the most rigid investigation; and that its advertising columns appeal directly to buying public, and lessen the cost of selling goods, is indicated by the fact that this paper regularly prints more advertising than any other newspaper in the world.

CARRANZA IS IN SONORA TO MEET REBEL LEADERS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NOGALES (Ariz.) Sept. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Venustiano Carranza, chief of the so-called Constitutionalists, who has been reported dead, arrived in Navajoa, Sonora, at 5 o'clock last evening, and today is en route to Hermosillo, where he will arrive tomorrow and will confer with rebel leaders from Sinaloa, Sonora, and Chihuahua and also to straighten out the Sonora governorship muddle. Maytorena resumed the rebel governorship until September 16, when Carranza was to name a military dictator to replace the present rebel Governor and State Congress. Whether Maytorena will be reappointed or one of the other candidates named is not known. Among those prominently mentioned for the position are former Acting Governor Y. La Pesqueira, Gen. Alvaro Obregon, Gen. Juan Cabral and Ygnacio Bonillas, rebel prefect at Cananea. Six rooms in the Hotel Escobosa, in Nogales, Sonora, have been reserved for Carranza and his party who will arrive after September 16.

The rebels attacked the Federal advance this morning in order to prevent the Federals from intercepting Carranza and the 200 men with him.

Doctors Say Inventor Must Have a Vacation—Doesn't Take Orders Kindly.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ORANGE (N. J.) Sept. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Dr. John Hammond Bradshaw has ordered Edison, inventor, to take a much-needed rest of at least a week at his home in Llewellyn Park. Edison, who for years has asserted that he was able to get along with less rest than almost any other mortal, doesn't take orders kindly, but has been persuaded by his family to obey. Edison developed a cold which later became complicated with indigestion after he returned from a motor trip through New England. "Mr. Edison has been working too hard and he must have a rest," said Dr. Bradshaw. "If he does as I tell him he will be back at work when time comes as sound as ever and better able to do a hard day's work."

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SPOKANE (Wash.) Sept. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Under the successful promotion management of Velney D. Williamson of this city, the London-Arizona Consolidated Copper Company has been organized under the laws of Maine with a capitalization of 2,400,000 shares, par value $5 each, or a total of $12,000,000.

Associated with Mr. Williamson in the directorate of the new consolidated company are John A. Finch of this city, Robert Sweeny, son of Charles Sweeny, formerly of this city, and many prominent California and eastern capitalists.

Mr. Williamson has just returned to Spokane from Los Angeles, where the deal was closed last week, the culmination of eight months' work by the Spokane mining man.

"The combined capital of the outside companies taken into the consolidation was about $30,000,000," said Mr. Williamson yesterday.

"I think the new company will be one of the biggest copper producers in Arizona. The ore, running from 2 to 11 per cent. copper, with gold and silver values, is self-fluxing and can be run right through the smelter. One of the best smelters is almost at the boundary line of our property."

The Consolidated property comprises 2157 acres of highly mineralized and developed copper ground lying about five miles north of Winkelman, Ariz.

"We shall install a lot of heavy machinery and begin enlarging the shafts so that we shall have two triple compartment shafts and one double compartment."

Mr. Williamson, who is in complete charge of the property, will leave in fifteen days for Arizona

COUNTRY PEOPLE CROWD IN TO SEE THE FUGITIVE.

Sheriff Prevents Him from Going to Church on Ground that Town Is Sufficiently Excited Already—Case Comes Up Tomorrow in Federal Court.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

COLEBROOK (N. H.) Sept. 14.—Harry K. Thaw spent a quiet Sunday here, his fifth away from Matteawan. He did not even go out for a walk. He expressed a desire to attend the Methodist church, but the Sheriff said that he (the Sheriff) had not been going to church much of late and feared if he went today it might establish a precedent under which his wife would compel him to attend regularly thereafter.

The Sheriff said later that his real reason for not taking Thaw out was that Colebrook had been upset enough already over the fugitive.

The Monadnock house, where Thaw is held, was crowded with country folk throughout the day. They had driven or motored in from their homes in the hope of getting a good look at Thaw. But only those who were willing to pay for a meal and see Thaw at a table had their curiosity satisfied.

HEARING IS TOMORROW.

The Federal habeas corpus hearing is set for 11 o'clock Tuesday morning at Littleton. The Thaw lawyers will ask for a continuance, thus leaving the writ hanging over the heads of their opponents, and proceedings will then be transferred to Concord, for the hearing before the Governor on Wednesday.

E. P. Nute, United States Marshal for this district, will serve notice of the writ on Sheriff Drew and from the moment of that service Thaw will be in the joint custody of the United States government and the authorities of Coos county, New Hampshire. The Marshal has been directed to use "such force as is necessary to protect said Thaw from violence and indignity, if such be attempted."

THAW IS PLEASED.

This will be a new experience for the slayer of Stanford White and he is pleased at the prospect. Having Federal interference in his case gratified that peculiar love for show and publicity he shown so often. Besides, there is comfort in the thought that any infringement of the writ by any one whomsoever would mean serious consequences inasmuch as the writ carries with it an injunction which says in effect, "Hands off."

London Women Trades Unionists Say They Conceal Identity to Avoid Being "Victimized."

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Sept. 14.—The "masked" worker made his first demonstration in Hyde Park yesterday afternoon in favor of trades unionism, following tactics similar to those adopted by the laborer and artisan, who held meetings in the vicinity.

The participants, many of whom were women, were all clerks, representing a great variety of employment. They marched from the Thames Embankment to Hyde Park wearing black masks with the object of "avoided victimization."

Sandwich boards stated that 25 per cent. of the clerks die of consumption in consequence of wretched working conditions.

Speakers drew a lurid picture of the underpayment of the clerks the unsanitary conditions prevailing in a majority of the offices and stores, and the slave-driving methods of employers.

name of Juan Sanchez, formerly a resident of Los Angeles, said that the party had been recruited in response to a manifesto issued by Flores Magon and that they expected to be met on the Mexican side by a large company of Socialistic sympathizers, after which an attempt would be made to wrest Northern Coahuila from the Constitutionalists. Horses already provided by their friends in Mexico were taken to a point near Alamito Crossing and were still awaiting the arrival of the filibusters, Sanches alleged.

Plans had been completed to begin the counter revolution while the Mexican people were celebrating Independence Day, September 16, when it was expected a large number could be induced to join the insurrectos. Upon hearing that the people along the border secretly sympathized with the Carranzistas, Sanchez said that some of the filibusters obtained a Constitutionalist flag and posed as recruits en route to join the Constitutionalists. None of the band expected interference on the part of the authorities and when caught in a trap the filibusters agreed to fight to death rather than surrender. All knowledge of Deputy Sheriff Ortiz's death was disclaimed by the prisoners.

TURNED OVER.

Telegraphic orders from the department were received in this city tonight, directing Col. Sibley to relinquish the Mexican filibusters to the Dimmit county civil authorities. It was held by the Department of Justice that the State of Texas had a prior right to the prisoners, although the Federal charge of armed insurrection will be kept alive pending the outcome of the trial.

Col. Sibley immediately ordered all troops to withdraw from Carrizo Springs, except Lieut. Allen, who will remain as a witness. The County Court is now in session and probably will try the Socialist insurrectos at once unless prevented by the technicalities.

D. & R. G. REVENUE INCREASES.

Operating Expenses Also Mount Higher—Western Pacific Makes a Big Gain in Business.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

DENVER, Sept. 13.—Gross operating revenues aggregating $24,452,-964.36, a new high record, for the Denver and Rio Grande Railroad Company, are shown by the annual report for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1913, made public today. This is an increase of $1,172,561.97, or 5.04 per cent. over the total revenues of the fiscal year 1912, amounting to $23,280,402.39.

The total operating expenses were $17,047,172.01 for 1913, compared with $16,984,517.62 for 1912, an increase of $62,654.39, or .37 per cent.

In the operating expenses the maintenance of ways and structures shows the greatest increase, due largely to improvements made over Soldiers' Summit in Utah and in the vicinity of Tennessee Pass in Colorado.

The net income for 1913 was $7,-094,179.66 as compared with $7,144,-702.83 for 1912, an increase of $349,-414.83, or 82.94 per cent.

A statement by President E. T. Bush contains a summary of revenue and expenses of the Western Pacific Railway, placing the net operating income for 1913 at $7,405,041.82, compared with $6115,521.08 for 1912, an increase of $592,240.74. After making debits in accordance with regulations of the Interstate Commerce Commission amounting to $245,865.99 for 1913, and $251,697.02 for 1912, the surplus for the Western Pacific is $1,059,475.83 for 1913, an increase of $495,241.77 over that for the year previous, amounting to $564,214.06.

Then Compelled Him and Minister of Interior to Sign Agreement in Johannesburg Gold Mine Labor Trouble—Sensational Stories of Union Leaders Are Denied.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

JOHANNESBURG, Sept. 14.—Sensational stories are current regarding the conference between the government officials and miners leaders, which resulted in a settlement of the gold mine strike on the Rand on July 5 last. Some of the labor leaders assert that Gen. Louis Botha, ex-Premier of the Union of South Africa, and Gen. Smuts, Minister of the Interior, Mines and Defense, were compelled at the point of a revolver to sign the agreement.

Gen. Smuts has issued a denial of this.

After the settlement was signed at the Carlton Hotel, according to Secretary Bain of the Trades Federation, and Secretary Mathews of the Miners' Association, all the conferees stood on the balcony of the hotel and observed soldiers with rifles levelled ready to fire at the crowd of demonstrators in the street. Two of the labor leaders covered Gen. Botha and Gen. Smuts with revolvers.

"One shot and you are dead," said one of them. The ministers thereupon commanded the soldiers not to shoot.

BLANCO MAY ATTACK TAMPICO.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MATAMORAS (Mex.) Sept. 14.—A general movement of 4000 Constitutionalists south and west of Matamoras now is in progress, according to a statement today by Gen. Mucio Blanco, commander of the rebel forces in the States of Tamaulipas anr Nuevo Leon. While the objective points of the campaign were not made public, it is believed that Blanco is concentrating for the long planned attack on Tampico, an important eastern port and Victoria, capital of Tamaulipas. The troop movement has been in progress for a week.

Col. Cesario Castro will leave Matamoras tomorrow for the south following with 700 men the advance guard of 300 which left today. A strong garrison and seven machine guns is being left here to protect the city. Gen. Blanco himself is not expected to take the field for the present.

Fighting has been in progress at points in Southern Tamaulipas for several days, according to reports here, but results of the engagements are not known.

Federals are said to have defeated Col. Luis Caballero, capturing an armored automobile and a machine gun.

The services of 2000 Hunastecs-Potosina Indians offered to Gen. Blanco by Gen. Torres Carera, have been accepted and they soon will begin a northerly movement in the State of San Luis Potosi, it is announced.

PASTORS ASSAIL BARBARY COAST

United Effort to Prune Out of Existence.

San Franciscans Unaware cause of the Crusade.

Nesting Place of Crime Likely to Disappear.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 14.—Barbary Coast faces extinction. A score of clergymen fulminated from their pulpits today and tonight against this world-known resort of dance halls, drinking places, gambling-houses and downstairs dives known to deep sea sailors and exploited in many a novel and Sea story. Of late years, to accommodate eastern and other tourists who wished to see the fictional sights a whole new set of dance halls have been developed, regardless of expense, for their particular benefit.

The "Coast," usually shielded from criticism except that of the ethical of the beat, was manifestly unprepared for the night, because behind the thunder of the clergymen its denizens were suffering economic pressure, women's suffrage having brought a new State law providing that no disorderly place may be summarily closed except upon substantiated complaint of nuisance—that it is by common report a place of bad reputation. This law is now in abeyance just now because of a referendum petition filed against it, but little small hope is entertained that it will be upset at any election when the women vote and for its present denizens of the Coast, in their own vernacular "do not know the game."

Arguments raised against the existence of the Coast by clergymen were that it is immoral, that it is a place to come to be directly in the path of the wicked by the large and growing Italian colony on its way downtown and that its presence will hurt the Panama-Pacific Exposition in 1915.

For two years the coast has been subsiding. Hundreds of girls, dressed in brilliant parti-colored silk uniforms, a new uniform every month, who used to sell drinks on the percentage commission, were ordered into more modest clothes and "shoe-top dresses." The first blow deprived the dance halls of much of their animation. It was followed by another order, forbidding the presence of women dancers in places where wine sold drinks by the percentages. This move, aimed at the tourist trade, was felt severely by the resorts, but they complied with it in hopes that the so-called "red-light law" would not be passed.

After it did pass, proof that one of the principal resorts was the meeting place for a whole host of grafting policemen, now serving sentences, increased the distaste for the "Coast" was finding itself bereft of its fluidial quarters, and the cry of battle cry of "A clean town for the exposition," backed by the newspapers is considered in many quarters to be too powerful to be withstood.

Opposition to Reserve Bank Proposition Continues.

House Lobby Committee Will Prepare Its Report.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—With the tariff bill being completed and the administration currency bill under way in the House the coming week in Congress promises marked progress toward the inscribing on the statute books the legislation prescribed by President Wilson.

The Senate and House conferees on the tariff bill in disagreement between the two houses, have made much progress.

The House this week will take up the currency bill in detail. With the mass of argument out of the way, the debate now will be taken up for amendment and, although the approval of the Democratic caucus is expected to prevent any changes, various attempts will be made to alter some provisions.

The section providing that national banks shall subscribe 20 per cent. of their capital and 5 per cent. of their deposits to the proposed Federal reserve banks and the provision making reserve bank notes government obligations, will be principal points of attack.

The Senate Banking Committee will resume hearing bankers, financial experts and merchants Tuesday, when the first of seventeen witnesses will appear.

The House Lobby Committee after tomorrow will suspend hearings temporarily and prepare a report. A minor representative, Ralph D. Cole of Ohio, and C. E. Littlefield of Maine, are expected to testify before the inquiry is concluded.

Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Object to Any Change in Loose Methods of Running Trains—Order Goes Into Effect at Once and Provides that Only Experienced Men Shall Run Passenger Engines.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW HAVEN (Conn.) Sept. 15.—In what is proclaimed as "the interest of safety," new rules governing the promotion of firemen to engineers, to advanced lines of service, and for "the discipline of men," were promulgated today by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, "effective at once." A committee of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers headed by W. S. Evans, has had several conferences with General Manager Bardo relative to the rules at which opposition has been voiced to any change.

Copies of the rules are designed and submitted to the engineers is-sued, General Manager Bardo says, as a result of conferring demonstrations that the existing rules do not meet the growing demands of the service. In accordance with the recommendations of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Public Utilities Commission of Connecticut; and are for the sole purpose of increasing the safety of our service and for the protection of our patrons and employees."

In future engineers will have to have at least one year's experience before being placed on passenger locomotives and two years' experience before being allowed on fast trains.

The particular changes to which the Brotherhood Committee had objected related to the seniority rule, the physical and visual tests and the methods of discipline. In an official statement issued recently by the committee, it claimed that orders to "make time" issued in 1911 and the disciplinary results which accompanied failure to "make time" largely have been responsible for conditions on the system in the last two years.

UNION VETERANS INVADE SOUTH.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHATTANOOGA (Tenn.) Sept. 14.—Marking their first peaceful invasion of the South, thousands of Union veterans arrived here today to attend the forty-seventh annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic and allied organizations. The encampment will be opened tomorrow. Survivors of the army which caused the Confederacy to totter in the bloody battle of Chickamauga, fought here fifty years ago, were greeted with the same cordiality shown the United Confederate Veterans, whose annual reunion was held in Chattanooga last May.

Committee meetings and receptions are expected to occupy the first day of the encampment. Impressive military demonstrations are scheduled for Tuesday. The parade of the Grand Army of the Republic will take place Wednesday morning.

Patriotic services were held in all the churches of Chattanooga this morning, departmental and national G.A.R. chaplains occupying the pulpits. The feature of the day was the service at the First Presbyterian Church, conducted jointly by Chaplain in Chief George Edward Lovejoy of the G.A.R. and Dr. J. W. Bachman, former chaplain-general of the United Confederate Veterans, and pastor of the church.

The nurses of the Civil War, attired in blue uniforms, short skirts and campaign hats, attracted much attention today.

Tonight an immense mass meeting was held at the City Auditorium, at which a semi-official welcome was extended to the officials of the G.A.R. Ex-Senator Newell Sanders, H. Clay Evans and Gen. Albert B. Beers, commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, were the principal speakers.

A WOMAN'S PRIVILEGE.

German Supreme Court Holds They May Entertain Male Visitors in Rented Apartments.

[BY CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BERLIN, Sept. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Supreme Court at Leipsic has decided that a woman has an indisputable right to receive gentlemen visitors in her own apartments. The case arose from the persistency of an actress in receiving men visitors in rented apartments. The landlord tried to restrain her from doing this, but the court decided that a prohibition of visits by men would be illegal, and a restriction of personal liberty.

It must be left to one's own conscience to decide how far a reception of visitors in a flat offends against morality, said the court, and the landlord is not entitled to interfere, so long as the peace and repute of the building are not affected in a flagrant manner. It was not the privilege of a landlord to concern himself with the visits of men to the rooms of the actress, in the opinion of the court.

"I would advise England to watch Dr. Rutherford," she said.

"His work in the line of radio activity surprised me greatly. Great developments are likely to be announced shortly compared with which the discovery of radium was only preliminary."

INSISTS ON DRAW BRIDGE.

State Reclamation Board Will Not Permit Solid Structure Over American River.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Just as the Sacramento county Supervisors had announced the letting of a contract for a massive concrete bridge across the American River, the State Reclamation Board, which under a law passed at the last session of the Legislature was given full control of ditches and irrigation canals that are not navigable, came forward with an order that the county must build the structure with a draw so dredgers can pass through.

Similar action will be taken in connection with all the large irrigation canals where the use of dredgers is required to repair and construct levees. The board's mandate has caused the suspension of the plan to begin the immediate construction of the proposed bridge as entirely new plans must be prepared and these must be advertised before the contract can be awarded. There is no disposition to question the authority of the reclamation board. The effect of its action will be farreaching as it means that hereafter irrigation canals cannot be closed by county and railroad bridges.

REDUCES SALOONS AT CAPITAL.

Sacramento Commissioners Pass Ordinance Which Will Secure an Even Hundred Thirst Parlors.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] By unanimous vote the Commissioners of Sacramento passed yesterday an ordinance which will reduce the saloons of the city from 197, the present number, to 100, but it will require ten years to bring about the reduction.

The saloon men accepted the ordinance after a few modifications had been made to bring it into harmony with the State law. The original ordinance provided for the closing of saloons at 1 o'clock, but at the request of the saloon men the closing time was changed to accord with the State law. The ordinance provides for a flat license of $500 a year and establishes a redemption fund into which 25 per cent. of this sum goes. As this fund accumulates it can be used for the purchase of the property of saloon keepers as the Commissioners decide to close the resorts.

The effectiveness of the ordinance is doubtful. The saloon men are assured of a continuance of the present condition for ten years unless the people should take a hand.

FATAL TO GOOD LOOKS

Thin Blood and Nervousness Will Quickly Wreck Beauty.

Pale people are generally nervous. Thin blood not only affects the complexion by robbing cheeks and lips of color but it also weakens the nerves by robbing them of nourishment.

When you have so far lost control of your nerves that you "fly to pieces" over the least little noise or excitement, it is high time to give your nerves a rest and to build up your blood. The drawn look, the sunken eyes, the deepening lines about the mouth and forehead, the loss in weight, are plain signs that the nerves and the body are being poorly nourished.

Lieut. Round Re-establishes Old Signal Station on Kenesaw Mountain That Saved Union Stores.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ATLANTA (Ga.) Sept. 14.—An interesting scene reminiscent of the Civil War was re-enacted yesterday at the top of Kenesaw mountain, near here, when Lieut. George Round, president of the United States Signal Veterans, re-established the signal station employed by Gen. Sherman just prior to the start of the famous "March to the Sea."

Lieut. Round, accompanied by two other veterans of the Union Signal Corps, set up the identical telescope he used during the war, and with the same flag wig-wagged the message.

"Hold the fort for I am coming," which Gen. Sherman sent to Altoona Pass, eighteen miles away. It was this message which saved the stores of the Union army.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TACOMA, Sept. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] It develops today that Washington Finlay, cashier in the Tacoma freight offices of the Northern Pacific Railway, who died suddenly last week, was a member of the English nobility. He had lived here a quarter of a century and for fifteen years with Thomas Morris, former Pierce county Sheriff. He came from Australia or New Zealand thirty years ago and was regarded as a bachelor. Morris now finds letters among Finlay's effects which show he was a brother of Lady Lethbridge, and that he had three married daughters, one of whom is the wife of a French nobleman, that he recently received a childish letter from a grandchild at Bideford, North Devon, and that two daughters live in Kent, Eng.

In an old letter Finlay's brother-in-law, colonel of a British regiment, invited him to London to become secretary of a South African mining corporation. Morris, as administrator, and British Vice Consul Agassis are investigating.

VISITS LOURDES, LEAVES CRUTCHES

PILGRIMS ASSERT THEY ARE CURED AT NOTED SHRINE.

Woman Crippled With Rheumatism for Four Years Said to Have Gone Away Walking Easily and Others Are Believed to Have Recovered.

[BY CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LOURDES, Sept. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] New cures are asserted to have occurred here today at the Shrine of the Virgin Mary, and crowds of seekers after the performance of the miracles were thrilled with excitement.

Mme. Bourneay, aged 51, a French pilgrim, who has been completely crippled with rheumatism for four years and who crawled along on crutches with the greatest difficulty, was returning from an early morning visit to the shrine when she suddenly felt power returning to her heretofore useless leg. The woman threw away her crutches and walked easily and painlessly.

A Belgian girl named Jeanne Bodet, 9 years old, who has been deaf and dumb and suffering from St. Vitus dance for three years, as a result of scarlet fever, visited the shrine Saturday. While dressing herself today the girl startled her mother by exclaiming, "I have lost my shoe." She showed none of the former twitching of St. Vitus dance and could hear normally in her left ear, but the right one is still somewhat defective.

Thomas Downey, aged 13, of Belfast, Ireland, who accompanied 2300 Irish pilgrims, was in an advanced state of tubercular disease of the hip with a discharging sinus and could barely hobble with crutches.

He surprised his attendants Saturday evening by saying he felt much stronger, and after again visiting the shrine today, suddenly declared that he did not need his crutches and proceeded to walk without them.

Famous Rantoul Divorce Case May Be Reopened by Favorite Daughter of James Russell Lowell.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BOSTON (Mass.) Sept. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The famous Rantoul divorce case will in all probability be opened again following the filing yesterday of two petitions by Mrs. Louis Burnett Rantoul, favorite daughter of James Russell Lowell, with the clerk of the East Cambridge court, charging that her husband, Edward B. Rantoul, had utterly failed to live up to his agreement of the decree handed down by Judge Hall on February 27, last.

She alleges that he had failed to provide for the proper and reasonable medical attention of the children; that he has repeatedly violated the decree, and that on August 20 he wrongfully discharged the nurse and has refused to permit her (the nurse) to care for the children, and has refused to employ another nurse satisfactory to her.

In her second petition, Mrs. Rantoul claims that the $150 a month she is receiving as part of the decree is wholly inadequate for the support of the children and herself.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 14.—A contest against the probate of the will of the late Miss Julia Garrett, who died at her suburban home near here recently, leaving an estate said to be valued at $12,000,000, is foreshadowed in the filing at Norristown, Pa., yesterday of a caveat against the admission of any document purporting to be her will. The caveat was filed by a cousin of Miss Garrett.

The Garrett fortune was accumulated in the snuff business, which was founded here about the time William Penn was treating with the Indians.

SAY PRIEST ADMITS MURDER OF WOMAN.

New York Police Solve Mystery of Headless Body Found in the Hudson and Publish Alleged Confession of German Clergyman—"I Loved Her So," Is Motive Assigned for Deed in Remarkable Document.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—With the arrest early today of the Rev. Hans Schmidt, assistant rector of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church, charged with the murder of Anna Aumuller, a domestic, the mystery surrounding the finding twelve days ago of parts of the dismembered body of a girl in the Hudson River, was solved. Schmidt, according to the police reports, has confessed and at the time of his arrest attempted to commit suicide by cutting his throat with a safety razor blade.

"I killed her because I loved her so much," Schmidt is alleged to have told his captors, but the police version of the motive for the crime is that the young woman was about to become a mother. He had married her through a ceremony of his own performing, without witnesses.

According to the police and the District Attorney's office, Schmidt's confession was full and absolute. In it he is quoted as saying that he killed his companion with a butcher knife and cut up the body with the knife and a saw. The deed was committed, the police say, while the woman slept, shortly after midnight on September 2, in an apartment in Bradhurst avenue, where the priest had placed her five days before.

When her heart had ceased beating, according to the alleged confession, Schmidt carried the body from the bed to the bathroom and placing it in the tub, began immediately his gory task of cutting it up. With the keen knife and the saw he cut off the head, arms and legs. Still fearful of detection, he then cut the body in two.

Five bundles, wrapped in bedclothes and papers, were made of the six parts. Five times Schmidt left the apartment-house with a bundle to cross the Hudson River to the Jersey shore. Five times he leaned over the stern of the ferry boat in midstream and gently gave the river his burden. Then he returned to his church.

The stain of the girl's blood still discolored the bathtub when detectives searched the Bradhurst avenue apartment today. Schmidt told the police he had taken the mattress on which she lay when dealt the death blow under cover of darkness to a vacant lot near-by and burned it.

In the apartment, among other things, the police found a marriage license issued in New York last February and bearing the names of the priest and the murdered woman. This license had been used. According to Schmidt's confession he went through a marriage ceremony with the girl. In this ceremony, Schmidt was both priest and bridegroom; there were no witnesses.

TRACED TO SCHMIDT.

A gaily colored pillow of unusual pattern led to Schmidt's apprehension. This pillow, stained with blood and soiled with the filth of the river, was wrapped around a portion of the torso. The detectives traced the pillow to its manufacturer, the manufacturer traced it to the dealer, the dealer traced it to Schmidt. And the police, tracing Schmidt and the girl, knew all about both of them hours before they arrested him.

IN CLERICAL GARB.

Schmidt was arrested by Inspector Faurot, in charge of the detective bureau. The priest was dressed in full clerical garb when the detective entered his rooms in the parish-house of his church in West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street. The inspector had produced a photograph of Miss Aumuller and asked Schmidt if he knew the girl.

The priest, after a moment of hesitation, inquired whether his visitors were police officers. His actions indicated that he was expecting arrest. He then asked permission to change his clothes and it was when he left the room that Inspector Faurot declared he attempted to cut his throat with a small safety razor blade.

Early today, according to parishioners of the church, Schmidt said to the Rev. Father Huntmann, rector of St. Joseph's Church, that he would hear no more confessions, and when asked for his reason said: "I have something of importance to tell you." With his superior, Schmidt then retired to the study where the latter told all that had transpired in the Bradhurst-avenue flat where his alleged confession to the police says he murdered the girl. Father Huntmann conferred with his other assistants and it was agreed that the authorities should be notified. The police, however, were even then on Schmidt's trail and his arrest followed shortly.

SIGNED CONFESSION.

Schmidt was taken to the Tombs. According to the police he made a full confession, after which he was taken before Coroner Weinberg, who committed him to the Tombs until the inquest is held. The confession, which the police say Schmidt signed, follows:

"I met Anna Aumuller two years ago at the parish-house of St. Boniface Church. She was employed as a servant there. I was attracted by her beauty. I became infatuated with her. I loved her.

"I killed her because I loved her so much. She was so beautiful, so good, so kind, I could not let her live without me.

"I had made up my mind that she and I could not live together. I was a priest and must remain with my church. I could not let her go away from me. So I opened the door of the flat. I awakened her. I told her I had come to fulfill my threat. Then I drew the knife across her throat.

"I cut the body into six pieces. I made trips to the Fort Lee ferry, each time with a part of her precious body in a bundle. When the ferry-boat reached the middle of the stream I would throw a piece into the water, and when the boat reached the other side of the river I would return and go back to the flat.

"After I had disposed of the body I wanted to destroy all evidence of the crime. I took the mattress on which I had slain her and carried it to a vacant lot and there I burned it.

"I am guilty; that is all I can say. I must pay the penalty. There is nothing else for me to do. But I loved Anna Aumuller.

"She wanted me to marry her and I procured a marriage license. She trusted me.

"I am a priest and ordained to perform the marriage ceremony, so when she insisted on a ceremony I married myself to her. There was no need of any other priest doing it. It was just as absolute as if I had called in another person with authority to perform a marriage ceremony. She was my wife."

A HEALTH SEEKER.

Schmidt, after being assigned to a cell in the Tombs, went to sleep. The priest, according to his story, was born in Aschaffenburg, Germany, in 1881. He attended college and at the age of 18 enrolled in St. Augustine's Seminary in Mains, and on December 23, 1904, was ordained. He held several charges in Germany and then came to America because of poor health. After remaining in New York City a short time he was assigned to a church at Louisville, Ky. In 1909 he went to Trenton, N. J., and in December, 1910, he became assistant to Father Braun, rector of St. Boniface's Church, where he met the girl.

In November, 1913, Schmidt left St. Boniface's to become assistant rector of St. Joseph's Church, the assignment he held at the time of his arrest today.

Little is known of the history of Anna Aumuller before she took employment in the St. Boniface parish house the week before Christmas, 1910. According to a statement issued tonight by Father Braun, she left his parish house in the summer of 1911, returning on Thanksgiving Day, 1913, and left the second time August 30, last. At this time she said she was about to be married and go to Ohio to live. Father Braun said that he and his sister, who is his housekeeper, had become attached to the girl because she was very pleasant and a faithful worker.

Despite her statement to another maid employed in the rectory that she was leaving to be married, Father Braun said tonight that he was forced to discharge her two weeks ago "because her mode of living was unsatisfactory."

The girl, as nearly as could be learned, was 21 years old.

ON THE SLAYER'S TRAIL.

Inspector Faurot had assigned Detectives James O'Neal, Frank Casasess and Richard McKenna to locate the house or flat where the murder was committed. They made a house to house search in the vicinity of the store of George Sachs, in Eighth avenue, where was purchased the pillow slip in which parts of the body were wrapped. In this same locality the tar paper found with parts of the torso was purchased, it was learned.

Sachs's record revealed that the only pillow slip of the description, not previously traced, had been sent to a purchaser at the Bradhurst-avenue address. On Saturday the detectives learned that the third floor rear apartment had been rented recently, but the occupants had not been seen for several days. An inspection of the flat showed bloodstains and articles of wearing apparel and baggage.

In the flat were letters that connected Miss Aumuller with the rectory of St. Boniface Church.

From Father Braun, rector of the church, the detectives learned that Miss Aumuller left his employ two weeks ago and that Father Schmidt, while an assistant rector there, had shown unusual interest in the girl.

With the three detectives and his secretary, Inspector Faurot went to the rectory of St. Joseph's Church this morning. The arrest of Schmidt followed a few moments later.

While not denying that the Rev. Hans Schmidt had been ordained and had been permitted to officiate at services in this city, an authoritative statement issued today after his arrest from the head of the New York diocese characterized him as a "wanderer" and not a priest of the diocese and not so recognized, although he was assigned to assist the rectors of its churches.

After his arrest and while en route to the Tombs, Schmidt was questioned by the detectives. They asked him what he had done with the mattress and he told them, they said. Inspector Faurot stopped the machine at the vacant lot and the charred remnants of the mattress were found. Then Schmidt was asked where he bought the knife and the saw with which the body of Miss Aumuller was cut up. He indicated a shop as they passed it. The car was stopped and Schmidt pointed to a knife with a ten-inch blade in the window as practically identical with the one he used. This shop is not far from the Tombs. Further up the street, Schmidt, the police say, pointed to two butcher's saws in a shop window.

"I bought one of these," he said laconically.

A SACRIFICE.

In a statement made in his Tombs cell tonight to the Rev. Father L. J. Evers, pastor of St. Andrew's Church and Tombs chaplain, Schmidt said he was directed to commit the crime "by St. Elizabeth, who is my patron, as a sacrifice, to be consummated as was the sacrifice of Abraham, in blood."

SCHMIDT AT LOUISVILLE.

Mysterious Murder of Alma Kellner Recalled by Atrocious Crime in Gotham and Priest's Confession.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LOUISVILLE (Ky.) Sept. 14.—During the period the Rev. Schmidt, who confessed in New York to the murder of Anna Aumuller, stopped in Louisville this city was startled by the murder of 3-year-old Alma Kellner, whose mutilated body was found in quicklime in the basement of St. John's Catholic Church, nearly five months after her mysterious disappearance on December 3, 1909. Because the manner in which the child's body was cut into pieces and disposed of, bore some resemblance to the methods employed in the murder of Anna Aumuller in New York, interest in the Kellner case was revived tonight on receipt of the news of Rev. Schmidt's arrest.

Joseph Wendling, janitor at St. John's Catholic Church, was arrested in California three months after the discovery of the body of the child and was brought back to Louisville, convicted of the murder and sentenced to life imprisonment at Frankfort. Wendling stoutly denied his guilt and the evidence was not considered sufficiently conclusive to warrant the jury in bringing a death verdict against Wendling.

The detectives who were in charge of the investigation of the child's death stated tonight that Schmidt's name was never mentioned in connection with the crime. In an interview tonight at the Frankfort Penitentiary, Wendling stated that he had never heard of the Rev. Schmidt.

HUNTERS IN DIRE TROUBLE.

Going to Malibu Range to Get Deer They Get in Fire Zone and Escape With Difficulty.

SANTA MONICA, Sept. 14.—A party of fourteen hunters, who went up the coast in Charles Peterson's launch, the Kalem, had a close call in getting out of the wide-reaching lines of fire in the Malibu range east and north of Escondido Canyon today. Having landed early yesterday in a part of the coast twenty-six miles from Santa Monica in a spot almost inaccessible by land, they penetrated inland in search of deer, and found themselves surrounded by flames from which they escaped with considerable difficulty.

The men in the party included J. F. Robbins, No. 226 Pressed (known as "Stormy;" Henry [illegible], No. 517 Bay street; Lee [illegible], 1344 Eighth street; A. K. Wheat, 1344 Sixth street; John Gamble, 514 Temple street; Tom Moore, 1913 Eighth street, and Fred Wheat, all of Santa Monica.

The men intended to camp in Solstice Canyon, but selected a location a few miles from Escondido Canyon as their camping spot. They had seen the fire of yesterday die out, to all appearances, and assumed as a danger from that source.

This morning, however, the cool breeze fanned the brush fire which was sweeping north. Thinking it would soon drift east and south and finally die out, and in fact little evidence of the nearness of the fire through of the dense palls of smoke which they proceeded farther into the interior.

This noon the fire in that section was at its height, and the men decided to make for the coast. They found a long line of burning brush across the trail, and looked for a possible mode of egress to the coast. The smoke lost them their way several times, and the cinders and sparks about them, but they managed to reach the ocean at about 3:30, Robbins had taken the launch a half mile from shore because of the cinders, sparks, which threatened to burn the distillate in a tank on the boat. He came in shore in a veritable shower of cinders and hot ashes sparks, but the party, well [illegible] from the cinders, set off down the spot toward Santa Monica without further adventure.

The men watched the fire in the part of the range burn out an hour later. They stated that considerable smoke came from over the range, about ten miles from the coast, toward Calabasas, but that produced no damage was done except the burning of brush and a few small trees near the coast. The men shot no deer. They stated that not one animal was seen during their sojourn in the woods, judging that they had made for the thickly-wooded country towards the Rindge estate at the approach of the fire.

William Compton Abbott, [illegible] of New York, passed away at his residence, No. 1531 Seventh street, leaving a large family. He was [illegible] of age and had lived here [illegible] months. His body will be shipped to New York.

CONFER WITH THE KING.

Two of the Most Prominent Conservatives Representing the Houses of Parliament, At Balmoral.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Sept. 14.—Two prominent of two of the most prominent Conservatives of the two houses of Parliament at Balmoral as the King's guests—Andrew Bonar Law, who is the titular leader of the opposition, and Lord Curzon of Kedleston, who recently declared in the House of Lords that the Irish question ever could be settled except by the consent of both parties—to begin the discussion of the possibility of an attempt to compromise at last between Before going to Balmoral, Mr. Law conferred with Lord Lansdowne and Arthur J. Balfour, the former leader of the opposition, [illegible] week in Scotland. It is therefore evident that the Conservative leaders are in consultation.

The newspapers of both parties in England are evidently anxious for some settlement which will prevent the civil war threatened by Ulster if the home rule bill becomes law. The present maneuvers have raised public hopes in England, but even if a conference of the parties is arranged any agreement seems hopeless. The English parties might get together, but the gulf separating the Irish factions is far too deep.

Premier Asquith is pledged to give the Irish leaders complete home rule. They will accept nothing else. On the other hand, the Protestant Ulsterites refuse to consider any change in their present status in the United Kingdom which might place them under a government controlled by the Catholics.

FLAMES UNDER CONTROL.

SAN DIEGO, Sept. 14.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] Reports received here from the localities where forest fires have been raging for two days indicate generally that the flames have either been checked or are under control. Near Bonsall, on the Vicenta ranch, the fire covered many acres. But the growth was small and the damage was mainly in the underbrush. The fire in the Palomar east of Escondido, was also checked and threatened to sweep into the Center, where the telegraph and telephone lines are. Citizens of Escondido, reinforced by help from the city, fought this fire and have it under control tonight. It burned over an area of 1000 acres.

THE WRONG MAN.

London Police and Magistrate Badly Mixed Over Boy Charged With Pinching Cabman.

[Baltimore American.] A case at the Lambeth Police Court recently resulted in the wrong man being convicted.

When a man named Joy was called to answer a charge of disorderly behavior another man named Tyndall, who had been arrested for the same offense, stepped into the dock. The policeman who had arrested Joy gave evidence against Tyndall, and he was fined 5s. for disorderly behavior.

Then Joy entered the dock and was tried as Tyndall. He was drunk and intoxicated. He made many loud protests, but it was only after Mr. de Grey, the magistrate, had ordered him to be removed that he was referred to by a correct name. "Mr. Joy" that the mistake was discovered.

Tyndall was called back into court and was tried over again for drunk and intoxicated. The result was the same as if he had been convicted before, and fined 5s.

A similar case occurred some time ago at the same court, when an innocent woman, who had been arrested as a witness, was hustled into the dock and positively identified by a policeman as the woman he had arrested. Fortunately the real culprit appeared before the magistrate and had been sentenced.

"NAGGING THE JAPANESE."

Different Viewpoints of the Treatment in the United States of the Subjects of the Mikado.

[North American Review:] An American who has spent the spring months of this year in Japan and returns this summer through California encounters a sharp sea-change of public opinion, writes Francis G. Peabody. In Japan, among responsible people, the anti-Japanese legislation of California created a general sense of bewilderment.

A question of land-holding which, after twenty years, remained insignificant, and which showed no signs of immediate gravity, was magnified in the public press into "a horde of settlers," "a strangle-hold on the State," "the grip the Japanese are securing." The consequence was a policy which may be described as nagging the Japanese.

Here, then, is a situation which takes on a wholly different look when seen from opposite sides of the ocean. What to California is a local irritation created by a few objectionable settlers is regarded in Japan as a national insult. To the Japanese our Federal system is almost incomprehensible. In a nation where loyalty to the throne is an evermastication, the conception of a divided authority, permitting one section of a country to oppose or thwart the will of the rest, seems like governmental chaos, and the impression persists that somehow California might be overruled. A nagging policy is therefore the most irritating that could be devised. Exclusion would be more endurable to the Japanese than insinuation. If a proud and sensitive country should be goaded to retaliation, it would be because it had been treated supercilliously, and because the government at Washington moves so slowly in reparation, if indeed, it is moving at all. Here is the gravity of the case; and until the issue is dealt with, not as a tool of local politics, but as a case of international comity, no satisfaction is likely to be felt in Japan. One State may do the nagging, but the whole country has to bear the blame. . . . It is high time, then, to consider what are the elements in the problem which should be clearly recognized, if a policy of local nagging is to be supplanted by a policy of sane diplomacy.

Another Alleged Thief Treed in Grain Field.

Orange Blossom Mine Purchased by Utah Men.

SAN BERNARDINO, Sept. 14.—John Ruiz, arrested at Rialto yesterday by Deputy Sheriff J. M. Showalter, is the living antithesis of "September Morn."

With the temperature standing at 102 in the shade and the valley held in the pall of intense humidity, Ruiz was wearing three complete suits of clothes, an additional pair of trousers, three suits of underwear and seven pairs of socks, two of which were silk long hose of the feminine variety. John took the greatest Turkish bath on record. Even the fourth pair of trousers were saturated with perspiration. Officers removed the garments and they made a pile several feet high on the floor. About ninety-nine pockets were found by the officers to go through in the searching process. Ruiz is a burglar it seems, at least the clothes he wore were identified as loot from four or five Rialto burglaries yesterday while families were away from home attending the circus in this city.

BURGLAR TREED.

Charles Collins, alleged burglar, was treed by former Policeman Walter Roberds in a huge tree in a grain field northwest of the city yesterday following an exciting chase which led across lots, fields and fences from the home of a neighbor from which Roberds had seen the man departing. He sized it up as a burglary and took after the man, who ran. Roberds finally induced Collins to come to earth and landed him at the County Jail.

NEWS BRIEFS.

The home of George N. Haven, local newspaper man, was robbed yesterday of $40 and valuable family heirlooms. Entrance was gained by using a skeleton key in the rear door after pushing out the key on the inside.

The sale of the famous Orange Blossom mine in the desert, near Daggett, is reported in this city. The directors, John Denair, J. W. Copeman and Norman E. Rich, holding the biggest block of stock, have transferred it to a Salt Lake smelting company, which will start extensive development work on the mine soon. The property has been called the "Lemon" Blossom ever since the scheme of John Denair, well-known desert promoter, failed to bring out much return financially. On the heels of the sale, J. J. Hanford, another of the directors, has filed suit here asking that the action of the three directors in giving Denair a mortgage on the entire property in exchange for money alleged to be due him, be annulled. Hanford holds that the act is illegal on the grounds that Denair, as a director, voted for the measure.

The local school authorities will not allow extreme styles in girls' dresses on the school grounds when the fall term opens tomorrow. Such is the statement of the authorities, who promise to send any girl appearing in indecent gowns to their home. Tight gowns, slit skirts, hobbles and other styles are under the ban.

It is expected that more than 3000 pupils will enter schools of the city tomorrow. About 500, the largest enrollment in its history, is estimated at the High School, while the grade buildings are expected to show up with a total of about 2700 pupils. Owing to the fact that the board has provided many additions in the summer, congestion is not expected to be one of the opening problems.

Do you want a good player piano, at a small price? The AUTOPIANO listed here is a mahogany case, plays 88-note music, and can be had at $12.00 per month.

For $160 or less you have not seen such pianos as are listed here—the

Chickering, Singer and Hemenway

They can be relied upon for hard service for several years and can be exchanged then upon new ones at no less to you.

$450 is a good price, but if you like a Weber and are on the point of paying $600 for one that cannot be told from this one we are advertising, then $450 is a low price.

That Mathushek at $195 is surely a bargain. Better ask to see it today—full size, plain walnut case, good tone.

And so on—the entire list speaks for itself, but you must see these used pianos to appreciate the low prices on the tags.

Every week several sagacious buyers go home happy—why not investigate yourself?

CITY NEWS IN BRIEF.

A Phonograph Dinner.

The Southern California Talking Machine Men's Association will meet tomorrow evening for supper at the Hollenbeck. President Sibley G. Pease will preside and the Ad Men's Club Male Quartette will furnish music.

Entertain Scribes.

Attorney Frank Domingues and the Carson boys, with a generation of hospitality flowing through their veins, entertained several hundred newspaper writers and professionally prominent men at the historic Domingues rancho yesterday. A barbecue and baseball game were features, the game ending 7 to 1 for the "Afternoon" team.

Babies' Rings Stolen.

Ninety-five baby rings were stolen from the jewelry store of J. H. Crandell, No. 520 West Eighth street, Saturday. Some thief, breaking through the front window, took the loot. The baby rings are the oddest loot yet taken by thieves. Other valuables taken included several watches and fifty other rings of various values.

School Day of Prayer.

The day of prayer for public and private schools, the second Sunday of September, was not generally observed in this city yesterday, but it is probable that on a Sunday later in the season uniform action will be arranged for the plan, which is being advocated by the National Reform Association, with headquarters in Pittsburgh.

Inspect "Movies" Plant.

Returning from the annual convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of California, at San Diego, members of the league, numbering over one hundred, were taken to the plant of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, in Hollywood, Saturday, and also to the ranch, where out-of-door scenarios are enacted. There they were made actors in a scenario written to include them. Dinner was served in the company's ranch restaurant.

Jahnke's Cabaret De Luxe.

Frequenters of cafes in this city will be delighted with the new "Cafe Cabaret de Luxe" of Adolph Jahnke at First and Spring streets. In days gone by this cafe boasted of being the daily rendesvous of many of the shining lights of the city; but it never was so beautiful as it is now, with its new equipment and artistic decorations and brilliant overhanging vines. It reminds one of the famous Techau Tavern of San Francisco. Mr. Jahnke was greeted by a host of friends and patrons at his opening yesterday from noon till midnight. The musical entertainment was excellent. This down-to-date and attractive resort is an addition to the real institutions of the city.

Avalon.

HISTORIC CLUB SELLS PLACE.

SIXTY-NINE THOUSAND DOLLARS LOST TO MEMBERS.

Gorgeous Quarters Which Were Raided Five Years Ago Had Become a Place Where Bats and Owls Held Full Sway—Hotel Metropole Closes and Avalon Sleeps.

AVALON, Sept. 14.—J. A. Stockdale of Los Angeles late last evening closed a deal with Chris Buckley of San Francisco for the Pilgrim Club property for a consideration of $16,000. Stockdale claims that he has purchased the property for speculative purposes and has no intention of asking the Board of Trustees to permit him to open the club. Ten years ago the lot and building cost the promoters $85,000. "Take it off my hands at your own price," wired Buckley. And the deal was closed.

For the past five years the "Monte Carlo" of the West has been unfrequented by its millionaire members, despite its elaborate arrangements. Since the raid made by the police officers in 1909 the place has remained in the hands of its caretaker. The sound-proof walls of the large gambling-room have not had the opportunity to deaden the magic noises of the "bones," the tinkling glasses, or the final groans of desperate men who have suddenly realized that their last dollar had passed into the hands of the wheelman, before they staggered through the brilliantly lighted hallways, then to wander for hours along the beach trying to solve the problem of bed and transportation.

When erected the Pilgrim Club became the temporary home of its millionaire promoters. Its winerooms and storerooms contained beverages purchased in all parts of the world. Cigars which cost $1 each were passed around the room with a 5-cent carelessness. So complete were the appointments of the club that some of its members were seldom seen upon the streets of Avalon. Nightly they played at the tables, by day they slept. It is claimed that a prominent New York gambler in 1906 paid debts amounting to $200,000 for a one-night's play, then quietly packed his grip the following morning and left for the mainland.

The tables and other gambling devices when purchased were the most costly and best equipped which money could buy. Ivory chips, represented $1, $5, or $1000 each. Brussels carpets, silk-lined chairs and imported tapestries were used for the interior of the building. The outward appearance of the edifice resembled a private residence of some retired bachelor and it is not until one gains entrance to the portals that the history is revealed.

NEWS BRIEFS.

For the first time in years the Hotel Metropole closed its doors this evening and its owners state that they will not be opened until the middle of January. Since the town became incorporated, the Santa Catalina Island Company has continued to clean the streets, haul garbage and do other work which it claims should be done by the city. With the departure of the band today everything which could be closed or locked up for the winter was made secure. The bath-house and aquarium have been closed. On Wednesday all horses owned by the Santa Catalina Island Company will be shipped to the mainland. After the week-end steamer left Avalon this evening the town presented truly, Goldsmith's "Deserted Village."

City Treasurer J. A. Felk received from the Board of Supervisors Thursday as a part refund for road taxes paid by the residents of Avalon before incorporation took place, the sum of $2000. At a meeting of the Board of Trustees held Friday warrants were drawn upon the amount for the sum of $1200 for salaries and a few other sundry expenses.

HOT IN DARK FELLS AT LAST.

Dies from Effects of Footpad's Bullet.

Former Chief Justice of the Arizona Supreme Court.

Public Career as Soldier, Orator, Lawyer.

Henry Clay Gooding, former Chief Justice of the Arizona Supreme Court, died at the Palms Hotel, this city, yesterday afternoon of heart which was the result of a bullet wound inflicted by a footpad fourteen years ago. Death came early Saturday morning after an illness of about [illegible]

The funeral took place in front of Judge Gooding's home on Orchard avenue, [illegible] during the "crime wave" of 1899, the bullet passed through the body and was removed at the back. The assailant was never apprehended. Judge Gooding had lived in this city fifteen years, coming here from Arizona, and was well-known in Masonic and Grand Army circles. Until two years ago he took an active part in politics as a Republican speaker of state. He was a favorite speaker at reunions of veterans of the Civil War, and the inmates of the Soldiers' Home recently returned from a visit to the tour of the world.

Judge Gooding was born at Greenfield, Ohio, Jan. 14, 1838; graduated from Indiana De Pauw) University, Greencastle, Ind., in 1859, where he became a member of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity. He taught school in Kentucky and later at Carlinville, Ill., which place he enlisted as a private in Co. D, of the 122nd Illinois Infantry. He became a first lieutenant and served at one time as Judge Advocate of the Paducah, Ky., District. He remained in the army two and a half years in all, participating a part of which time [illegible] brothers were also with the colors, one of them being killed in battle.

After the war Judge Gooding studied law and he was frequently called upon to address old soldiers' meetings on account of his patriotic enthusiasm. He was a delegate of the war he practiced in Washington, later removing to Evansville, Ind., where he married Miss Viola Babcock, and rose to positions of honor at the bar of that state. He also served in the Senate of that state. While living in Indiana he was chairman of the committee which instigated and brought to a successful conclusion in 1876 the first reunion of the Blue and Gray.

Judge Gooding was a life-long Republican, while his parents were Democrats: his father was Judge David S. Gooding, the Democratic orator of Indiana, who was marshal of the District of Columbia under President [illegible]

Appointment of former Judge Gooding as Chief Justice of the Arizona Supreme Court was signed by President Harrison in 1890, and he remained there for three and a half years. Ten appeals from his decisions were taken, and of these seven were affirmed, one reversed and [illegible]

Judge Gooding was a member of the Knights Templar, Grand Army of the Republic, Loyal Legion, Military Order of the Carabao and other societies. In former years he was a member of the law firm of Gardner, Gooding & Bodman. He leaves a widow and two children, Clay P. Gooding, of San Francisco, and Miss [illegible] Gooding of this city.

Services will be held at the Bresee Brothers chapel tomorrow afternoon. The interment, it is private, will be at Inglewood.

RED ENTRY IN BANDIT BOOKS

ABE MAKES A PROFIT WHEN HE IS HELD UP.

Highwayman Relieves Him of Eight Dollars at Gun's Point—He Grabs Gun and Recovers the Eight Dollars, Keeps Gun for Interest and Throws in a Kick for "Boot."

It is one of the maxims of Abe Rodella's business life that he never makes a deal without a profit. He kept it up yesterday by declaring a dividend after being the victim of a hold-up. His profits on the deal were one revolver and many thrills.

Abe was approaching his residence, No. 634 Mission road, early yesterday morning when two Mexicans stepped before him, and with the throaty eloquence of their craft, ordered his hands to be held up. Abe accommodated them. Eight dollars was taken from the victim, and Rodella says he thought there was one transaction that he would never make a profit on.

When he saw the leader of the two bandits count the money and slip it into his pocket, Abe decided to make a stand for at least a small rebate.

"Say, I'm way out here, and I need some money to get home with. Why don't you come across with a buck?" he suggested.

The Mexican felt charitable and handed Abe a dollar from the spoils. As he extended his hands, Abe struck the other hand, knocking the gun to the ground. He jumped, grabbed the weapon and with it held up the holdups. With his own hand he searched the bandit's pockets and retrieved all his stolen money. He looked for more but there was none.

Then he kept the revolver for the profit on the transaction and sent the bandits away, with a good substantial rebuke in the way of a boot to their rear.

Yesterday he reported his experience to the police. He loaned the department the revolver for a time, that it might be used to identify the criminals. Then it will be returned to Abe, for, as he says, he mustn't lose the profit on the deal.

FURIOUS MOB BEATS WOMEN.

Party Attacked by Horde of Maddened Mexicans.

Plucky Girls Drive Hoodlums Back; Both Hurt.

Picnic Band Wades in With Clubbed Instruments.

Assaulted and beaten into helplessness by a gang of twenty Mexicans led by a young Mexican woman at the end of the Edendale car line last night, two men and three women were taken to the Receiving Hospital where they were given emergency treatment for their injuries. When the ambulance arrived at the scene of the pitched battle the two victims of a vicious assault were unconscious by the side of the road, while the young women were hysterical, although less seriously injured.

The actual trouble was preceded by an effort on the part of several Mexicans to pick a fight with Harry Bidwell, No. 345 Howard street, Glendale, and Guy Long, No. 1350 Newton street, this city, at a dance in the Edendale auditorium earlier in the evening. The young men appealed to the police for protection at that time and the Mexicans were told to leave the place.

Bidwell and Long, accompanied by Mrs. Long, Mrs. Ethel Dorsey, a sister of Bidwell, and Miss Bessie Wehlgemuth, No. 2927 Partridge avenue, Edendale, subsequently went to the end of the car line on their way home.

ATTACKED BY MOB.

According to the story told the police at Central Station last night by the three young women, the men being too dazed to remember just what had occurred, about twenty Mexicans here attacked the party. A young Mexican woman known to them as Mrs. Harry Phillips, or Mrs. Otto Knox, who had previously had words with Miss Wehlgemuth, according to her story, was in the van of the attacking party. Using clubs and whatever weapons came handy, the Mexicans soon gained the upper hand in the unequal combat.

Seeing three men on top of her husband, who apparently was unconscious, Mrs. Long seized two of his assailants by the hair and endeavored to drag them away. One of the men caught her by the little finger of the left hand and twisted it until she almost fainted from the pain. Foiled in her attempt to aid her husband, the young woman was thrown to the side of the road while the men continued to rain blows upon the helpless victims.

In the meantime Mrs. Dorsey, who is athletic and exceptionally strong for a woman, was engaging in a hand-to-hand fight with others of the attacking party. Using hands, feet and teeth to good advantage the young woman fought her way to the side of her brother who was putting up a desperate fight against overwhelming odds. Finding the girl almost a match for any one of them, the Mexicans finally struck her in the face with their fists, driving her away so that room was made for a club which fell on Bidwell's head, crushing him to the ground.

CLUBBED INSTRUMENTS.

The screams of the frightened women and the exultant shouts of the gang were heard by a party of musicians at a German picnic near by and the musicians came to the rescue of the two men who were already unconscious. Clubbing their musical instruments the five musicians waded into the Mexicans, but were overcome by superior numbers and forced to retreat back to the auditorium.

News of the battle reached Central Police Station and a detail of officers in an automobile was hurried to Edendale. The auto arrived too late for the officers to catch the members of the attacking pary last night although from information furnished by the victims subsequently, it is thought arrests may follow today.

Although still dazed from the effects of the terrible beating, the two men were able to go to their homes last night after having rested several hours in the Receiving Hospital. Mrs. Long and Mrs. Dorsey remained with their injured kin-folk and helped them home.

JOY-RIDERS ARRESTED.

Young Girls Lured to Drink and Carousal, According to Policeman's Report.

Three men and two young girls in a stolen automobile were arrested at Central and Vernon avenues late last night by Patrolman Hawes. The efforts of the men to secure another young girl to join them in a contemplated joy-ride brought about the arrest of the entire party.

Edward J. Humly, a salesman for the Edison Electric Company, living at No. 3055 Fourth avenue, is said to have been at the wheel of the car when the arrests were made. In the car with him were Robert Tilson, No. 737 East Twenty-eighth street; James Commack, No. 1308 West Fifty-first place; Effie Beers, 15 years old, living at No. 1442 East Forty-third street, and Mabel Cormerr, 17 years old, of No. 1452 East Forty-sixth street.

The party, with abundant liquid refreshments, started for a joy-ride but decided to pick up another girl inasmuch as there were three men and only two girls. At Vernon and Central they hailed Lulu Hurlburt, 14 years old, and endeavored to persuade her to join them. A brother-in-law of the young girl interfered and in the altercation which ensued the attention of the policeman was attracted. All parties concerned were taken to University Station where subsequently all were released except Humly, who is held on suspicion.

The stolen car belongs to J. W. Reed, No. 1033 Western avenue, and was stolen the night of September 13. Rumors to the effect that the car has been used to take young girls to Riverside and other places are being investigated by the police.

Women Heroines of Hand-to-Hand Battle.

In desperate fight with Mexican mob,

LAST DESPERATE STAND ON THE MOUNTAIN TOP.

Half a Thousand Smoke-Blackened, Nearly Exhausted Men Rally on Sister Elsie Peak in Final Effort to Stay Rush of Forest Fire Toward Arroyo Seco—Shift of the Wind May Save Hundreds of Homes.

WITH THE thickly populated Arroyo Seco as its prospective prey the great forest fire last night baffled half a thousand fighters and darted off to the northeast around the scorched skirts of Sister Elsie mountain.

Another shaft of flame, fed by heavy underbrush and sparse timber, shot toward the northwest into the forest-covered slopes of Tejunga Canyon, on the north side of Sister Elsie.

Since Saturday morning this great conflagration in the mountains bounding La Crescenta Valley, started by a careless bonfire in Haynes Canyon, has burned over ten square miles, and after having been diverted from the Arroyo Seco and other watersheds is again threatening that drainage as well as imperiling over 300 homes in the Arroyo.

Smoke-begrimed, exhausted in the battle against the onsweeping flames, scores of the fighters were laid off yesterday while calls for help were sent in every direction. Ranchers and their wives battled side by side, volunteers joined half a dozen fighting squads and finally the Los Angeles police were called upon. From the Central Station word went out over the city to all policemen to enlist all volunteers who cared to work

WRECK BURIES CRUSHED PAIR.

Hurled Far in Spectacular Hyde Park Collision.

Little Girl Escapes Death as by a Miracle.

An old man and his wife were probably fatally hurt, another woman was seriously injured, and her child had a miraculous escape from death in a spectacular auto smash-up at Hyde Park yesterday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Emiel Plathe of Redondo Villa, are at the Clara Barton Hospital in a critical condition, both probably suffering from fractured skulls and internal injuries. At her home near Pico Station, Mrs. Henry Hall is suffering from a broken collar bone, bruises about the head and internal injuries.

Dolores Hall, 7 years old, who was sitting on her mother's lap at the time of the accident, escaped unscathed after being hurled through the air for twenty feet.

Henry Hall was driving along the Redondo road in his automobile yesterday morning, bound for the city. At his side was his wife, and on her lap was their daughter. In the tonneau of the car were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barber. Barber is a partner of Hall's in the well-drilling business and both live with their families near Pico Station, west of Whittier.

CRASH INTO WAGON.

As Hall's machine neared Hyde Park he started to go around another machine in front of him. Ahead of the other car was a wagon, upon the high seat of which sat Mr. and Mrs. Plathe. Hall passed the auto ahead of him and before he could stop the car he had crashed into the wagon. Plathe and his wife were hurled from their high seat at the impact.

For some unexplained reason, Hall was unable to stop his car and the machine pushed the Plathe wagon along several feet, finally dumping it on the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Plathe, who were lying at the side of the road.

Mrs. Hall was thrown from the seat of the car and her daughter, loosed from her arms, was catapulted through the air. The little girl was thrown beyond the mix-up, but her mother was in the center of it.

Mrs. Hall was unconscious when picked up and was placed in her husband's machine and taken home.

Plathe is 56 years old. His wife, who is 52, was accompanying him to the city to visit her sister, Mrs. Carrie Parks, at the Roosevelt Apartments, No. 324 Figueroa street.

Both were knocked senseless by the fall from the wagon and were still unconscious when the wagon fell over upon them. The horse stood quietly by the wreckage until he was released.

Witnesses of the accident who live in the neighborhood, took Mr. and Mrs. Plathe to the office of Dr. Frank Tillman in Hyde Park, where their wounds were dressed. Dr. Tillman called Pierce Brothers' ambulance and the injured persons were taken to the Clara Barton.

BADLY INJURED.

Mrs. Plathe has a fractured skull, internal injuries and her nose is badly broken, while she has severe bruises about the body.

Dr. Tillman, who is attending the Plathes, says that their injuries are very serious, and perhaps fatal, but that the extent cannot be determined for several hours.

Shortly after the accident occurred witnesses stated that the occupants of the automobile disappeared without waiting to help the injured persons. This is accounted for by Hall who reported later to Deputy Sheriff Thomas at Whittier that he had been in an auto smash-up, but had not waited because his wife was hurt and he was anxious to get her home. He said that while he was attending his wife, Plathe and his wife were taken away and he did not have a chance to learn their identity or to what hospital they were taken.

BASEBALL BETTERS NABBED.

Four Men Charged With Openly Offering Wagers in Defiance of the Gambling Law.

Frequent complaints to the police, charging open gambling at the ball parks, brought about the arrest of four men at the close of the game Saturday afternoon at Washington Park. The men who gave the names of James Boxall, Frank Taylor, Lee Evans and James Hamilton, were taken to the University Station and released on bail.

According to the police the betting was carried on openly. Several men stood in the reserved seat section and formed a pool to take all bets offered. These men wagered on the result of any single inning, on the length of time a pitcher would last, on whether or not any given batter would get a "hit;" in fact, upon any phase of the game that appealed to the sporting blood of the spectators.

Plain-clothes men Berry, Cline, Bean and Luth of the University Station, worked on the case two weeks before making the arrest Saturday. The officers say there is no indication of crooked work in connection with the betting. It is simply a plain proposition of betting. According to reports made to the police several prominent men have lost large sums recently at the Los Angeles and Venice ball grounds, betting on the result of various games.

Los Angeles Pioneer in New Way of Teaching.

Parallel Experiments Upon Americans, Aliens.

A Montessori School, the first in California, and one of the first in the country, will open its doors in Los Angeles within the next few weeks, in one of the west-end schools not yet definitely decided upon. Another will be opened later at Seventh-street school, in the afternoon. The apparatus is already on hand.

Miss Katherine Moore, formerly a kindergarten teacher of this city and who has just returned from Rome with a diploma from Dr. Maria Montessori's School, will have charge, teaching the principles laid down by the pioneer who has hewed a new way through the pedagogue's maze of problems. The school is established in answer to a long-continued call for such an institution in this city. Miss Moore has received several flattering offers to introduce the work in eastern cities, but refuses to leave Los Angeles.

The school at East Seventh street will be an outdoor school, as the work of Montessori lends itself ideally to open-air conditions, through gardening and nature study, as well as apparatus exercise. The children there are nearly all foreigners, those of the other school to be selected will be American born (or the most part, the idea being to note results with both classes of children.

THE MONTESSORI SYSTEM.

The keynote of the system is individualism, the Montessori method insisting upon individual instead of class teaching, also upon the child, rather than the teacher, taking the initiative, whether in work or play. The teacher presents the lesson; the child works it out for himself.

"The underlying principle of Montessori is freedom to develop in whole completeness," said Miss Moore. "Dr. Montessori believes in a mental hygiene as well as a physical hygiene. Conditions necessary to freedom she says are: Space, great elimination of teacher's initiative, and freedom to choose work which at any particular moment is the one thing necessary

EMULATION OF OUR HIGHWAYS.

Officials and Business Men After Good Roads.

"This Is an Inspiration to Us," Says Supervisor.

Twenty-five representative men of Kern county, including farmers, merchants and public officials, spent yesterday inspecting important county, State and private road work in the vicinity of Los Angeles from the vantage of eight touring cars provided by H. J. Whitley, general manager of the Los Angeles Suburban Homes Company, and his business associates in that organization. The main objective point of the Kern county delegation was the studying at first hand of the magnificent private boulevard systems of the San Fernando Valley. As guests of the developers of these great road projects, however, they were given the opportunity to see some of the finest stretches of the Los Angeles county good roads and the ten-mile strip of the State highway that was completed about two months ago just above Cahuenga Pass.

Prominent among the Kern county visitors were Supervisor J. M. Bush, Sheriff T. A. Baker, J. W. Sumner, engineer of the county highway system; C. F. Johnson, president of the Kern County Board of Trade, and A. W. Mason, publisher of the Bakersfield Echo. The following farmers and business men, all from Bakersfield and vicinity, were in the party: G. A. Richards, H. R. Seat, J. F. Fobler, W. L. Smith, W. B. Moore, R. P. Wible, J. O. O'Brien, J. Cuta, C. B. Alexander, J. F. Kerr, F. A. Marriott, Thomas Klipstein, J. H. Stevenson, Harry W. McCray, Walter James, F. F. McCray, F. Tegeler, Sam Agg and P. J. O'Brien. The majority were successful farmers from the rich "Weed Patch" district to the southeast of Bakersfield. They are registered at the Hayward.

As guests also of Whitley and his associates the party included Supervisors Hinshaw and Norton of Los Angeles county; H. C. Fryman, proprietor of the Hayward Hotel; W. G. Wigdal, president of the Home Savings Bank; Charles Kant, vice-president of the Barber Asphalt Company; Richard Wigdal, Thomas E. Gibbon, G. W. Saurett, H. T. Coffin, Charles Thurston, George Hanna, R. T. Neely and Robert Sherman, all of Los Angeles.

TO PROFIT BY EXAMPLE.

The Kern county men made their inspection of the Los Angeles county roadways that they might be prepared to profit by the experience of the highway builders of this section when various road work projected or now being considered in the Bakersfield district becomes a reality. Ever since the State highway through Bakersfield became a certainty the citizens of that city and vicinity have talked roads.

Out of the talk grew a great bond issue covering the cost of many miles of the county highway, but this was not enough. Bakersfield and its adjacent country, and especially the fertile "Weed Patch," began to think a few months ago not of new roads alone, but of new road systems, embracing beautiful tree-lined boulevards and smooth, lateral streets, in a great gridiron of highway development. They saw in perspective the huge acreage tracts that now stretch away from Bakersfield as subdivided holdings supporting thousands of prosperous cultivators of the soil. The good roads question began to loom in importance.

The projected county roads out of Bakersfield will be started in sixty days. One of these will extend to the south, skirting the very edge of the "Weed Patch." Another will branch off from the State Highway seven miles below Bakersfield to an intersection with the first named county highway. With two good roads assured, but both slated to stop abruptly at the edge of their 54,000-acre body of productive and highly developed ground, the dwellers in the "Weed Patch" are thinking hard. They have just about made up their minds that the next step in the Kern county good roads programme should be the construction of a well-paved highway extending along the entire length of their district and on into the great Tejon ranches to a connection with the State Highway just north of Tejon Pass.

TOUR OF INSPIRATION.

No definite plans have been evolved thus far. The men who drove over the good roads of Los Angeles county yesterday knew that the successful outcome of their ambitions toward highway construction depends largely upon themselves. They realize that such roads, if they are ever built, must come about as the result of harmony and co-operation between their county officials and private owners. They had been invited to inspect the successful results of this kind of co-operation in the San Fernando Valley. One and all avowed that the tour of yesterday had been an inspiration and that the wonderful work of development accomplished under the management and supervision of H. J. Whitley should stir the Kern county land owners to action.

The party was taken out Wilshire boulevard to Santa Monica and Venice, brought back over Washington boulevard to a point just south of Beverly and then driven over the foothill boulevard to Hollywood. After an inspection of the northwest suburb, with its splendid streets, the visitors were driven through Cahuenga Pass, over a stretch of the State Highway and onto the magnificent $500,000 boulevard constructed by the developers of the San Fernando Valley. They were shown every important piece of roadwork in the valley, taken to the San Fernando reservoir, shown the aqueduct and driven down the county highway to Glendale. A chicken dinner was served them at Owensmouth.

From the San Fernando Valley, with its interesting variety of roads, public and private, the party was driven up through Verdugo Canyon, Montrose, La Canada and the Devil's Gap into Altadena, where the tourists were shown the beautiful lanes of Cedrus Deodrus that line the roads of that section. Throughout the trip careful observations were made upon the various planting along the highways, especially in the San Fernando Valley. The last leg of the journey took the party through Pasadena to a finish at the Hayward Hotel.

MERITED PRAISE.

In discussing the visit of the Kern county delegation last night, Supervisor Bush gave it as his opinion that Kern county would be willing to meet any move for a comprehensive good roads system in that part of the State more than half way. "Los Angeles county has demonstrated to the world the value of a really first-class highway system," he said. "Kern county must get in line with the good roads idea if it is to realize to the fullest measure its possibilities for development. The San Fernando Valley roads are splendid and should inspire our land owners to emulation. I believe our opportunity in Kern county is as great as that in Los Angeles county. I wish every citizen in Bakersfield and vicinity could see at first hand the wonderful roadways constructed by the public and by private means in Los Angeles county. If they could, I am sure we would have a new highway system right away."

The Kern county visitors without exception expressed their great interest in the plans of the Los Angeles & San Joaquin Valley Railway Company for constructing a railroad from Los Angeles to the Sunset, Midway and McKittrick oil fields, with a temporary terminus at Olig. The project, which was evolved and which is now being promoted by Thomas E. Gibbon of this city, calls for a line to extend from Los Angeles, through Glendale and Newhall, through the east end of the Santa Clara Valley, by way of Castac Canyon to Tejon Pass and then by way of Rosedale Station to the oil territory.

An equal interest was displayed in a plan now beginning to mature, for running an electric line along the route of the county highway that is to be built from the eastern edge of that city to the southward. The farmers of the Weed Patch district and others in the same vicinity, according to the visitors of yesterday, are eager for such a road to be built and that it should be extended on to the southeast to Rosedale Station.

Quips on the Suffragettes.

Here are some of the results:

A suffragette is a woman who thinks she has been de-voted long enough.

Not satisfied with the last word, she also wants the first.

She is the corset needed to reduce the government waste.

She is woman who needs the "oil" for her vaulting ambition.

A woman who would rather rock the country than the cradle.

A woman who will spare no panes to get her rights.

A female creature, queer and quaint,
Who longs to be just what she ain't;
The hen that would cackle adn never set
Is the woman known as a suffragette.

We can't efface, we can't forget her,
We love her still—the stiller the better.

Arizona.

TWO SURVEYS FOR NEW LINE.

Ajo in Arizona Is Terminal of Both Surveys.

One Runs from Gila Bend, Other from Tucson.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

TUCSON (Ariz.) Sept. 12.—It is understood that the railroad survey now being made by the Calumet and Arizona Mining Company between this city and Ajo, is to be compared with the relative advantages of a branch road to Ajo from the Southern Pacific station of Gila Bend. Ajo is near the Mexican border, about 135 miles from Tucson by the railroad survey, while from Gila Bend it could be reached by a railroad only forty-two miles long. Few construction difficulties would be encountered on either route. The people of Tucson are keenly interested in the matter, as they hope to see the projected new road westward a link in a Rock Island connection with the Coast. But no decision to this effect is understood to have yet been reached by the Calumet and Arizona or the El Paso and Southwestern Railroad system, which comprises the western divisions of the Rock Island.

KRUTTSCHNITT PLEADS GUILTY.

T. H. Kruttschnitt, assistant superintendent of the Arizona division of the Southern Pacific Railroad, has been arrested on a charge of assault upon Allan B. Jaynes, owner of the Tucson Citizen and Clerk of the United States District Court. The defendant has pleaded guilty. He is reported to have also assaulted Editor Hubert Hunter in the Citizen office. The reason for the assaults is given as the publication in the Citizen of an item that recited that Kruttschnitt had been sued by his divorced wife, Mrs. Violetta Kruttschnitt, for alimony of $150 a month, said to have been in default since March 1 last. She secured a divorce March 22, alleging cruelty and abuse. Since that date the defendant has remarried. In the Citizen item reference was made also to an attachment of Kruttschnitt's automobile by the Arizona National Bank on account of an overdue note for $250. He is son of Julius Kruttschnitt, one of the managing directors of the Harriman railroad systems.

UNDERGROUND WIRES.

ACTRESS GOES FREE.

The arrest of a vaudeville actress on the streets of Tucson on a charge of indecent dressing materialized as nothing more than an attempt to secure gratuitous advertising for a show in which the woman appeared. She was released by the police judge without fine, after a trial in which a female jury was denied and in which a dressmaker testified that the offending diaphanous gown would not have been considered extraordinary in New York and that, with pink tights beneath, as shown in the evidence, the effect would be "very delicate."

ARRESTED IN NOGALES.

J. E. Barker has been arrested in Nogales, charged with attempting to negotiate a $1200 check drawn upon a Portland (Or.) bank. It is stated that he had had made in Phoenix rubber stamps for the certification of checks forged by him.

O'KEEFE READY TO QUIT.

From Nogales is reported that Cornelius O'Keefe, Collector of Customs, whose resignation lately was demanded by the Secretary of the Treasury, will not protest, and that the resignation has been or soon will be submitted. O'Keefe has large business interests in Nogales and has no desire to continue in office.

MAROONED ON DESERT.

An odd experience was that of F. E. Vasser, a mining man, and six teamsters, marooned with thirty-six horses and six ore wagons on a desert island in Bowles Wash, forty miles southwest of Tucson. They had reached raised ground in the middle of the ordinarily dry wash when the channels on either side were filled by rushing torrents from a desert cloudburst. They were released a couple of days later by subsidence of the flood.

PAPER WANTS A MANAGER.

The Duncan Arizonan advertises that it wants a manager, who should be "a live, energetic, practical, sober printer, with a little horse sense." Though the town is about 95 per cent. Democratic, recourse has had to be had to the Republican postmaster, who was temporarily conducting the sheet at last accounts.

BANQUET FOR JUDGE.

On the evening of September 18 the Pima County Bar Association will tender a complimentary banquet to Judge William H. Sawtelle, for years a member of the association, lately appointed United States judge for the district of Arizona.

SENT TO FEDERAL HOSPITAL.

Capt. Stephen O'Conner, U.S.A., retired, is said to have become permanently deranged in mind and to have been taken to a government hospital. He was arrested a year ago near Nogales, charged with deadly assault upon a mining man, but then was adjudged unbalanced and was sent to the State Insane Asylum at Phoenix. Latterly he has been cared for by relatives at El Paso.

BOUND FOR LOS ANGELES.

C. E. Hutchinson has been succeeded by H. Haley of Carson City, Nev., as agent for Wells Fargo & Co. in Tucson, and will go to Los Angeles, there to take charge of the express business on the Pacific Electric lines.

Exalting the Red, White and Green.

Two Spanish beauties,

Who will celebrate Mexican Independence Day with characteristic dances at the fiesta at Wild Animal Farm tomorrow afternoon. They are Beatrice Domingues ("La Belle Sevilla") left and Myrtle Gonsales.

GRAN CELEBRACION DE LA LIBERTAD DE MEXICO.

FEATURED in the Los Angeles celebration of the National Independence Day of Mexico tomorrow—the 103rd anniversary of the sister republic to the south—will be some very pretty dancing in costume by a number of the younger set of Mexicans and Spaniards in the city, some of whom are but recently come from the land of the Don, but whose sympathies are wholly on the side of popular government.

Emilio Gonzalez, a recent arrival from Seville, whose knowledge of the English language corresponds to his length of residence in the United States, is none the less an ardent republican as opposed to a monarchy, and heartily enters into the spirit of the celebration of attaining Mexican independence from Spain, over a century ago.

"Gonzalez, who plays Spanish airs with fine effect on guitar and banjo, is acting as director of a quintette which will appear in a number of native dances at a concert to be held tomorrow evening at Turner Hall, in connection with the programme mapped out by the Cura Hidalgo Club. These dances will include the Spanish Tango, the Quinteto Sevilla and Cantes, Bailes y Teques Flamencos. The other members of the quintette are: Jose Arias and the Misses Beatrice Dominguez, known in local Spanish circles as "La Belle Sevilla," Myrtle Gonsales and Eloisa Olivas.

During the ball at Turner Hall tonight, which opens the festivities planned by the Cura Hidalgo Club, a diversion will be injected into the proceedings when, at midnight, Prof. F. del Pozo will read the "Grito," which corresponds to the Declaration of Independence of this country.

The Mexican Independence Day also will be observed by another organization of Latin-Americans in the city—La Junta Patriotica de Los Angeles—which will have a two-days' celebration, beginning tonight at Blanchard Hall, with an evening of patriotic songs and addresses, together with dancing and singing in native costume by well-known local performers. Frank Domingues will be the principal speaker. A ball is scheduled by the junta for tomorrow night, and 2000 invitations have been issued.

Good News.

GREAT DESIRE NOW REALITY.

LOS ANGELES TO GET LITTLE THEATER.

Miniature Playhouse for the Production of World-Famous Dramas Now in Process of Construction. To Be Under Blackwood Management—All Seats Two Dollars.

The Los Angeles Little Theater, for the past year or so regarded very much in the light of a cherished hope by many of the city's most prominent theatrical people, became an actuality Saturday when a lease for the theater was signed and John H. Blackwood was engaged to manage the playhouse.

New York, Chicago and Philadelphia boast of Little Theaters that are conducted along very much the same general lines that will mark the direction of the local Little Theater, but none of them has the substantial backing that more than a score of Los Angeles' best known and most influential citizens have given to the latest innovation in local theatricals.

New York's Little Theater, under the direction of Mr. Winthrop Ames, and the Chicago and Philadelphia theaters have been unusually successful and have added so much novelty to the theatrical history of this trio of cities that they have now become permanent institutions in which the highest type of the drama of literary and theatrical values is made known.

NOW UNDERWAY.

The Los Angeles Little Theater will be located on Figueroa street, south of Pico. The structure will cost $150,000. The building is so far advanced in construction that it is expected the first performances in the Little Theater will be given about the second or third week in November.

The Executive Committee representing the subscribers to the Little Theater guarantee fund, and consisting of A. C. Balch, chairman, Robert N. Bulla, Charles Modini-Wood, Louis M. Cole and Benjamin Johnson, have signed a lease with Frank C. Egan for the Little Theater for a term of years. The theater will seat only 350 persons. There will be neither balcony nor boxes. The seat charge will be two dollars.

Plays representing the world's foremost dramatists will occupy the attention of The Little Theater company and for the first time in the entire West, play-goers will have the opportunity of witnessing performances of the best plays of Brieux, Schnitzler, Shaw, Masterlinck, Mackaye, Strindberg and other writers of equal repute and worth, as well as the compositions of native writers for the stage, and in many instances these plays will be given at the local Little Theater for the first time in America.

The Little Theater will afford the American dramatist whose product combines literary merit with dramatic worth, the same chance for exploitation that is extended to the brilliant dramatists of Europe and the native work will be given the same complete production as if presented in Paris, Berlin or London.

As an ethical venture, pure and simple, the career of the Los Angeles Little Theater will be noted with no little interest. Its performances will center the attention of the theatrical world upon Los Angeles where new things are constantly being provided, whether they belong to the world of finance, of engineering or whether they relate to the realm of the stage and literature.

It is the intention of the management of the Little Theater to make the playhouse one of the most comfortable and beautiful in the world. To this end contracts have been let for theater chairs that will not only be primarily designed with an idea to the comfort of the occupant, but at the same time they will be the handsomest chairs that ever have been introduced in an American playhouse. The furnishings of the Little Theater will be quiet in tone, restful to the eye, lacking entirely in garish effect. Even the time-honored theater orchestra playing ragtime will be supplanted by a quartette of musicians that will play chamber and other music of an inspiring character. This quartette will consist of a first and second violin, viola and 'cello.

The stage of the Little Theater will be the same size as the average stage to be found in any city playhouse. It will be right up to the moment in the matter of theatrical equipment and will make known many innovations in stage lighting. The theater will have large and splendidly-appointed rooms for the women and men patrons, a commodious green room—a resurrection of Augustin Daly's influence on the American stage—wherein it will be possible for the theater-goers and the players of the Little Theater company to mingle in a social way.

Manager Blackwood hopes from time to time to bring some of the world's most noted players to Los Angeles to appear with the Little Theater company and in plays in which these stars have achieved success in other cities.

The regular company of the little Theater will consist of from eighteen to twenty players. There will be no leading man nor leading woman of the conventional type—rather, there will be an organization of splendidly-equipped players of experience and actual worth, each of whom will play the part for which he or she may be best adapted. Team work will be the aim of the management rather than individual success of the player.

Matinee performances will be given at the Little Theater every Thursday and Saturday with night performances throughout the week. There will be no performances on Sunday.

Blackwood will leave for New York in a few days to complete the work of selecting the company for the Little Theater.

The list of subscribers to the guarantee fund of the Little Theater includes many of the most prominent men in Los Angeles financial, professional and social life. The complete list of the subscribers follows:

H. E. Huntington, A. C. Balch, E. P. Clark, E. L. Doheny, William May Kerckhoff, Lee Phillips, William May Garland, W. H. Holliday, Harry Chandler, Stoddard Jess, Louis M. Cole, James Slauson, E. T. MAKES HIS BOW IN NEW PULPIT.

DR. SHAW CORDIALLY GREETED BY IMMANUEL CHURCH.

He Preaches Two Sermons and Delivers an Address in His First Sunday's Work — Noted Chicago Preacher Becomes Angeleno, Believing He Has Wider Field.

Los Angeles received an addition yesterday to its already long list of eminent preachers when Dr. John Balcom Shaw entered upon his ministry at Immanuel Presbyterian Church, which has been without a pastor for about a year.

Dr. Shaw, who is one of the country's most noted religious leaders and pulpit orators, was induced to leave his great work in Chicago only in the belief that a wider field lies here. His activities cover a wide range and include especial prominence in Biblical research and Y.M.C.A. work.

His first day "in harness" was a busy one, and he addressed three large audiences. In the morning at Immanuel Church his own people and hundreds of others to whom his reputation is known, turned out to greet him and listen to his initial sermon on "The Parallelogram of Love." Following the service an impromptu reception and handshake must have convinced the doctor that he had at last reached home.

In the afternoon at a men's meeting in the Y.M.C.A. Dr. Shaw talked about "The Young Man in White," and in the evening concluded the day with another able sermon on "The Greatest Thing in the World." A number of local clergymen were present, and these, together with the association officers and directors, took advantage of the opportunity to come Dr. Shaw to his new field.

The organization of Immanuel has been well preserved during the interim since the resignation of Hugh K. Walker, and under the leadership plans are already afoot for the future development and extension of the church work in all department.

In the morning sermon, which in his new home, Dr. Shaw delivered to a congregation that filled the church, and the strength of the men was largely in evidence, his text was from the first epistle of John. "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish but have everlasting life."

With this text for a foundation he discussed love's power, saying that God so loved the world that He gave His Son, "that he gave His best, His all, His heart, His life, His soul, His depth; "that he gave His only begotten Son," that is the best gift; that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, that is the best; that they have everlasting life," that is the best; length, and so the height, breadth, formed of depth, breadth and length, all based on God's love.

Before Dr. Shaw had been in Los Angeles twelve hours he had become a booster, and during the course of his address he mentioned the fact that he was not enforced by a dignantly repudiated the charge. "Too just as hot as Chicago," he said.

"Should the Protestant adopt the confessional?"

"The confessional as used by some of the churches assumes the confessor in God's vice-regency, from whom the suppliant must divulge the innermost secrets of his and his thoughts. The confessor then imposes sanctions of penance, and assumes the prerogative of high heaven to remit sins and sacrilegiously declares to absolve you.'

"A church which uses the confessional in a certain book of its rituals says: 'God rules on earth through His priests; and gave them also the divine right to forgive men of their sins.'

"To up this seems preposterous and ludicrously presumptuous. We believe we should confess our sins to God alone. I need not speak at length of the inevitable dangers and tendencies of the priestly confessional. Nothing I have said is in the spirit of unkind or caustic criticism.

"Does a college education ruin a man?

"That depends upon the man who takes it. And no doubt it is true that because the children of prosperous parents more easily obtain a college education available, and because further, often these same children do not fully appreciate their opportunities, a college education sometimes does not pay. Hard work for a man or in a blacksmith shop is one of this pampered progeny's prosperity would pay better.

"It is quite the vogue among some people to discount a college education. Persons, like one well-known who should have known better, declare that the college is responsible for making good, because some of the college correspondents misspell words, or were guilty of bad rhetoric; or because a certain man was first declared it would no longer be necessary college graduates. If a man is a three-fold personality, physical, mental and spiritual, then anything which will help him to develop his spiritual perfection in any of the three particulars will certainly be a advantage to him. That such is undoubtedly the case has been shown by a diligent man who has made a study of the names found in 'Who's Who in America.' Of those 16,000 persons, none are without education; only twenty-four are self-taught; 1000 are home-taught; 1044 had a common-school education only, while 9000 attended college. That is, a common-school gives a man one chance in 9000, a High School increases his chances to twenty-two, while the college trained man has as many chances as the High School boy, and 200 times as many as the boy who did not get beyond the common school.

"The college is making good when men who go to college make good. A college education will pay any man who will put his time to his training. I advise, by all means, young people, to go to college, go to college! Work your way through if necessary, as I had to do, but go to college. There is a way if there is a will, for the will makes a way.

"Why do some people go to church?

"For the same reason that they go to sleep everywhere else, because they cannot keep awake. Any mere assertion will make some people sleep. Many people are overworked in their bodies and nerves, and when they relax they invariably get sleepy. Some people go to sleep in church there are many causes: the preacher may be too profound, or the sermon may be too tedious, or the church may be too heavy, or the church may be too tired. When people going to sleep in church is a reasonable habit. Such people ought to take a nap in church, and not be ashamed of themselves. They have to take a sleep at home, and the service they could easily dispense with themselves of the habit.

"Sleeping in church is a sure sign of advancing years, and I advise any of you to fight this symptom, for as your sets may be in harmony with your lordly-proclaimed assertions that you are just as young as you ever were. Fewer women sleep in church than men because they are more successful in warding off the habit.

"Should a woman who has been divorced be taken into the home of respectable people?

"Why was a good woman so high and exalted as today. Consider as to what shall be the attitude toward the woman who has sinned. Should she be stoned to death? By no means, not unless the husband, or more to blame shall be stoned. Shall she be ostracized? It is inevitable that consequent punishment will follow misdeeds, but if she sincerely repents and is determined to lead a spotless life, she should be given every chance. This, however, it is impossible for her to do if she remains in the midst of the scenes where her mistakes were made. It would greatly enhance the glory of Christ and result in the salvation of many immortal souls, and bring much peace and blessings to the worthy but neglected ones, if they are so situated in their lives that it is practicable, could publicity take into their family girls who have strayed.

"What is your opinion of vivisection?

"Vivisection should be more properly called animal experimentation. Sometimes things are reported concerning the cruelties of vivisection which, I am told by experts, are not borne out by the facts. I am told that anaesthetics are administered when animals are experimented upon so that the suffering is entailed, and to be reasonably satisfactory. I am not for an anti-vivisection law that would hamper scientific investigation in any way that country, and I am opposed to depend upon the experiments in this country. We should have the faithful men who are seeking to find antidotes for the terrible diseases of mankind, and by erecting hindrances. But I do believe in flogging for cruelty, and a generous one at that. There have such a law in force, but it was not enforced by a humane Sheriff. He ought to be arrested and sent home to his wife and children. If a man who should be well beaten by some sort of a patent machine set to hard work, and the proceeds of his labor handed to his wife and children. If a man is a brute he must be treated by methods until he is

IN THE CHURCHES YESTERDAY

DR. LOCKE.
FIRST METHODIST CHURCH.
INTERESTING QUESTIONS FROM SUNDAY LIFE AND A PASTOR'S ANSWERS.

At the First Methodist Episcopal Church last evening, after a short sermon on "Barabbas or Christ," Dr. Locke opened his monthly question and letter box, and among those answered the following questions:

"Should the Protestant Church have the confessional?"

"The confessional as used by some of the churches assumes that the priest in God's vice-regrant, to whom the suppliant must divulge all the secret secrets of his acts and motives. The confessor then makes some form of penance, and, assuming the prerogative of high heaven solemnly and mercifully declares: 'I absolve you.'

"A church which uses the confessional is a certain book of instructions says: 'God rules on earth by delegation; and gave them alone the power and right to forgive men of their sins.'

"To us this seems preposterous and almost presumptuous. We believe we should confess our sins to Jesus Christ. I need not speak at this time of the inevitable dangers and pitfalls of the priestly confessional, nothing I have said is in the spirit of unkind or caustic criticism. 'Does a college education pay.' That depends upon the person who takes it. And no doubt it is true because the children of wealthy parents more easily find the higher education available, and because father, often these same children do not fully appreciate their opportunities, a college education for them does not pay. Hard work on the farm or in a blacksmith shop for one of this pampered progeny of wealth would pay better.

"It is quite the vogue among some people to discount a college education. Persons, like one well-known man, who should have known better, believe that the college is not worth while because some of his correspondents misspelled a word, or were guilty of faulty rhetoric, or because a certain business man declared it would no longer employ college graduates. If a man is well-rounded personality, physical, mental and spiritual, then anything which will help him to develop in any one of these particulars will certainly be an asset to him. That such is undoubtedly the case has been shown by every great man who has made a success of the games found in 'Who's Who in America.' Of these 10,704 men who are without education; 1000 were four-are self-taught; 278 were self-taught; 1066 had a commercial education only, 1627 went as far as the High School, and 2000 had a classical college. That is to say, a common-school gives a man about one in 9000, a High School gives his chances to twenty-two, while a college trained man has ten times as many chances as the High School man, and 200 times as many as those who did not get beyond the grammar school.

"A college is making good even when one who go to college do not good. A college education may not say any man who will pay for it has to his training. I advise all young people, go to college! Work your way through if necessary, as I had to do, but go to college. There is a way if there is a will makes a way.

"The same reason people go to sleep in church. The same reason that they sleep everywhere else, because they have no brains. Any mental exercise will make some people sleepy. Many people are overworked in their homes and nerves, and when they are they invariably get sleepy. They go to sleep in church there are many causes; the preacher may be too profound, or the theme may be too tedious, or the hour may be too heavy, or the preacher may be too tired. With some people going to sleep in church is a habit. Such people take a nap in church, and are ashamed of themselves. If they were to take a sleep at home in the service they could easily get rid of the habit.

"Sleeping in church is a sure sign of advancing years, and I advise all of you to fight this symptom, which may be in harmony with the so-called proclaimed assertions of my host as young as you are. Fewer women sleep in church than men because they are interested in warding off the sleep.

"Should a woman who has been divorced be taken into the homes of good people?"

"Why not? A good woman so highly exalted as today. Conduct is a question of supreme importance to what shall be the fate of the woman who has been divorced she be stoned to death? I say no, not unless the divorcee is more to blame shall she be ostracized. It is inevitable that consequent punishment will follow, but if she sinned but if she is determined to lead a new life, she should be given a chance. This, however, it is impossible for her to do when in the midst of the scenes her mistakes were made. Change would greatly enhance the chances and result in the saving of immortal souls, and the reformation and blessings to the neglected ones, if she were situated in their midst. It is practicable, could they take into their family who have strayed. That is your opinion of vivisection?

"Animals should be more properly used for experimentation. Many things are reported of the cruelties of vivisection are not borne out by the facts. I am told that anaesthetics are administered upon so that the animal is stupefied, and the results are satisfactory.

"Is there an anti-vivisection law in this country, and is it dependent upon the existence of this country. We have faithful men who are willing to find antidotes for every possible help to humanity's kindnesses. But through they will find a cure for tuberculosis, cancer, and other devastating diseases. God forbid.

"Is it right to believe in fogging for the sake of a generous one who may have such a law in force, but not enforced by a sheriff. He ought to be sent home to his wife and sent home to his wife. A red-blooded officer of the law. A man who would be well beaten up in the course of a patent medicine fight, which is hard work, and the labor handed out to wife and children. If a man must be treated until he is

FIRST UNITED BRETHREN.
THE CHURCH OF THE OPEN DOOR IS THE ONLY REAL GATEWAY INTO HEAVEN.

Dr. John Albert Eby of the First United Brethren Church took as the subject of his sermon last night "The Church of the Open Door," and his text, Isa. 60:11, ("Thy gates shall be open continually. They shall not be shut day nor night," and said in part:

"The prophet Isaiah saw it as an eternal city of refuge and a city of increasing wealth and power. The gates were always to be open. The note of triumph is one which the church of today needs to catch up. Its gates should be open. Of all things in which men may produce monopolies the church and religion should be the last. It is too late in the day for any particular sect to deceive itself and attempt to fool the world into the belief that in it alone is found the 'summum bonum' of the world. The church should keep its doors and its windows open for the breezes of fresh air and the streaming sunlight that the great outdoors offers. A church with a closed door is no more than a tomb where men may bury themselves from the sight and contact with the big world all about.

"Some way it is hard for me to think of some men as insiders and others as outsiders. I do not like high fences. They are usually spite fences. The church has no right to divide men into sects and schisms. The church door should be wide open to admit the riches of the world's best gifts for the race. We of the church could be much better men and women and children if we had with us the multitudes of men and women whom we have turned our backs upon as not being our particular stripe, as not having our particular shibboleth. The one reason why the stiff-necked Pharisees did not like Jesus Christ was because he absolutely refused to recognize the artificial and man-made lines of demarcation between various groups of his fellows. All souls looked alike to Jesus. They were all His own. He loved them all. He did not close the door of His heart against some and receive with glad acclaim others more to His liking. The doors of His heart were open for the riches that others coming in would add to His already marvelous life. That does not mean that we are to make no distinction between the good and the bad, but it does mean that the chance to be good and to be better and to meet God shall be made easy to every soul in the world.

"If a church does not have what men must have, what men really need, if a church does not offer freely what men cannot afford to miss then let the church be removed as an encumberer of the ground. The church with an open door will be big enough and broad enough to minister to the whole of a man and to all men who are within the borders of its influence. These church doors will be open in a literal sense, too. The places of evil are open day and night and the churches of this city are closed on an average three-fourths of the time. The church should be open every day. The doors of its ministry should be open in a life of loving service to the whole community.

"The church of the open door will not wait for people to come to it, but will go out after those who need its ministries and do them good in their homes and in their places of active life. The church of the open door will be broad in spirit, liberal in judgments, loving in justice and merciful in correction. The church of the open door will leave room for other's opinions. It will issue no edicts of censure and abuse will be slow in hunting heresy, will be long-suffering in dealing with sin and crime. It will expect much of strength and demand more of ability and riches. The church of the open door will be democratic in policy and generous in its attitude toward those who differ from it. Lord hasten the church of the open door."

REV. W. O. FISHER.
HARVARD HEIGHTS CHURCH.
NO MAN IS SUFFICIENT UNTO HIMSELF, FOR WE ALL OWE A DUTY TO OTHERS.

At the Harvard Heights United Presbyterian Church, Rev. W. O. Fisher, who began his work as pastor at that church a week ago, preached two practical sermons on yesterday. His morning subject was: "The Value of Influence." In the evening he spoke upon "The Law of Indirectness."

The morning text, "For none of us liveth to himself," led Mr. Fisher to say:

"The first thought suggested by this text is: Man lives to God; not by virtue of his acknowledging his responsibility to his Maker, for not all men make this acknowledgment; but by virtue of his very existence. Life is a divine gift. To God man is responsible. To his Maker he must render his account.

"The second thought suggested by these words of Paul is this: Man lives to Christ. Here the language applies especially to the Christian. Christ has redeemed him; therefore it is his to glorify Christ in his daily life.

"The third thought is: Man lives to his fellow man. We see man redeemed from self to his fellow man, and inspired of Him Who came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, willing to spend and be spent for his fellows.

"But we pass from these three realms of thought, having merely suggested them, and enter the fourth sphere suggested by Paul; namely, the realm of influence. Truly, in this realm none of us liveth to himself. The history of the race declares it. Our first parents, alone in the earthly paradise, did not live to themselves. They were tempted; they yielded; and the whole race is affected. What means the interrogation of Cain, 'Am I my brother's keeper?' if it is not the echo of that pang of conscience which would not let him rest, but kept reminding him that he was responsible for the life of his brother? Man may think he can nullify his influence by living to himself; he may keep his doors barred against his fellow men; but he attracts more attention than otherwise would be possible. His influence is of a negative character.

"This introduces us to a realm which we often overlook: Man is responsible for the good he might do. God will call to account the man who withdraws from society and withholds from men his gracious influence. The classical poet tells of King Midas, who in vision was promised whatever he might choose. He requested the golden touch. As he rose to clothe himself, his garments one by one were changed to gold. He stepped into his flower-garden for a morning walk. As he stooped to breathe the perfume of a rose, its crimson petals became leaves of yellow gold. His little daughter came down the gravel walk. As he lifted her in his arms, one kiss transformed her cheek. Everything that Midas touched was changed to gold. Each life exercises transformation, though not in like degree yet just as certain, as did the touch of King Midas. Carlyle, in his 'Diamond Necklace,' says: 'No act of a man, no thing, how much less the man himself, is extinguished when it disappears. Through considerable time it still visibly works, though done and vanished.' Longfellow says:

"'No action, whether foul or fair,
Is ever done but it leaves somewhere
A record written by fingers ghostly
As a blessing or a curse, and mostly
In the greater weakness or greater strength
Of the acts which follow it.'"

DR. BROUGHER.
TEMPLE AUDITORIUM.
"WE HAVE TOILED ALL NIGHT AND HAVE TAKEN NOTHING." THEN JESUS CAME.

Dr. J. Whitcomb Brougher "vacationed" at Catalina and found there material for a comparative sermon, "Galilee and Catalina, or Ancient and Modern Fishermen." "Fishing," he said, "has been a popular sport or pastime in all ages. Jesus was an expert fisherman."

Dr. Brougher made a lot of persons in the big audience wince when he said: "It is a hard thing for any fisherman to be truthful when a friend comes along and asks how many fish did he catch. But Peter owned right up when he said, 'We have toiled all night and have taken nothing.'

"Peter was right when he said, 'We have toiled all night and have taken nothing,' but at the suggestion of Jesus he let down the net on the right side of the boat, and they were not able to draw it in for the multitude of fish.

"Launch the same boat and the same crew, but put in a new captain, adjusted to the command of Jesus Christ and actually obeying His will and we can succeed in the very same place where it failed last year. Men and women redeemed from a life of sin in Los Angeles do not need to go to San Diego, or San Francisco, or Portland in order to live a Christian life and win out. Right here you may win out in the name of Christ.

"There is the simple story of 'Fishin' Jimmie.' This old fisherman, without education, knew more about fish and their habits in New England than did the scientists. He knew nothing about the technical names of botany, but he knew more about the flowers and plants of that region than did the scientists. He knew nothing of the technical names of birds, but he could tell you more about the life and songs of the bird world in New England than could the scientists. This simple fisherman came in touch with the life of Jesus Christ, and he said to his friends: 'I want to be a fisher of men. I wish,' said the old man, 'that I could be a fisher of men. When I read the story of Jesus on the shore and the disciples in the boat, I allers try to think that 'twas me in that boat when He came along. I make believe it was out on Streeter Pond, and I was settin' in the boat fixin' my landin' net, when I see Him on the shore. I think that mebbe I'm that James, for that's my given name, ye know, though they allers call me Jimmie. I can hear Him jest as plain sometimes when the wind is blowin' in the trees. I jest ache to get up and foller him. He says, 'I'll make ye a fisher of men,' and He ain't done it yet. I'm waitin'. Mebbe He'll larn me some day.'

"And if you have read the story you remember how he gave his life in thoughtful kindness to children and strangers and his neighbors. One night some little boys were lost and his famous fishing dog had gone with them into the woods. The old man said, 'Mebbe I don't know nuff to fish fer men, but I think I can ketch boys,' and he went out to hunt for the boys and did not return. The neighbors organized a party and found that in his efforts to reach the old fishing dog that had been crippled on the side of a cliff, the old fisherman had fallen over and was lying at the bottom of the cliff fatally injured. His neighbors and friends hastened to him and got him. They took him back to the cottage, laid him upon the bed and carefully nursed him while life lasted. The last day he seemed to have left earth and was talking to an unseen friend. The voice faltered an instant, and he said, 'Yes, I'm comin'. I'm dreffie glad to come. Don't mind about leavin' my fishin'—do ye think I care about that? I'll jest lay down my pole ahin' the alders here, and put my landin' net on the stuns with my flies and tackle—the boys ll like 'em, ye know—and I'll be right along.' A strange light came over the thin face, the soft gray eyes opened wide, and he cried out with the voice that was familiar to those who had often heard it, "Here I be! It's Fishin' Jimmie, ye know—him ye uster call James when ye come along the shore of the pond, and I was a-fishin'. I heern ye agin jest now, and I straightway f'sook my nets and followed.'

"The voice ceased, and 'Fishin' Jimmie had been welcomed on the other shore."

BOYLE HEIGHTS METHODIST.
COMPLETE CONVERSION AND ACCEPTANCE OF HOLY SPIRIT IS A "BIBLE ENTHUSIASM."

"A Bible Enthusiasm" was the subject of a sermon yesterday by Dr. W. E. Tilroe of the Boyle Heights Methodist Church. Taking as his text, "He said unto them: Have ye received the Holy Ghost since ye believed?" (Acts 19:2.) Dr. Tilroe said in part:

"The beginning of all Christian reasoning must be the Bible record. To reason from one's own experience is very tempting. But experiences vary and conflict. To reason from our regard for Wesley or Calvin is natural enough. But neither has ever convinced us all. To say we are Protestants gives no account of a great body of truth in Romanism. If there is any final authority where men of all creeds may meet and learn wisdom it is the Bible. To speak of a Bible enthusiasm there is to foregather the great multitude who follow the Christ. After some interpretation they also follow the Book.

"Coming to Ephesus Paul was greatly concerned about a matter he called, 'Receiving the Holy Ghost.' It is a long step ahead to learn it is not only an affair of Paul, but of the whole Bible. The spirit of God strove with men before the flood. David prayed, 'Take not thy Holy Spirit from me.' Moses wished that the Lord might put His Spirit upon all His people. The Prophets declared the work of God was neither by might nor power, but by the spirit of God. John the Baptist foretold that the credential of the Messiah was his baptising with the Holy Ghost. The Son of God Himself said it was more than worth His leaving the planet to have the Holy Spirit come, and that this coming of the spirit was of His sending. The Pentecostal Christians were all filled with the Holy Ghost. The Holy Ghost was given to the converts at Samaria. Cornelius and his Roman household found the Holy Spirit falling upon them. The New Testament writers all have much to say of the marvelous descent and energy of the Holy Spirit. It is a thing of large content that Paul was not enthusiastic over some special or secondary affair, but about a matter familiar to the whole Bible. It is not a grievous sin, but it is a pitiful mistake and blindness to give small interpretation to this indwelling of the Holy Spirit in the hearts of men. It is nothing less than a Bible enthusiasm.

"Being a Bible enthusiasm the gift of the Spirit is in great company. The veritable existence of God, the making known of God to men, by vision, prophecy, miracle, the incarnation and a spiritual experience, the Kingdom of God, the Divinity of Jesus Christ, the resurrection of the dead and immortality beyond the grave—each is a Bible enthusiasm. So the gift of the Spirit is not of those things down in a corner. It walks among the mighty. It is a Bible enthusiasm.

"Surely then this royal benediction is something more than a gift of tongues, more than a temporary fitting for utility, more than an official badge of organism, more than a larger knowledge, more than a special exaltation of the saints, more than an annex, or appendix, to anything. It must be of the heart of things. So this same Paul said plainly, 'If any man have not the spirit of Christ he is none of His.' So Jesus told Nicodemus the man not born of the Spirit could neither enter nor see the Kingdom of God. The urgency which sent Aquila and Priscilla to Apollos was not incidental. Apollos was not converted. A preacher should be converted. The urgency of Paul with these Ephesians was not a camp meeting fervor. The Ephesians were not converted. All men as well as preachers must be converted. A Bible enthusiasm cannot be an incidental nor secondary thing. An enthusiasm of the great is inevitably a great enthusiasm."

DR. CAMPBELL.
FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.
FOLLOW CHRIST'S EXAMPLE TO BE AN INSPIRATION TO THOSE ABOUT YOU.

Dr. Campbell, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, spoke there yesterday on "The Confidence of Christ." He said in part:

"The Gospels written by different men from different viewpoints furnish to us abundant variety of knowledge and information upon which to form our conception of Jesus as the unique character of the ages.

"In looking into the testimony concerning him given in these ancient biographies the thoughtful and impartial student must conclude that Jesus is filled with enthusiasm when he contemplates the peculiar work assigned him and there is no other way to account for this zeal and enthusiasm which characterizes him except that it comeh through his uncompromising confidence and faith in God and also his belief in the sincerity of good men.

"If you would catch the tone of his spirit toward God and also toward men you must observe down beneath all the vicissitudes and changes that were constantly crossing his pathway in his endeavor to perform his duty a deep and strong current that had its source in the unchangeable confidence in God as one upon whom the whole world rested and from whom its complete redemption from sin and guilt must come. He could look upon sin and confusion about him and still keep his face steadfastly toward the goal confident of success, even though men might cry pessimistically, 'right forever on the scaffold, wrong forever on the throne!' he toiled and labored conscious that God stands within the shadow keeping watch o'er his own.

"Would you have men about you to catch inspiration from your life then let the spirit which possessed Jesus dominate your life.

"Rest upon God and perform your part in life with a growing trust in God and man."

ESCONDIDO NEWS.

ESCONDIDO, Sept. 14.—The City Trustees will open bids Tuesday evening for the sale of municipal bonds aggregating $110,000, of which $100,000 are for water, $6000 for a bridge over the Escondido River on North Lime street and $4000 for fire-department equipment. The obligations draw interest at the rate of 5 per cent. and run for forty years. The proceedings have been approved by bond experts of national reputation and the Trustees are expecting a ready sale. Under the terms of the proposals asking for bids, offers may be made for all or any portion of the issue.

Mrs. N. Matzen, the suffragette member of the Escondido school board, entertained with a dinner last evening, the twenty-four guests being the other members of the board and the teachers of the three schools of the district.

Announcement has been received here of the marriage of W. W. Bassett and Miss Olive Crosby, to take place at the home of the mother of the groom at Palo Alto, Tuesday, September 16. Bassett, who is a student at Stanford University, resided here a number of years.

VENTURA BRIEFS.

VENTURA, Sept. 14.—Lima beans are now being rapidly threshed in all sections of the county and already several shipments have been made to outside, the first shipment of two carloads having already been made to Robert Dunn. He paid $4.90 for the beans, a gilt-edge figure for this early in the season and looked on as an evidence that the price is going to remain good throughout the season. Growers look on the price as a good one and better than if the price had started at a still greater figure as has occasionally been the case, only to tumble towards the close of the season. The output of beans so far shows that the yield will not only be more uniform than last year, but greater. The season has been a splendid one and the harvest season promises to be just as good. Nothing now can prevent a good output excepting heavy September rains on the beans near here, the last to be threshed each season because of their nearness to the sea and necessarily slower ripening.

COMMISSION ORDERS WAYBILL CUT EQUAL SIZE.

Million or More a Year Used in Los Angeles and Ruling Affects Shippers — Uniformity Desirable, but Expense Is Heavy and Associated Jobbers Will Fight.

When the Pacific Freight Tariff Bureau, in convention assembled, set the official dimensions of the waybill at 8x11½ inches, pursuant to a suggestion of the Interstate Commerce Commission, it robbed the trade-journal paragrapher of a much-used opportunity to comment on the endless "bother" that one little waybill may kick up.

Nevertheless, the ruling of the bureau that on and after January 1, shipping orders must be modeled on the same general dimension lines as the waybills bids fair to stir up a fight in which the Associated Jobbers of this city will be found well forward on the skirmish line.

That this fight will be some fight is apparent from statistics prepared by Traffic Manager Gregson of the Associated Jobbers, which show that each day of the year the shippers of this city promulgate 4000 waybills and shipping orders. This is 24,000 a week, 100,000 a month and close to 1,250,000 a year.

In other words, should the shippers of this city decide to model their waybills, sometimes called bills of lading, and shipping orders on individual lines, the railroads would find themselves deluged with heterogeneous-sized, parti-colored waybills and shipping orders that would make a freight agent's mail look like the backdrop of Hanlon's Fantasma.

It wouldn't be a freak fight, either, but a fight for dollars.

"We like the uniform bill of lading," said Gregson, yesterday. "In fact, we made a fight for it; a fight which many of us knew would result in heavy expense to replace old bill of lading machines with new. But to dictate that we will have to clean house in the shipping order line is asking too much. It would be about like telling us we have to use one brand of typewriters."

Gregson further commented that the uniform bill of lading, with uniform contract entries, is a desirable thing. He also commended the departure from small to large bills of lading as a step in the direction of making legibility a marked feature of entries. In this way the danger of goods going astray and damage claims resulting because a railroad employee couldn't make out notations will be minimized, said Gregson. In order to get the ideas of members of the Associated Jobbers on the proposed change, Gregson will immediately send out circular letters soliciting information as to stock of waybills and shipping orders on hand, machines used in filling in same, and suggestions as to the future action of the jobbers.

"It will cost considerable money to secure uniformity in waybills," said Gregson, "but more to make the shipping order uniform."

TEACHER OF TEACHERS.

Editorial Association to Issue "The Editor" to Tell Those Who Know How to Do It.

Believing in the adage of "better the day, better the deed," the members of the Executive Committee of the Southern California Editorial Association, yesterday afternoon at the Lankershim, launched their new venture, "The Editor," a publication which will show the editors just how to edit even though they be experts.

It is said that Crombie Allen of Ontario, the Croesus of Southern California newspaper publishers, will conduct a sidelight department on how to get the money for editing, which will probably be of more interest than the original purpose of the paper. Charles E. Jones of Lancaster will direct a column on associate editors and how to manage them, incidentally discussing the proper manner of absorbing a rival. As president of the association, his copy will not be censored by Jay E. Randall, editor of "The Editor," who will keep the hot news from burning the publication.

Secretary William A. Rennie of Venice will feature in one of the early issues, a dissertation on prohibition and what it has not accomplished in some seashore resorts. Other luminous lights of the association will touch on subjects ranging from the printer's devil to the President of the United States and the effect of the Democratic tariff revision on the price of lead pencils.

Altogether "The Editor" has a very bright outlook, particularly since no advertising will be allowed in its columns save that of a personal kind, indorsing various editors for fat political preferments.

COLLEGE OPENS MONDAY

CLAREMONT, Sept. 14.—Since the strenuous days of the June pageant, Claremont people have been scattered in the mountains and by the sea. But as the opening of the college draws near the clans are gathering for the fray and the voice of the hammer and the swish of the carpet-beater are heard in the land. As is usual in college communities many new families are moving in to take advantage of the educational opportunities.

The college faculty changes very little from year to year, save in the way of additions. Few men once made members of the faculty can be tempted to leave, though what are commonly called larger opportunities not infrequently come to them. There is a sort of spirit about Pomona College that makes faculty and students a unit in their love and enthusiasm.

William Matlock has accepted the position of assistant professor in the department of German, and he and his family are already in town. Applications for admission are being made daily and although only those whose credentials are of high grade are accepted, it is clear that the classes will be largely increased over those of former years. There will soon be need of limiting numbers if the character of the influence and the grade of the work for which the institution has always stood are to be maintained.

The fact that the National Council of the Phi Beta Kappa has just voted a charter to Pomona College, the only college on the Pacific Coast so honored, shows the high name the college has won for scholarship among the best institutions of the country. Hereafter the honor students of Pomona will wear the Phi Beta Kappa key, one of the highest academic honors that can come to a graduate of any college.

PUTTING THEM TO WORK.

A police judge in a suburb of San Francisco has decided that wives must do jury duty when husbands are not at home. This places suffrage on a working basis.

ABUSE OF POWER.

A man at Hemet used a sack of silver to slug his wife. That amount of money turned in the direction of a new dress or some fresh headgear would have done much more for the lady's disposition.

MAKING IT EASY.

The best way of eliminating pain from life is to kill out selfishness. This is a negative proposition. The positive answer to life is purpose. Life never seems hard or bitter for those who have honest aims.

RECLAMATION.

Back East it sometimes costs $10 an acre to take the water from the land. In the West people are glad to pay $30 to get water on the land. There is just as much difference in the price of this land afterwards as there is in the methods of treatment. By the way, the Creator must have had His chemistry on a fine working basis to get the exact escape of hydrogen which made the land show up in the first place.

SOMETHING DOING.

President Wilson has sent some good men to Mexico in the past several months, but they had no authority. They came back and said things were in a mess down below, but nothing was done about it. Hades is in a mess, too, if we are to believe the preachers, but it, too, seems to stay that way. Sometimes we think hell and Mexico are getting worse. We do not pretend to know the cure for either; but now that a brigadier-general from the United States army has been sent as far as Calexico on the border we are a little hopeful for Mexico.

REACHING OUT.

The plan for an industrial bureau seems certain to be put into operation. The strength of unity is never better illustrated than when the forces of a city unite in going after new industries. No interest is more mutual to men who make a city than the securing of fresh enterprise. No city in the land would know better what to do with a big pay roll than Los Angeles. More people are coming here all the time and they need something to do besides being happy. The expected immigration of the future will probably fill the country with every kind of labor, and they will need all classes of work. Factories, foundries and mills should become part of the answer. An industrial bureau can go after this business in a logical and orderly manner. A city organizes its charities and it might as well put its larger movements on a business basis. The local Chamber of Commerce has always been a live body and this new branch promises to be one of its most useful members.

ALL-STEEL TRAINS.

By comparing the terrible loss of life in the recent accident on the New Haven Railroad with the immunity from serious injury to passengers in the similar catastrophe on the Pennsylvania near Madison, O., we can see at once the benefit of installing steel cars on railroads. In the Pennsylvania train, composed of all steel cars, though it was ditched while running at an estimated rate of fifty miles an hour, no passengers were killed and only minor injuries resulted. The horrible scenes that attended the wreck of the wooden cars in the New Haven disaster are still fresh in the minds of our readers.

In the face of these facts the traveling public will demand the substitution of steel for wooden cars as quickly as the change can conveniently be made. And those railroads equipped with steel cars will command the bulk of the travel. The benefit will be to the companies themselves no less than to their patrons. After such a demonstration of the safety guaranteed by the all-steel train, its use in time is bound to become universal.

ABOUT CORN.

For the first time in the history of agriculture a bushel of corn is worth more than a gallon of whisky. We do not mean the sort of whisky which comes in bond from Kentucky, nor even Scotch made in Canada. Rather do we refer to the stuff which tastes like the shuck and which has never been spoiled by an internal revenue stamp. It is covered with fusel oil and you get it in a jug under a tree if you leave $2 under the jug. There is something about the moon in the mountains "on the trail of the lonesome pine" which fills the jug with moonshine when nobody is looking. This is rarest form of juggling. It used to be that when corn was put to this useful purpose, instead of being wasted on mush and live stock, it sold for 50 cents a bushel. Now that corn is sold from feed stores instead of having its delicate essence (this was the origin of delicatessen) flowing through a bent gun barrel used for the worm of a still, many farmers have lost all interest in planting the cereal and the price has gone up to $2.50 a bushel. The elements do not even take the trouble to rain, in the face of prohibition in Kansas.

A MENACE TO THE COUNTRY.

Too little attention is paid to the progress of banking legislation at Washington. The amount of illuminating discussion the subject is receiving is small in proportion to its tremendous importance. Our government has not committed itself in the last half-century to any undertaking of such vast moment affecting the general welfare of the people, and their security in the pursuit of happiness, as is the project to make over the national banking system. Almost incalculable material benefits can flow from the enactment of a safe measure to provide the country with banking and currency machinery better adapted than existing facilities for the accommodation of current business and the exploitation of new wealth-creating opportunities. Enormous harm can result from the enactment of a law made vicious by exploiting what is chiefly a banking necessity for the ends of poisonous political theories.

As the administration banking bill came out of the House Banking and Currency Committee it was in most essentials sound, although far from ideal. In its provisions for mobilizing reserves, establishing a discount market and relating note issues to commercial activities it recognized the fundamental principles which must obtain in any salutary revision of the banking law. In consideration by Democratic caucus the bill has been weakened with amendments, and now the sanity of Congress and the sanity of the country promise to be tested by the struggle of Representative Robert L. Henry of Texas, and his retinue of colleagues in Congress and sympathizers outside, "to make commodities locked up in warehouse holdings for high prices a basis for bank credits and note circulation. Representative Henry's schemes also include the invention of what he calls "industrial currency," a pure fiat money to be put out as loans to States, counties and municipalities for public works, in order to insure an eternal permanence of employment for labor. The Henry propaganda furthermore advocates the statutory embodiment of the tenets of Pujoism, which are intended to deprive banking of any competitive principle by substituting for it the principle of unlimited government interference with normal banking operations.

Responsibility lied with the administration. If President Wilson and his immediate advisers continue to insist upon the extreme political aspect of the proposed banking system which was contemplated in the bill as orginally introduced, and remaining practically unchanged to date, the administration will only have itself to blame if the measure is ruined by amendatory efforts deriving their encouragement from the political hypothesis developed in the bill and illustrated by administration utterances and action. According to this hypothesis, says the New York Sun in a long and able editorial, the lending ability of the banks, what may be roughly called the stock of credits and capital therein represented, is apparently something which can and should be communized. The idea in high places in Washington seems to be that government must seize on the banks and coerce them into submitting the management to control politically appointed and endowed with extraordinary and arbitrary powers, ramifying through all parts of the financial system, to direct the banking operations of the entire country. Such a policy is socialistic, if not revolut'onary. The banking bill situation at Washington is a menace—a serious menace—to the whole country.

The weight of intelligent and informed judgment is solidly against the experiment to which the Henryites are trying to pervert the administration banking bill. If President Wilson is unable to frustrate them the measure will become forthwith a menace to the country and its every interest.

BACTERIATED MILK.

The pure food and drug law is a beneficent statute. Its reasonable administration is preventive of disease and promotive of health. The quality of canned and preserved foods has been improved by it, and the vending of stale fish and decayed meats and the use of formaldehyde as a food-preserving agency has been substantially discontinued.

But the administration of any law by over-zealous and half-informed officers may be made a nuisance and an oppression instead of a benefit to the public. An example of such overzeal is shown in New York City, where the milk dealers have organized to combat the efforts of the Washington authorities to enforce the pure food law by prosecuting and imprisoning milkmen who vend lacteal fluid that contains an excessive quantity of bacteria. The objection of the milkmen to the establishment by the United States of a bacteriological standard for milk is based partly upon constitutional grounds and partly upon the difficulty of complying with the law. The milk of one cow contains more material out of which bacteria may be developed than that of another cow, and the milk of the same cow may be almost free from bacterial material on Monday and densely populated with it on Tuesday. To chemically analyze each cow's product would make milk as costly as champagne. The milkmen further claim that it has never been determined that the bacteria in milk are really unhealthful. They call attention to the fact that bacterian material exists in the milk of humans as well as in that of four-footed mothers, and they ask if it is proposed to appoint government inspectors to attend upon women who have recently added to the population, and submit their breasts to a microscopic examination before allowing the newly-born infant to take his breakfast.

Science has been described as a thought-clad leader of pure and great souls who toil for their race and love of their kind; as a measurer of the depths of earth and the recesses of heaven; as an apostle of civilization and a handmaid of religion; as a sort of a kind of a being with a starry brow and a benign front. But "to get down to brass tacks," as the gifted Bull Moose philosopher might say, while science, sweeping the vast expanse of the heavens with a telescope to make a map of the canals of Mars, is an inspiring sight, the spectacle of Dr. Harvey Wiley using a lactometer and a microscope to count the bacteria in a quart of extract of cow, that he might be enabled to lecture on the result at so much per, is quite another thing.

Thomas Jefferson in boyhood used unexamined milk and lived to a good old age. The big Bull Moose even now drinks uninspected milk—with a teaspoonful of brandy in it—before saying his good-night prayer, and Gates Ajar swallows every day a solution of casein and various solids with globular cells of fat, and balks not at the bacteria therein contained.

Shakespeare makes Mrs. Macbeth say:

"I have given suck and know
How tender 'tis to love the babe that milks me."

It does not appear that any of the great men of past or present ages, from David, who danced before the Lord, to Holy Hiram, who is striving to kick himself into a renomination; from Moses, the lawgiver, down to Tooploua, the mudslinger, ever suffered from an undue proportion of bacteria in the milk they consumed.

Even the late unlamented Legislature, with all its enterprise and its disposition to pass blue-sky laws, and an employers' paralysis law, and a water right examination law, and a barbers' razor-sterilizing law, and a school girls' anti-topknot and anti-patent leather shoe law, did not attempt to enact a law for the appointment by Holy Hiram of a bacterial commission with deputies and clerks in each county at so much per.

The pure food law is a good law, but such foolishness as the constant and minute examination of cows' milk by government officials will bring it into disrepute. Let the cows in a dairy be inspected and, if diseased, let them be condemned and painlessly executed—but stop there, and if the cows are healthy let their milk pass without examination, even if it contain in solution solids which contact with the atmosphere will change into bacteria.

A LADY UNDESIRABLE.

Mrs. Pankhurst may not be able to fulfill her engagements to lecture on the beauties of militant suffrage seeking. She may during her stay in this country be compelled to reside on Ellis Island. Section 2 of the Act of Congress of March 3, 1903, excludes from admission to the United States, persons who have been convicted of a crime or misdemeanor involving moral turpitude.

It may be contended that no moral turpitude was involved in pouring acid into letter boxes, and proceeding to extremities with Premier Asquith by divesting him of his breeches and batting his golf cap over his organ of veneration. But surely setting fire to an unoccupied dwelling is arson, and the commission of arson involves moral turpitude.

Should Sister Pankhurst be turned back as an undesirable, and, on her re-arrival in England be refused permission to land under British immigration laws, it would be rough on the steamship company which would be compelled to tote her back and forth as a living deadhead for the balance of her natural life.

STRENGTHENING HUERTA.

A dispatch from Mexico City states that a wave of patriotism is sweeping over Mexico, and from many States and from all classes assurances of allegiance and offers of services are being received daily by President Huerta.

On Independence Day—Tuesday, September 16—there will be a military parade in the City of Mexico in which 20,000 troops are expected to march.

A dozen interior cities have requested the Mexican War Department to furnish military instructors. The fear of being impressed for service against the revolutionists has given away to an unexpected burst of patriotic ardor, and thousands of all ages are asking to be drilled in the use of arms.

The offers of aid to the Huerta government are not confined to tenders of men to serve in the ranks as soldiers. A delegation of planters from the State of Morelos waited upon President Huerta and tendered him a subscription of 3,000,000 pesos.

In addition to the students of the preparatory schools, says the Tribune correspondent, where military instruction has been enforced for some weeks, the manual of arms is being taught the workmen who are attending night schools and the employees of the Tax Department. The employees of several banks are said to have organized a company and proffered their services.

The newspapers in Mexico dwell upon the sympathy and encouragement which the Huerta administration is receiving from France, Germany and Great Britain, and compare it with the action of President Wilson in publicly branding President Huerta as a murderer, in refusing to recognise him as provisional President, and in demanding that he shall not be a candidate for President in October.

The egotistical defiance by President Wilson of the elementary principles of international law in not recognising a government de facto; his pedantic posing as a self-appointed moralist to sit in judgment upon the actions and the motives of President Huerta; his absurd demand to dictate who shall and who shall not be a candidate for President of Mexico in October, and, last of all, his order to all Americans to flee from Mexico, have been so many slaps in the face to the proud and sensitive people of our sister republic.

The effect of it all has been disastrous to American interests and to provoke greater unfriendliness toward American sojourners in Mexico. The result has been to strengthen rather than weaken President Huerta with all classes in Mexico, except the insurrectos and the bandits. The result has been to inspire Mexicans who were indifferent or unfriendly toward the Huerta government, to rally to its support, and this rally may develop into porportions of such magnitude as to demand his candidacy for President and bring him men enough and money enough to suppress rebellion against his rule.

UNCLE WALT.

The Poet Philosopher.

Man must use his whips and goads driving o'er the rutty roads; he must often push the wagon to assist the horse or mule; and he rears and jerks the lines, and he quickly undermines all the helpful moral lessons that he learned at Sunday-school. And his wagon oft gets stuck in the gumbo or the muck, and a man can hear him praying seven versts or so away; and he dances and he rants, swearing by his Sacred Aunts that an hour on such a highway turned his golden ringlets gray. This fool thing's been going on ever since the nation's dawn, and it's really only lately that the farmer took his tools and got busy making roads, singing merry little odes, as he pushed the shining scraper and the swaybacked sorrel mules. Now o'er all the western lands there are joyous tolling bands blasting up the blasted gumbo, filling up the ruts and holes; and the farmer views the sight with a spasm of delight, and he's glad that he is living, and he whoops and caracoles. And all cheerily he tracks into town to pay his tax, for there's fun in paying taxes when the money's wisely spent; though this thing of building roads of our wealth takes mighty loads, no one who is patriotic will begrudge a blooming cent.

Married for Love.

Matrimony was the topic that was being talked at a recent dinner, which recalled to Gov. William T. Haines of Maine an incident that happened in New England.

Some time ago, according to the story told by the Governor, Gladys met Maude in an ice cream foundry, and while mussing over the daily freeze much conversation ensued.

"By the way, Gladys," suddenly remarked Maude, "have you heard about Adelaide? She got married last Tuesday. Her husband is a millionaire every day of 70 years old."

"You don't really mean it!" exclaimed the other with a surprised expression. "So she was married on Tuesday!"

"Yes," responded Maude, "and what is more, she positively declares that she married for love."

"I suppose it is true," was the reflective rejoinder of Gladys, "but I never dreamed that Adelaide would love money to that extent."

JIM FARLEY, STRIKE-BREAKER.

An Appreciation of a Strange Character.

BY HARRY CARR.

Out of the monotonous array of men I have known stands out one figure, gaunt and lean and stringy, a long, thin face crowned by a very obvious toupee, gray eyes with a detached air of being amused—an odd mixture of self-possession and diffidence.

This was Jim Farley, the professional strike-breaker, who died last week of tuberculosis.

No one like him ever lived before; such a one is never likely to live again.

Farley was a professional soldier of fortune. Only, where other soldiers of fortune go down into the jungles of South America and fight the battles of politicians whose names they can't pronounce, or take part in revolutions in Mexico, or tear into foreign wars of which they do not know the cause, or sail into the ice, discovering poles and liars, Farley fought his battles in the crowded streets of cities. His breastworks were the ruined and shattered hulks of dynamited street cars. His battlegrounds were the asphalt pavements.

It is inconceivable, in this day of cafeterias and other evidences of a tame civilization, that any man could make his living commanding a tatterdemalion army of gun fighters that went from city to city, fighting pitched battles in the streets. But that was Jim Farley's job.

The most romantic figure in the world, he looked to be the most unromantic. In any other age he would have been a buccaneer or a crusader, as likely one as the other. Piracy and crusades being out of fashion, he fitted into a dull commercial age as a strike-breaker with a toupee.

I met him at a dinner at the residence of Patrick Calhoun, the president of the United Railroads of San Francisco. The city was then almost in a state of civil war with the street-car strike. Once a day a little flotilla of street cars was taken out of the car barns, manned by Jim Farley's gun fighters. Every time a car left the barn it went through a gauntlet of fire, faced a pitched and savage battle. The car came back wrecked and the car crews went to the hospital.

We had all seen evidences of courage so desperate on the part of these men that we naturally visualized the general commanding them as a rather desperate-looking character. Any one who could hold those turbulent gunmen in the discipline that Farley maintained had a right to look like Capt. Kidd.

Mr. Calhoun introduced me to "Mr. Thompson," and from his quiet smile I realized with astonishment and some disappointment that the unpicturesque Mr. Thompson was Jim Farley. During the greater part of the dinner he was a silent guest, occasionally making some dry remark, but after the black coffee had come something drew him into a story.

The story was about a street-car strike in Boston, as I remember it. Farley was wandering around the strike district where rioting was in progress and some one recognized him. No one who sat at that table needed to be told what the howl of a mob is like when it scents its prey. Farley realized that in five minutes he would be beaten to death, no matter how gallant his fight.

At the first cry he turned and ran for his life. Under his trousers he had on heavy shoes—the kind that we call "mountain boots." These made his pace slower. Yelling and shooting as they ran, the mob was rapidly gaining on him as he turned a corner into an alley. He hadn't run ten yards down this alley before he discovered that he had made an appalling mistake. It was a blind alley and ended with a brick wall. With the first of the mob not a hundred feet behind him Farley had only two or three seconds to act. With one movement he tore off his coat; with another he yanked up his trousers and tucked them in the tops of his boots. With one last swoop he snatched the toupee from the top of his head and turned to face the mob, staggering like a drunk as he walked forward to meet the leaders, who ran with revolvers in their hands.

Seeing only a baldheaded old drunk with his trousers tucked into his boots, the mob paid no attention to Farley, but tore on down the street. He said that was the closest call he ever had, and he had plenty of them.

In the worst of the strike-days in San Francisco Farley used to walk alone and unprotected through the most dangerous of the riot districts. He seemed to have a wonderful talent for disguising his identity.

Earl Rogers, who, as the counsel for the United Railroads, knew Farley well, says that he had some mysterious method of changing his appearance that he would never reveal. Rogers thinks it was done by quickly changing toupees. After being with Farley every day for weeks, Rogers once sat at a dinner with him for an hour before recognizing him.

Rogers tells many quaint stories of Farley. One night word came of a plot to take the Calhoun residence by storm. Mr. Calhoun's family was at that time in the East and his house was a kind of war headquarters.

Earl Rogers and Farley volunteered to spend the night guarding the front door. Rogers had a big forty-five-caliber Colts with the trigger sawed off, discharged by "fanning" the hammer. Farley had a modern automatic revolver—one of the kind that stutters when it talks. You pull the trigger, and g-r-r-r-r-r—all the bullets are fired. It is like pouring out bullets through a hose.

Sitting there through the night Farley contemplated the two guns. At last he said: "Well, Rogers, when they come you'll get four or five of them with that gun. I'll only get one with this, but he will be pretty thoroughly shot up." The attack did not materialize.

Farley said very little about himself, but one managed to patch together a little of his singular history.

He began as a motorman on a street car. A strike took place and Farley decided not to go out with the strikers. He stayed with the company and ran his car. A few very brave spirits stayed with him and they ran their cars, too.

The strike was broken with such success that another harassed street-car company in another city sent to inquire how it was done; sen. for Farley and asked him to help break their strike. Farley accepted the offer and spent the next years of his life fighting strikers in the streets of different American cities. He maintained a bureau in Chicago where wars were undertaken and gun fighters were enlisted.

So far as I know he is the only man in the world who ever took over wars on contract.

He had a regular little army of fighting men who would have followed him to hell. Most of them were adventurous young southerners from the mountains of Tennessee and Virginia.

The most daring man in Farley's army was a young fellow from Tennessee—Williams. He was a tow-headed boy, with a sallow, unhealthy complexion and a robust physique. He always began the fun of taking out the first car. I see him yet, standing on the front platform with the controller in his hand, grinning with a contemptuous, bored expression upon a storm of brickbats, paving blocks and bullets. That boy was a glutton for danger. When the California-street cable began running Williams worked for a week learning the hang of a cable car, so that no one else should take out the first one.

Farley's army of strike breakers was kept in a stockade on Fillmore street. This was a besieged fortress within a city. Inside rested the strike-breakers, armed to the teeth, ready for invasion. Outside howled the mob, thirsty for blood.

One night the great gate of the stockade opened a little and a two-horse car slipped out and stood alone on the car walk. With a yell that meant murder the mob made a rush for him.

His friends called to him to run back into the stockade, but he paid no attention. In a bored way that he wanted to have over with. With the mob surging around him, hurling at him vile names, hurling things through the air, Williams walked to the nearest cigar stand and asked for some particular brand of cigar; they didn't have it. He walked on to the next; the proprietor didn't have the desired brand. So Williams continued on for two or three blocks, bought his cigar and then turned, the vicious mob still surging about him, and strolled back to the car, utterly unconscious that his life would not have been a good risk at 5 cents.

Of such was the army of Jim Farley, the rebel army was made up of soldiers of the stripe Farley gathered. It is no wonder that the Civil War didn't last for years.

Citizens of South Pasadena Better Vote a Big Bond Issue.

SOUTH PASADENA, Sept. 12.—[To the Editor of The Times:] On the 15th South Pasadena is to vote on a bond issue of $550,000. It is proposed to expend $300,000 for city purchase of the water; $200,000 for sewer system, and $50,000 for parks and other improvements.

Ahead of this big bond issue I, and others, advocate annexation to Los Angeles. The only solid objection to annexation is that it may increase the taxes on South Pasadena property. But will this alleged increase in taxes be a greater increase than will follow the big bond issue?

If we burden ourselves with a big bond issue we still lose the obvious advantages of annexation. Then, if we are annexed and secure our share of the greater city's bonds we shall also receive such advantages as:

1. A more and abundant water supply at a lower water rate than we now pay.
2. A much lower car fare.
3. The right to vote on the great municipal problems that are coming up in the life and evolution of our city. Such political participation will broaden South Pasadena.

Annexation will increase the value or market value of South Pasadena property.

Annexation will enable citizens of South Pasadena to borrow more money on their real estate. At present certain banks in Los Angeles are loaning their loans to real estate situated in this city. So that it will not be possible to obtain greater loans but more banks will be available to the South Pasadena borrowers. Our sewer system will then be a part of the greater system of Los Angeles.

The whole is greater than its parts and South Pasadena is but an infinitesimal part of greater Los Angeles. It is illogical, therefore, to attempt to remain aloof from union with the city whose strength we need. The reasons thus far given, and many others, are selfish ones.

There is a better reason for annexation than Los Angeles needs our votes. It will be that in some close years in the future the solid citizens of South Pasadena may, by their votes carry the day for a great civic improvement.

In fact, the whole needs all of its parts, and the parts thrive best when in union with the life and growth of the whole city.

I am a citizen of South Pasadena and shall in Los Angeles, and will take part in public discussion any time it is opposed to annexation.

Consequently let us not be too hopeful that these importations of foreign meats are going to break the present market of meat.

Corn is king food for animals that give us our daily meat diet and the corn fed meats will always be the demand of the epicurean.

Australian meats contain 1½ per cent. more water than our meats from the Middle West. Then the freezing process brings this product to us as one of the lowest grades of food imported to our shores. Why? In thawing out the product so the same may be carved for the trade, the juices are released and the nutritive qualities are decreased from 15 to 25 per cent., and the same article of food is also less palatable or wholesome.

The high cost of living has been discussed, is discussed and will be discussed, and then we "cuss" when we pay the price for the little morsel of steak or the little handful of provisions which can hardly be seen in the family larder and the salary check is extinguished.

But why should we feel this way especially here in this part of the country where we have abundance of soil, abundance of capital and a progressive commercial activity?

Our open public market system seems to be a successful one, and those who are taking advantage of purchasing their vegetables at these places on market days are economizing and hoarding for the "rainy day."

Why not then, a public, or rather a municipal packing plant? The Los Angeles Stock Yards Company has made the first step in this direction and why not then aid an enterprise that will benefit our city by aiding our smaller dealers to procure their stock alive in the stock yards. A municipal packing plant rents the slaughtering space to slaughter one carcass, or two; the fertilizing plant in connection relieves the small butcher of his hides and offal and pay him a price equal to the price the packer receives for his hides and offal. These items alone would mean a saving of from 1 to 1½ cents per pound on the carcass the small butcher now buys from the packer.

Again, a better inspection service could be installed, owing to the fact that all animals that would come into the yards would receive ante-mortem examination, as well as post-mortem.

Also, all by-products could find profit for the small dealer, even as the large packer. The opening of our Panama Canal will undoubtedly bring us meat from Argentine. Reports are that Argentine is the greatest cattle country in the world, therefore why not prepare with a municipal packing plant and if Argentine meats come to the Pacific Coast, let them come alive and let us handle them as individuals and not suffer them to be bartered and exchanged for profit only, but for food for the public.

WOMAN HANGS HERSELF.

Ventura Resident Ends Her Life While in a Fit of Despondency. Short News Stories.

VENTURA, Sept. 14.—Mrs. Alice Mattson, wife of Charles Mattson, a well-known resident of the Mound district, hanged herself to a rafter in the barn on the family home place this morning.

Mrs. Mattson was a well-known and popular woman, a native of Minnesota and 39 years old. She had suffered for some time from melancholia and recently had become very despondent and suffered a nervous breakdown. Her husband was her constant and attentive companion and did all he could to cheer her during her illness. She had recently spent several weeks at the springs and it was thought had been greatly relieved. She had appeared more cheerful for several days and the family was hopeful of her recovery. Her husband went to his work as usual this morning, but was detained a bit longer with some business matters. When he returned to the house he missed her and began a search, which ended in finding her lifeless body in the barn. She leaves a widower and three grown children, two daughters and a son.

NEWS BRIEFS.

Ben Yee, the Oxnard Chinese saloon-keeper, who was convicted by a jury of selling liquor to minors, was sentenced by Justice DeNure to pay a fine of $100 and go to jail for 100 days. The case of Yee was a particularly aggravating one, as there were several little boy witnesses against him who all testified that he sold them beer. The place has been notorious in Oxnard for some time.

Miss Mary Foy, the Democratic politician, stopped over in this city yesterday and delivered an address to a number of Ventura women at the City Hall, her subject being national politics.

HARVEST DANCE IS HELD.

PUENTE, Sept. 14.—The whole countryside was gathered last night in the new packing-house of the La Puente Valley Walnut Growers' Association, near the Southern Pacific Railroad, where a harvest dance was held. The packing-house and modern walnut-sorting machinery, just finished, will handle the thirty carloads of walnuts which the district will ship this year. J. H. Harrington of Santa Paula, who has built several plants of this kind in Southern California, is the architect for the new building.

The first quality, "No. 1" walnuts are sorted by being passed through a circular cylinder sixteen feet long, running at twelve revolutions to the minute. Walnuts refusing to pass through an inch-square mesh are automatically sent into the first quality bin. The house is also equipped with a cylinder for the budded walnuts, which are of superior quality. Because of the fact that the trees in the Puente district are all young, the nuts are much larger and will fetch a better price than in the older districts. No orchards are yet over eight years old.

During the afternoon the ranchers and their families enjoyed an inspection of the new plant. The visitors were shown over the house by President S. L. Watts, Secretary Robert H. Neeley, W. S. Sawyer and others of the board of directors. R. F. Maxson will have charge of the house during the shipping season.

EXPENSIVE CIGARETTE.

EXETER, Sept. 14.—Rolling a cigarette for a smoke may indirectly cause the death of J. C. Dunlap, an orchard owner of the Lemon Cove district east of here, who suffered a severe injury when a crowbar fell on his head. Dunlap was digging holes in his orchard for setting trees. He leaned his crowbar against a tree and sitting down in the shade for a rest rolled a cigarette. The bar fell over, striking him on top of the head and fracturing his skull. Dunlap was brought in an unconscious condition to a sanatorium here and has not yet regained his senses. His condition is regarded as serious.

Pasadena.

DRAINS FOR FLOOD WATERS.

North Pasadena Forms Alliance With Altadena.

Arrangements Completed for Opening of High School.

Residents of Crown City Are Trooping Home.

PASADENA, Sept. 15.—Two drains, instead of one, will swallow the flood waters of the northern part of the city next winter, if plans that have been made by the Lincoln-avenue and Northwest Improvement Association are carried out. It had been the intention to establish but one storm drain district which should include practically all of Altadena and North Pasadena, but the members of this organization have determined not to enter the proposed district, but to establish a separate one of their own.

A committee has been appointed to make an investigation and the question will probably be considered by the City Commission this week.

READY FOR SCHOOL.

This week will see arrangements completed for the beginning of the fall term of school under full swing. Jerome O. Cross, principal of the High School, has requested that all prospective High School pupils register at once. For this purpose regular registration hours will be observed at the school this week between 9 and 12 o'clock in the morning and 1 and 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

There remains yet much furniture to be installed at the High School, but Principal Cross believes that all will be in readiness by the time school is to begin.

The boys have practically completed the buildings on the High School grounds that are to be used by the agricultural department. These have been erected entirely by them under the direction of one of the instructors.

ARE TROOPING HOME.

Pasadenans who have been away from home for the summer are now returning in large numbers, and it will not be long before the advance events of the winter social season will be announced. Each train coming into the city now brings home several families and many of the larger homes of the city, which have been closed for the summer, except for a servant or two, are again beginning to buzz with the preparations for winter.

Local society people have planned many enjoyable affairs for the winter, and the hotel men of the city say that there will be more tourists here this winter than ever before. Elaborate preparations are being made for their entertainment.

Perhaps more attention is being given to the golf links than anything else, except the polo field. Golf has each year become more popular in Pasadena, and this winter there will be added to the list the links of the Midwick Club.

SAILORS TRY TO WRECK JAIL.

VENICE, Sept. 14.—Four sailors, inspired it is supposed by too much juice of the grape, were arrested tonight by Officers Reynolds and Pirotte on a charge of disorderly conduct. The arrest required considerable effort on the part of the officers and at least six noses were bloody when the conflict ended.

When the sailors were finally subjugated and placed in the City Jail they started a rumpus which shocked even this blase city. Everything which could be destroyed in the jail was wrecked by the indignant tars and the noise they created was so terrific that half the population of the town surrounded the jail at midnight. Other sailors on the Pittsburgh tried to lead an attempt on the jail with a view to rescuing the prisoners, but there was no response from the crowd.

BIG DAY AT REDONDO.

Fall Fashions in Hats and Other Wearing Apparel Fails to Alter Drift to Beach.

REDONDO BEACH, Sept. 14.—In spite of the coming Fall Fashion Show, of many winter hats worn by the fair sex and other indications of fall, today was a typical summer day at the beach and the largest crowd that has ever been here this late in the season thronged the beach, the bath-house, band, plaza and El Paseo. More than 25,000 persons were estimated to be enjoying the cool sea breezes, which were especially welcome to the crowd from the interior towns, where the heat has been so great. Surf bathing was the most popular of all of the amusements and men, women and children frolicked in the breakers and splashed in the plunge, where a long line stood all day long at the ticket office waiting for accommodations. Many hundreds of autos were here and every car on the electric lines was crowded carrying people here and in the evening taking them back to their homes.

LOST TROUSERS MYSTERY.

Bath-house employees vainly searched for a pair of lost trousers and other employees anxiously offered various substitutes to C. A. Powell of No. 4624 Gramercy place, Los Angeles, who failed to find that portion of his apparel with the other clothes in his dressing-room of the bath-house after a swim this morning. The young man in an abbreviated costume and with an expression which momentarily grew more aggravated, wandered about the corridors of the plunge, while the attendants searched for the trousers. When every one of the 1350 dressing-rooms of the bath-house had been unlocked and searched by the attendants, and every style of trousers imaginable had been offered to Powell by the weary attendants with always the same discouraging reply to their questions, "Are these yours?" the search was given up. The young man's predicament was partially solved by the management which resurrected a pair of white duck trousers of a kind which the water front employees were required by the Pacific Electric company to wear several years ago, while on duty. Although the irate man looked at the ducks disdainfully he donned them and started for the city.

The mystery of the lost trousers is yet unsolved, although it is the theory of the bath-house people that after putting on his bathing suit, Powell wore his trousers to the beach as is the custom of many bathers and there absent-mindedly left them while bathing.

The High School and grammar schools of the city will open tomorrow morning and the enrollment is expected to be much larger than in the past. The faculties include a number of new instructors here and are as follows:

Long Beach.

VOTING DAILY DUTY AT BEACH.

Five Elections Slated for the Current Week.

Coroner Will Investigate Mysterious Death.

Congregationalists Sell Their Church to Methodists.

LONG BEACH, Sept. 14.—During the coming week the voters of Long Beach will spend a part of their time each day exercising the right of suffrage and from the present feeling it is likely that at least half of the registration will be so exercised. Five elections in five days seems to be testing the good nature of the citizens, but as each one affects the individual purse, it is not likely that there will be any lack of interest.

The five elections contemplate the bonding of the city for a little over a million dollars. On Tuesday the first election to be held will be on the issue of $200,000 bonds to purchase cast iron pipe for the rehabilitation of the water system of the east end. The present system is made up of steel and wooden pipe and is in such a dilapidated state that it is impossible to send any amount of pressure into the pipe without starting several leaks. This part of the system was acquired when the city purchased the two private plants and although under municipal management and ownership the properties earned $68,000 last year and will earn $80,000 this year over the expenses. The profits are all required in extensions to new territory and rebuilding the pumping plant and developing more wells. Being regarded as an urgent necessity, like the sewer system the election will probably carry the bonds. On Wednesday the people will vote on a bond issue of $150,000 for a new auditorium, on Thursday $350,000 for a new City Hall. On Friday $60,000 for a new picnic pavilion on the site of the present condemned auditorium, and on Saturday $400,000 for a horseshoe pier.

These proposed bond issues, coupled with a raising of property valuations of about 30 per cent. for the coming year, the pending ordinance ordering in a high-pressure salt water system at the expense of the downtown district, and the probable ordering in of boulevard lights along several of the downtown streets all at the expense of the benefited property owners, has started the tax-payers to thinking deeply, and in the past week the opposition to the bonds has developed strongly, and the outlook for success the coming week is dubious for most if not all of the proposed issues.

The Bond Campaign Committee, headed by H. P. Barbour, is making an aggressive fight for the success of what they believe is essential for continued progress of the city, but a developed opposition organized last week is equally busy, claiming that the time now is not propitious for bond issues because of the conditions of the market.

CORONER TO INVESTIGATE.

Coroner Hartwell tomorrow morning will investigate the death of Nita Lind, a spinster, who died last night following a mysterious illness of a few hours. It is probable a post mortem will be necessary.

Miss Lind, who was 45 years of age, came here a month ago from San Diego and found employment at the St. Anthony's Apartments as a housemaid. She went home at night, occupying a shack a few blocks away. Yesterday morning she came to work and a few hours later was found lying on the stairway unconscious. Medical aid summoned found it impossible to restore her, and she died last night. Her condition puzzled the doctors, and they declined to sign a death certificate, especially as the woman had been seen to take a drink from a bottle shortly before she was found. Examination of the empty bottle, however, indicates that it was a harmless preparation. So far as known the woman has no relatives in this country, having come here from Sweden a few years ago.

LAST SERVICE.

The congregation of the Congregational Church this morning held its last church service in the building which has been its home for many years. The present building is to be moved and the work of erecting a magnificent modern structure begun. At this morning's service H. P. Barbour, chairman of the Building Committee, announced that the service which would follow was the final one.

The building has been sold to a new Methodist congregation just organized in the northern part of the city and will start for its new location during the coming week.

The Congregationalists will next Sunday occupy the old Plymouth Church building on Fourth street, near Locust, which site they also own. Mr. Barbour reported that this property was worth $25,000, and they had pledges for $20,000 more, which rendered possible early construction on the new building, plans for which have already been prepared.

HAY LOST BY FIRE.

SOUTH PASADENA, Sept. 14.—Fire at 5 o'clock this morning aroused the wealthy residents of the Oaklawn district. It was found that the fire was in a large barn owned by the Los Angeles Creamery Company and occupied by its Raab branch. The barn was an old frame structure which was built many years ago. The origin of the fire has not been determined, but the most logical explanation is that it was caused by some tramp who passed the night on the hay and rolled a cigarette preparatory to departing. The fire broke out in a place where there were no electric wires, and although some claim spontaneous combustion was the cause, the employees of the creamery state that they examined the hay late the same night and that there was no sign of any fire. The fire was not noticed until it had gained a big start and the building was almost consumed before the fire department was notified.

Officials of the fire department state that with the exception of one stream of water from the engine, they were practically helpless. Hydrants had just been installed at the plant, but as they were only inch-and-a-half, at the most, the pressure was insufficient. There are no regulation fire plugs in the vicinity and the hose of the fire department would not fit the small hydrants. All the horses which were in the corral by the barn were led to safety, and the loss was confined to sixty tons of oats and barley hay and the building itself.

NEWS BRIEFS.

An ostrich feather valued at $30 was stolen from the store owned by David R. Ritschler, No. 1901 Sycamore street, by two Mexicans, about noon today. The same men called in the store yesterday and valued the feathers. Today they came again and while one of the men was making a minor purchase, the other put the feather under his coat and they walked off in the direction of the Arroyo. As soon as the feather was missed Marshal Johnson was notified, and with his force hunted through the Arroyo until 3 o'clock this afternoon, but could find no trace of the men.

Rev. Robert B. Gooden, head master of the Harvard School for Boys, Los Angeles, will speak at the evening service Sunday at St. James Episcopal Church, corner of Monterey road and Fremont avenue. The Sunday-school, which has been closed in this church during the summer, will resume its sessions and will be held in the church building, owing to alterations now being made in the parish house.

Sunday evening Rev. George Carol King, pastor of the Methodist Church, will speak on his vacation, spent in the high Sierras, and will illustrate his lecture with stereopticon views.

Rev. F. L. Blowers, pastor of the Baptist Church at Madera, Cal., will speak at the morning and evening services in the Memorial Baptist Church, as this church is without a pastor.

SCHOOLS TO OPEN MONDAY.

Pomona Teachers Meet Superintendent and Discuss Plans for the Coming Year's Work.

POMONA, Sept. 14.—Superintendent Murphy of the local schools met the teachers in general assembly yesterday morning at the High School auditorium and went over the preliminaries attendant to the reopening of the grade schools here on Monday. There was a large attendance at the session. The kindergarten teachers, as assigned for the year, are as follows: Clara S. Brown, supervisor and director at the Central school, with Alice Humphrey, assistant director; Mrs. Frances Clough, director, and Miss May Crolliua, assistant, Tenth-street school; Miss Elizabeth Eells, director, and Miss Calla Glover, assistant, Garey-avenue school; Miss Elizabeth Stevens, director, and Miss Vyvyenne Faulder, assistant, Fifth-avenue school; Miss Florence Linnell, director, and Miss Edna Williams, assistant, San Antonio school; Miss Mattie Lindsey, director, and Miss Grace Bowyer, assistant, Hamilton-avenue school; Miss Katherine Graham has been elected as supply teacher for the grammar grade and high schools.

The Board of Education has arranged to furnish street-car books to children who live at North Pomona and are below the fifth grade and to pupils living east of the Chino branch of the Southern Pacific Railroad. A bus will take the small pupils living in the extreme southeastern part of the city to the Kauffman school. The conveyance will then be run to the Hamilton school and also will furnish transportation to part of the pupils of the Fifth-street kindergartens at the close of their sessions. All pupils who fail to enter, as beginners, either the kindergarten or grammar-grade schools before October 10, must wait until the beginning of the school semester in February.

NEWS BRIEFS.

The newly-elected officers of the San Antonio Fruit Exchange are: Fred J. Smith, president; F. P. Firey, vice-president; P. J. Dreher, secretary and manager, and R. L. Knox, assistant secretary and manager.

Secretary Stine and the Chamber of Commerce are working with the County Board of Supervisors to have the old El Monte road out of Los Angeles via Eastlake Park renamed "Pomona boulevard." This is the southerly through automobile road east from Los Angeles to Pomona.

STOCK RAISING EXPERIMENT.

OWENSMOUTH, Sept. 14.—What is purported to be a scientific test of the greatest efficiency and utility in the care of stock through economical methods for feeding and rearing of the same, is fast taking form in a tangible way at the Elliott-Brant rancho south of here at the corner of Canoga avenue and the State highway.

Burton C. Platt, author, inventor, scientist, discoverer and an all-around agitator of reform systems for greater and more prolific returns on the ranch, is in charge of the experiment and the necessary equipment is being made along careful and substantial lines.

A large 150-ton silo is the greatest undertaking, while several thousands of dollars in expensive machinery will be rapidly installed. The silo system is a new innovation for the San Fernando Valley, and it is believed that the general benefits to the public through the experiment will mean a saving of many thousands which will be won through education along scientific lines of agricultural advancement.

Already the best imported breeds in stock are being added to the ranch and with the combination of economical feeding and high breeding, some valuable results will follow.

It is the intention to later inaugurate a series of lectures by Dr. Platt, who has spent a lifetime rearing different kinds of stock and has made himself famous for high breeding and valuable sanitary practices among different herds. Being an author and lecturer, his service will be a great benefaction to the ranchers of the San Fernando Valley.

NEWS BRIEFS.

Road work on South Canoga avenue is about finished, and this will give the town a macadamized street two miles through to the State highway. R. T. Mosher, superintendent of the work for the Suburban Homes Company, has had charge of all the street work in the town. He made most of the Hollywood streets and is giving Owensmouth the full benefit of his twenty years' experience.

The work of installation for the lighting of Sherman way and Owensmouth is going ahead and the lights will be turned on within six weeks.

Contract work on the $40,000 grammar school building has begun in great earnest. A large force of men are on the job, and building material is arriving every day. The two local lumber companies are furnishing the material. The building will be completed within six months and it will discount anything of the kind found in the valley and other towns much the larger in population.

Hemet.

NEW USE FOR SILVER MONEY.

Hemet Man Slugs Wife With Ten Dollars.

Jailed Later on Charge of Attempted Murder.

School Opening Is Postponed for One Week.

HEMET, Sept. 13.—Residents of South Carmalita street were aroused at midnight last night by several pistol shots fired in rapid succession. Marshal Walker went at once to the residence in the rear of the lot between the homes of T. A. Ross and John E. King. Ross had fired the shots to attract the attention of the marshal to the shack where Felipe Contreras was attempting to murder his wife. Ross had attempted to stop the infuriated man, but realized that he would have to shoot Contreras, and he felt that it was the town marshal's place to make the arrest.

Cries of "O Lord, don't kill me," and "You have done it now," floated from the little shack in which Contreras and his wife have lived for the past three weeks. The blows of the man could be heard distinctly by the neighbors, and finally the woman in a dazed condition reeled from the shack and attempted to reach the home of a neighbor. The man had exhausted his strength in his attempt to beat the woman to death, and was sitting on the bed panting like a dog, which had just returned from the chase.

The woman in making her escape had left the greater part of her clothing, which lay soaked in blood on the floor. Felipe was arrested by Marshal Walker and immediately lodged in jail. An investigation showed that a desperate struggle had been going on for several minutes in which the woman struggled to ward off the blows. Contreras had tried his best to choke and beat the woman to death. With ten silver dollars clenched in his hands as a weight, Contreras had almost pummelled the life out of his help-meet.

Contreras was given a preliminary hearing at 10 o'clock this morning and was bound over to the Superior Court. He admitted his guilt, but said that he was not himself when he tried to kill his wife. He admitted through an interpreter that his wife had sacrificed everything for him and said that he loved her dearly, but that he was not accountable for his actions when he took one of "his crazy spells."

NEWS BRIEFS.

J. W. Jeffreys, former State horticultural commissioner and at present the State organizer for the California Cured Fruit Exchange, spent the past week in Hemet interviewing the fruit growers and making preparations to organize the twentieth unit of the Cured Fruit Exchange organization. The Hemet organization was perfected last night, with the following officers: O. D. Ellis, president; John Allen, secretary; directors, W. F. Rieland, C. E. Corsen, O. D. Ellis, John Allen and E. G. Eggen.

Nearly fifty of the progressive young men of the valley have signed up for membership in the Country Club which is being organized here. At a meeting held yesterday a committee was appointed to look after the selection of a site and the arranging of other details. A commodious club-house will be erected, the grounds laid out in tennis courts, golf links, a baseball diamond and spaces reserved for other athletics. W. F. Whittier, the San Francisco millionaire, who has large holdings here, will assist in the movement by a large contribution.

The Hemet Commercial Club has been reorganized and W. S. Rather will be the new head of the organization. J. H. Scales, who has been president of the club since its organization, resigned. A mass meeting of the members of the club and citizens was held in the Carnegie Library building last night and it was decided to prepare a large exhibit for the county fair at Riverside, October 7 to 11, inclusive.

On account of the failure of school books to arrive, the grammar schools of the valley were forced to postpone their opening from Monday, September 15, to September 22. The Hemet grammar and high schools will open with a large enrollment. The enrollment in the high school will be over 200, while the grammar school will have at least 275.

The Indian Fiesta, held yearly at the Soboba Reservation, will commence Tuesday and will run to September 20, inclusive. A programme of athletic events, Indian games and horse racing, has been arranged for the five days, and the best Fiesta in the history of the Mexican Independence celebrations will be the result. In the evening the fire and war dance will be a very attractive feature, while the cast of an Indian eating live coals of fire will draw big crowds for the evening festivities. This year, prizes will be given the Indians who will bring various articles of wearing apparel which they have made. Prizes will also be given for the best exhibits of vegetables and products grown by the Indians. This is an innovation and is calculated to increase the interest in farming and domestic work. Liberal prizes will be given. The Soboba Reservation is under the charge of Harvey Hall, formerly of Riverside.

W. S. Rather, of the firm of Rather Bros., wholesale grain dealers, is advising the ranchers to hold their hay for better prices, which he says are sure to come. As a result many of the big ranchers of the valley are storing their grain hay, and shipments have practically ceased. Very little alfalfa is being shipped from the valley, and the growers are piling the hay in the fields waiting for an increase.

Great preparations are being made for the Carnival and Products Show which will be held from September 30 to October 4. The California Carnival Company will come to the valley for a week's stay. The products show will be the great feature of the carnival. A large tent will be erected and every district in the valley will have space for a display of their products.

News has been received that the French Percheron stallion of Abe Raphael and F. L. Rose has taken the first prize at the Santa Rosa fair for the 4-year-old class. Champion is his name and he will be taken to the State Fair at Sacramento, and will later be brought to the County fair at Riverside.

WILL INSTALL FIVE DREDGES.

Californians Join Alaskans to Develop Placers.

Pay Streak of Gravel Three to Twelve Miles Wide.

Expect to Find a Bonanza on Seward Peninsula.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TACOMA (Wash.) Sept. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Seward dispatches say that California men have joined with Alaskans to develop Alaska's best dredging placers located on the Seward peninsula. One group, headed by E. L. Thane of Juneau, has leased twenty miles of the Kenai River Valley between Kenai and Skilak Lakes, possessing a pay streak of auriferous gravel three to twelve miles wide. Prospecting the ground will cost $250,000, requiring 160 men for five years. H. T. Tripp, California mining engineer, will have charge.

If the drilling test verifies surface prospects, it is intended to begin actual mining by installing five of the world's largest gold dredges on Kenai River next summer. Joseph Houston reached Seward last month with a party of California gold dredge operators who are financing the Houston Falls Creek dredging proposition. The party includes L. E. Rankin, Max Pelham and Joseph Doss, all of Petaluma. Houston's company has 4000 acres of dredging ground twenty-five miles from Seward on both sides of the Alaska Northern Railroad. Houston has been prospecting with drills for years. Falls Creek washed the gold from the mountains where rich quartz ledges are now feeding.

"Take a chance," urged Fox.

"Sure, go ahead, you're taking a chance marrying on any old date," said the marriage license man.

One of the answers received ran: "I will be 63 in January but I weigh 155 pounds and have neither spot or blemish and I'm as tough as a hickory knot, though I have passed through two wars—the Civil and the Franco-Prussian. If I can serve, command me, and I'll be glad to pay my own expenses."

Congressman Divides Three Million Dollars Among Immediate Relatives—His Charities Cease.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Although noted for his many charities in life, Congressman Sullivan made no provision in his will to perpetuate them. His estate, estimated at about $3,000,000, is divided among his brothers and sisters and their children. The will, it was learned tonight, was drawn five years ago.

Claims against the estate, it was said, would amount to about $100,000.

The bread line that forms nightly in front of the Bowery Mission was broken last night and many derelicts gave up the chance of getting coffee and rolls to visit the rooms in the Sullivan Association and look into the face of the man who had befriended thousands. The line of persons that passed the coffin of the dead idol of the East Side continued all last night.

Employee of Napa Road Is Held Responsible for Collision With an Empty Car.

Swortfiguer said when he rounded the turn to the wharf, where the accident occurred, he was traveling eight miles an hour. He said he applied the brakes when he saw the empty coach ahead of him, but they would not hold, because the tracks had been greased at that point. General Manager J. H. Horaung of the road held that Swortfiguer had not had his car under proper control when he made the turn toward the wharf.

DEEM BILLINGS A UNION THUG.

Bertillon System Helps the Sacramento Police.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Chief of Police Johnson and Max P. Fisher, superintendent of the Bertillon system of the local police department, today succeeded in establishing the identity of the man arrested Saturday night having in his possession a suit case filled with dynamite, fuse and dynamite caps.

The man under arrest is William Y. Billings, arrested in San Francisco on April 22, on the charge of assault to murder. Billings shot W. E. Somers in that city during a quarrel among striking employees of the Herman & Frank Shoe Company.

It is alleged that Billings was a striker and attempted to murder Somers, who had filled his place in the factory.

In the melee, Billings received a bullet wound in the arm and was discharged from custody after a police court hearing because of the disagreement of the jury.

That Billings was considered a member of a gang who conspired to destroy the property of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company in this city, was admitted by the police yesterday.

KNEW OF HIS COMING.

Supt. Charles McKillop of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company said that he had information early on Saturday morning that Billings was coming to Sacramento with a suit case loaded with dynamite and that the detectives in the employ of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company were also aware of this fact.

It has also been ascertained that Billings's arrest was caused by officials of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company.

Billings, who gave the name of Tommy Harris to the police, said in an interview: "I am not an I.W.W., an anarchist nor a Socialist, but I believe in destruction."

Evidently Billings told the truth when it is considered that he had sixty sticks of dynamite and 200 feet of fuse.

Later Billings said that he thought it right to blow up the homes and property of rich people who, he declares, are opposed to the poor man. That Billings was sent to destroy the home of McKillop, is the belief of the police. He had enough dynamite to demolish the entire place. It is said that the striking electricians here are extremely bitter toward the manager of the company because of the fact that he has beaten them at every stage of the contest and managed to keep the lights going although the strikers have used large amounts of dynamite in destroying the company's property.

The police drew in their net a little too quick to catch the man they most sought. Billings was to meet one of the leaders of the strikers here, but the arrest was made before the two men got together.

The sessions of the United ...e District Court could never be ...d to order until Bailiff Ra...ph Iniguez had consulted the sun, the ... and then guessed the time of ... day. The clock of the District Court and Commissioner, the officers in the land office, and elsewhere, where it is necessary to note the hour when papers are filed, were compelled to supply themselves with dollar watches, but the winding of these made so much noise that on several occasions somnolent spectators in the court rooms imagined that a fire alarm had been turned in.

To cure that defect, when the clocks had lost all reputation for veracity, the boys on the elevators, in cases where the clerks had no watches, have been compelled to visit the neighboring shops in the vicinity of Spring, Main and New High streets to get the exact time.

Months were spent tinkering with the clocks, and the call to look over the time-pieces at the Federal building became a veritable nightmare to the clock repairers of the city. It became the custom for them to report themselves as "not in" when the message came from the assistant custodian, whose own life has been all but wrecked by the clocks.

Assistant Custodian Schooling wrestled with the clock proposition until he became a fit subject for some such incongruary institution, and then resigned. When the question was asked, "Why did he quit?" everybody familiar with the situation pointed to the clocks and held up their hands in a deprecating sort of way.

He was succeeded by Assistant Custodian Dempster. Dempster took the bull by the horns. He had seen Schooling waste away, and set his teeth. After a number of communications to the Treasury Department beginning, "Referring to yours of the ... inst.," "Allow me again to call the attention of the department to the clock outlook in Los Angeles," etc., authority was received from Washington to get bids to cure the trouble. The contractors will be required to either repair and keep in good order the present electric machinery or supplant it with real clocks. In either case perfect time must be furnished.

Two bids have been received. Under the ruling of the department not less than three must be considered, so that, though coming, the time is not yet.

No Rules.

How to tell time,

In the Federal building. This is Ralph Dominguez, court crier of the United States District Court, illustrating the manner of determining the hour since all the clocks have had their faces taken off.

MEXICO "WAR" PLAIN MURDER.

AMERICAN ANALYZES BLOODY DISORDERS OVER BORDER.

Hundreds of Dead and Wounded Piled in a Heap, Drenched in Oil and Burned After Battle—Prisoners Slain as Traitors or Spies—Starvation, and Destitution in Sonora.

Not war, but murder, is the way that Robert Aylward describes the situation in Mexico. Aylward is a refugee who arrived in Los Angeles last night after a perilous experience with the rebels. A soldier of fortune of many campaigns, including a vivid experience in the Boer War in South Africa, Aylward is qualified to judge the atrocities of the Mexican reign of terror and hopelessness.

Four hundred dead and wounded piled in a heap, drenched in oil and fired was the last great horror that he witnessed. The rebel army is unprovided with facilities for care of the wounded, and they take this barbarous method of disposing of the dead and wounded. Those who are only slightly injured are left to shift for themselves, but those unable to travel are heaped with the dead and cremated.

After the battle at Nogales on March 11, both the Federals and the rebels left their wounded on the field. When Americans from Nogales went across the line with Red Cross flags to pick up the sufferers, both sides opened fire on them.

Neither side takes prisoners. At Empalme, the division point and railway shop center of the Mexican Southern Pacific Railway, Aylward counted five Federals hanging from one tree. It is seldom that any form of trial is granted. A prisoner, even when captured in battle, is called a traitor or a spy or a murderer and killed out of hand.

The siege of Guaymas is still in the same condition that it was six months ago. Six thousand rebels under Gen. Obregon and 2000 Yaquis under nobody in particular are opposed to 7000 Federals under Gen. Djeda. The fighting is mere bushwhacking. Every time a Federal force makes a sortie the Yaquis cut it off and the result is always a drawn battle. The rebels have spent $40,000 in buying and equipping an aeroplane which was carried across the line at or near Nogales. It has not yet made a successful flight.

Conditions throughout Sonora are terrible. Only two mines in the State are in operation, the Sierra La Plata and the Creston Colorado. No crops are in the ground in any part of the State, and starvation and destitution are imminent.

Smallpox is raging in both armies, owing to the utter lack of sanitation. No means are being taken to prevent the spread of the disease. Although as yet no Americans have been killed in Sonora, they have lost everything but their lives. The rebels have appropriated everything of value, looted the mines and driven off or killed the cattle.

Miss Georgie Off,

Unique Social Function Honors Miss Georgie Off at Historic San Juan Capistrano Home.

Southern California's smart set has turned time back and once again, as in the days of the Dons, the historic landmarks between the Tehachepi and the Mexican border are the settings for gay social functions of an al fresco nature.

Down near San Juan Capistrano, half-way to San Diego, where the century old ruins of the famed mission are sturdily standing against the scythe, Maj. J. W. A. Off and his wife were hosts yesterday at one of these unique social rejuvenations.

Twenty-five intimate friends of the Off family attended the function, journeying from this city in half a dozen autos early yesterday and returning at dusk last evening.

In the shadow of the adobe and in the shade of the old grape arbor, with guitars tinkling the stories of the troubadors and muchachas and muchachos of the walnut groves tripling the "Jota" to the beat of the castanet, the guests dined and danced and made merry.

The affair was held at the Off rancho, Trabuca Canyon, where the vaquero still gallops his pony over the hills at the hoofs of the steer as his grandfather and great-grandfather did before him.

Maj. Off personally barbecued the beef and mutton and his wife prepared, with the help of her Spanish creadas, the tortillas and frijoles and other Spanish dishes.

JERSEY'S CREAM TO BULL PENS.

FINE IMPORTED STOCK SHIPPED TO OREGON RANGES.

Southern California May Secure Specimens of Pure-Bred Sires. Special Train Carries Kings of the Dairies Across Country Faster Than the Limited.

Jersey bulls, some of the finest stock ever imported to America, belong to Henry West, who has just spent a small fortune in a shipment brought all the way from the Jersey Isles of England to Seappoose, Or., where he maintains one of the noted breeding farms of the world. West arrived at the Hollenbeck yesterday on a visit to some of the Southern California stock farms. He came here as soon as his new pets were properly installed in their new foreign home.

When the six beautiful animals arrived at New York they were held in quarantine for sixty days to guarantee against infectious disease. The quarantine was anything but helpful to their condition and getting them to permanent quarters was an immediate necessity. West did what no other man has ever done for cattle—he hired a special train at great expense and the animals were transported from New York to their Oregon destination in four days and five hours, faster time than the limited passenger trains are credited with. The cattle were placed in expert hands and they soon became acclimated.

The six animals are worth about $30,000, and it is possible that two or three of them will be shipped to Southern California. West is one of the pioneer Jersey dairymen of the Pacific Coast, and is said to have imported the first Jersey cattle to Oregon.

"It is a difficult matter to obtain breeding stock of exceeding worth in America, and new blood is essential in developing the race of cows," said West. "Consequently it is essential occasionally to go to the original home of the Jersey cattle—the Jersey Isles—and secure some of the extra choice stock for breeding in this country."

West is visiting relatives in Los Angeles, among them twin sisters who have attained fame as perfect specimens of eugenic culture.

Checks Out.

GENIAL HOTEL MAN IS GONE.

ARCHIBALD D. WRIGHT UNABLE TO COMBAT PNEUMONIA.

Dies Suddenly After Contracting Cold at the Beach—Was Preparing for Big Business During Fair—Noted as Lover of Art and Letters—Loved by All.

Archibald D. Wright, father of Willard Huntington and Stanton MacDonald Wright, and himself prominently connected with the hotel business in Southern California, and formerly in the South, died of pneumonia yesterday morning at his home, No. 1121 Fifth avenue. Wright was sick about ten days, having contracted a cold at the beach, which developed into the more serious affection.

A native of New York, Wright early went to the South and entered the hotel business. He lived in several of the principal cities of North and South Carolina while following this profession, and just prior to coming to Los Angeles eleven years ago, was proprietor of a caravansary at Charlottesville, Va. Of a genial disposition, his personality smacked a trifle of the South and among the hotel men his was always considered a charming personality. He was a member of the Southern California Hotel Men's Association practically from its inception.

Wright owned the Astoria Hotel at Third and Olive streets; the Cooper Apartments at Ocean Park and the Purser Apartments at Santa Monica. He was interested in several other projected hotels and apartments, having planned extensively for handling a large business during exposition year. Outside of business he was devoted to literature and art, which spirit imbued itself in his sons. The widow is also much interested in these things.

The tragic feature of his death was the fact that Willard Huntington Wright, an editor for The Smart Set, was returning from Europe when notified of the serious turn of his father's health. He made every effort to reach here as soon as possible, but will not arrive in the city until this morning. The other son has achieved considerable success as an artist in Paris, and will not be on hand for the funeral.

Arrangements for these services are not entirely completed, but they will be held at the home tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock and the interment will be made in Rosedale Cemetery.

Panama-Pacific Deadlock.

SOUTH DENIED RIGHT TO ERECT ITS OWN BUILDING.

THE seven Southern California counties which have banded together for mutual benefit at the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco in 1915, will not be permitted to erect their own building at the fair. This is final, according to Supervisor Pridham, who returned from a conference in the north yesterday.

If the seven Southern California sister counties want to exhibit at the fair they will have to pay the floor space fee of $2.50 a square foot—in a State building to be built with bond money already voted. They have already indicated that they will do nothing of the kind.

A meeting of the commissioners at San Francisco Saturday was attended by Supervisor Pridham who acts as commissioner of Los Angeles county, and Commissioner Jasper of San Diego county. The two represented the seven counties in an endeavor to convince the San Franciscans that since the seven counties were paying $2,000,000 of the $5,000,000 bond issue, it is not right to ask these counties to pay anything additional for exhibition purposes.

The adoption of resolutions on this question in May of this year was followed by a refusal of the State Exposition Commission to accede to the demands of Southern California. In another attempt to bring this about, Commissioner Jasper and Acting Commissioner Pridham went to San Francisco last week, hoping to effect a reconsideration of the subject. The commission refused to recede.

Simmered down the proposition stands this way: The exposition backers have arranged to erect a State building and want the counties of the State to pay $2.50 a square foot for space. The commissioners will not let Southern California erect its own building. The Southern California commission refuses to contract for space in a State building on the ground that an additional charge over the bond issue already assumed is unreasonable.

Just what will be the final upshot of it all is not yet known. Supervisor Pridham has called a meeting of the seven Southern California commissioners for the 25th inst. and definite action will then be taken.

The final answer of the commission, elaborating upon what was told Commissioners Pridham and Jasper, will reach the city in a day or so.

If 25c Worth of Picric and Citric acids will, through careful quantitative tests made day by day, prove that the escape of albumen can be counteracted and that Bright's Disease is now curable by Fulton's Renal Compound if taken in hand soon enough, it is the duty of everyone interested to test this fact.

Kidney excitants (old-time kidney medicines) are contra-indicated except where there is suppression. With an agent to counteract renal degeneration Bright's Disease becomes curable in most cases where the heart is not broken down and there is recuperative power.

The new agent, Fulton's Renal Compound, is a mild infusion without stimulants, sedative or heart agents. Its motive being to counteract renal degeneration it can be seen that the usual heart, eliminative and tonic treatment which extreme cases may require can be taken with it without conflict. It commonly gets results alone if given soon enough. The substance of the formula surrounds each bottle.

If you have Bright's Disease you owe it to yourself and family to try Fulton's Renal Compound before giving up. It can be had at druggists.

Ask for pamphlet on our investigation into the curability of Bright's Disease, or write John J. Fulton Co., San Francisco.

The Times is the only newspaper in Los Angeles that does not make a practice of permitting agents, newsboys and dealers to return unsold copies of its issues. Neither does it misbrand or predate its editions, or inflate its circulation by printing more copies than are actually necessary to supply its patrons.

The Times' entire circulation is practically net, and it is more genuine and superior in every respect to that of any other newspaper.

More than three score went from this city to Sunland in auto trucks and were dispatched to the headquarters of the fighters in Haynes Canyon or to other points along the line. Others were picked up at Glendale, and although 500 men and women fought all day the fire was far from under control last night.

DESPERATE STAND.

Two serious hazards threatened last night. One the encroachment of the flames upon Arroyo Seco; the other the headway of the fire toward Big Tujunga Canyon where thick forests invite a devastating blaze. Against these two imminent possibilities a desperate stand was made near the summit of Sister Elsie peak last night.

The fire burned with undiminished fury all day yesterday. It licked far up the sides of Sister Elsie, made its way almost into Dark Canyon, which is tributary to the Arroyo Seco, and reached out toward the canyon of the Tujunga River.

Late last night the flames were within a few miles of Oakwylde Camp, situated at the junction of Dark Canyon and the Arroyo Seco. There are about 400 buildings there and over 1000 guests are at the camp. J. L. Phillips, the proprietor, said last night that there is no danger of loss of life to the party can escape, either by the trail to Pasadena or the trail to Eaton's Camp, if it should become necessary.

The fire burned most fiercely yesterday in Claremont Canyon, a small canyon which runs from the head of Haines Canyon, which was the first one to get out, and where Forest Supervisor Charles NOW has his headquarters.

GOT BACK EXHAUSTED.

Many of those who were the first to go to the fire lines were sent back to their homes exhausted, or taken to Pasadena for a day's rest, and not a few brought in to take their beds.

Indians will do everything possible to protect the watershed in the event of fire, City Commissioner Allin of this city is at the head of a force of men in the Arroyo Seco, on the other side of the divide from Supervisor Charlton and his men. The entire water department of Pasadena has been in Haynes Canyon to assist in fighting the fire.

Conditions last night were favorable for a victory over the flames in the Haynes Canyon district, and it is expected to be able to fight. The wind was blowing from the north, thus holding the fire back rather than fanning it on. Up until a late hour there had been no loss of life nor injury, though there were several narrow escapes.

ABANDONED HOME.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Beauchamp of Mrs. Beauchamp's old home in North New Hampshire arrived in Los Angeles, who have a small ranch in Haynes Canyon, abandoned everything and fled before the fire got to their home. Their house caught fire, but firefighters came along and put them out enough to put it out with buckets of water which they drawn and left behind.

"We stayed in the house," said Mrs. Beauchamp, "until it got so hot we could stand it no longer. We filled the house with water to protect the house from fire, but when we saw a wall of flame coming toward us we made a run for it. We were caught in the fire. There was no getting out of the canyon. We hitched up our horses and drove as fast as we could to get to the Bogus Camp. There was some open ground. We saved our three dogs with us.

"The flames closed in on each side of us and the canyon became so hot that how we ever got to the end and came out of it alive I don't know. The dogs burned their feet and were scorched some. No one was surprised than we were to find that our house had not burned. The flames went mostly around it and the fire-fighters were very much afraid that they quickly extinguish the fire. Some of the fire-fighters taken to Pasadena yesterday went in through Haynes and through Haynes Canyon. The Los Angeles recruits arrived just before dusk, as Supervisor Charlton was organizing his forces for the fight of the night.

Supervisor Allin sent a large force, which was recruited for night work on the ridge between Haynes Canyon and the Tejunga, which, extending in a westerly direction from Sister Elsie Mountain.

Practically every forest ranger in the district is on hand, working under the direction of Supervisor Charlton. They are T. W. Sloan, M. V. Hartranft, L. L. Bilkwood, W. de Franklin, J. L. Quigley, Dale, R. C. Doughty and Rowland.

Assistance has been made from Pasadena has heretofore obtained and Frank Haynie, chief of the Los Angeles forestry office, has appointed fiscal agent, and the Haynes Canyon camp will be paid promptly for their services instead of having to wait, as has been the case, it is said. "There is nothing of all."

CLAIMS HARDSHIP.

Charles Hartward, owner of property in Haynes Canyon, turned his attention on the ranch to the fighting and his forest rangers and his forest fighters. Saturday night was in the path of the fire, and many of the trees and shrubs were burned, the fire did not work on the part of the house where the fire was saved. Hartward early Sunday morning, came out of Haynes Canyon, leaving the fire in the burned track and headed for the headquarters.

Much has been made of the heroic men who are fighting the fire, the hasty work of procuring of provisions for the men and the men who are working to the fire. Stores of provisions were sent in from Pasadena. Several wagon loads went out yesterday.

Many of those who were at the fire in Haynes Canyon and who, with the Haynes Canyon Country Club, were compelled to flee last night, returned to their homes this morning. There were made up and sent out from Pasadena and Los Angeles, all the Allen Boyds, all of the Westley Arthur and Mr. Hunt.

firefighters in Haynes Canyon Saturday night and early Sunday morning and aided others at Sunland in getting a relief squad early yesterday to aid the fighters along the line. When the fire showed a trend toward the upper Big Tejunga Canyon, and the ranches in the vicinity of Sunland were out of the danger zone, an urgent call for assistance was sent in.

Burros were pressed into service packing water from the Haynes Canyon Creek over the shoulder of Sister Elsie Mountain to the Tejunga side. The water systems running down from the mountains to the small towns and ranches along the south slope of the range were burned over and in many places exposed, but the pipes were not damaged and there was no disturbance of the water service.

Chickens Swim Like Ducks.

[Indianapolis News:] Christopher Helt, whose farm is in Redding township, adjoining Sand Creek, Jackson county, Indiana, has a number of chickens that take their daily plunge in the stream, and seem to enjoy it. A number of persons who doubted the story were at the farm a few days ago and, much to their surprise, they saw four hens and a rooster walk into the water, swim to the opposite bank and strut away without shaking a feather. The swimming habit has become so common with some of the chickens that they seem to prefer to stay in the water to staying on the land during the hot hours of the day. Mr. Helt believes the birds have acquired the habit because of their proximity to the stream.

Two Sisters Are Married at a Double Wedding.

PHOENIX (Ariz.) Sept. 13.—An echo of the street railway strike was started Tuesday night by Special Officer Marion McCann, who fired at some unknown individual detected in the act of tampering with a switch at the corner of North First and Pierce streets. McCann wanted to enforce his demand for surrender, but missed his purpose, for the fellow, a tall, roughly-dressed individual, flew around a corner and escaped. On several occasions obstructions have been found wedged into the Pierce-street switch, where one car thereby was derailed, with a severe shaking-up of the passengers.

Tuesday evening, near Tempe, Augustin Montijo, aged 8, was shot and killed by his elder brother, Ignacio. The latter saw what he thought was a skunk moving in the bushes near his home, and, securing a shotgun, shot at the object. It proved to be his brother, the lead tearing away the side of the child's body. Agustin, though apparently mentally bright, was deaf and dumb and hence was unable to cry out if he comprehended his brother's deadly purpose.

A. W. Henry of Winkelman died Tuesday night from a gunshot wound accidentally received the previous Sunday while hunting.

Near Smith's Mill, on the dry channel of the Hassayampa River, ten miles from Vulture, lately, was found the skeleton of a man who probably perished of thirst, not less than six months ago. In a pocket were found three envelopes, addressed from Quartzite, Chloride and Kingman to "Billy Lynch." No valuables were found on the body.

FOR "PURITY" SUNDAY.

By formal proclamation, Gov. Hunt has advised observance of "Purity Sunday," November 2, "by churches, fraternal orders and kindred organizations for the promotion of social and personal purity." The Governor states his opinion that "the devoting of this day to the fostering of these influences, which supplant disastrous ignorance with that knowledge of the sanctity of sex relations, which enhances human health and happiness, would be a potent factor for wholesome environment and exalted parenthood."

Applications for surveys already made by the State Land Commission will demand the work of at least six engineering parties put in the field by the Surveyor-General for more than three years to come. The State has asked the platting of 3,500,000 acres already and new selections are being made by the commission from time to time. The parties now in the field are surveying at the rate of 1,000,000 acres per annum.

By the operating of the free textbook law, an immense amount of work has been added to the office of the State Superintendent of Schools. About all the schools will open during the latter part of September and to each school has been dispatched its estimated quota of books. The contract for the books is held by a Phoenix firm and approximates $90,000.

MACHINE GUN COMPANY.

An addition to the National Guard of Arizona is to be a machine gun company, to be under the personal direction of Lieut. LaGarde of the regular army, assigned to the instruction of the Arizona militia. One platoon of the company, with two guns, will be at Tucson and a second platoon at Phoenix.

Tuesday afternoon in Tempe at the family home of the bride occurred a double wedding, in which were joined Irene K. Woolf and William H. Caruthers, and Mabel H. Woolf and Charles M. Halstead. The brides are graduates of the State Normal School and have taught in the county schools. They are daughters of J. W. Woolf, a Tempe capitalist, who has several terms in the Arizona Legislature. Mr. Caruthers is a member of the staff of the State Engineer, and Mr. Halstead is the Santa Fe Railroad agent at Needles, Cal. The honeymoon of both couples will be spent on the Grand Canyon.

Linked?

TWO MYSTERIES MAY PROVE ONE.

Injured Woman Mother of Abandoned Child?

Unidentified Patient Has a Crushed Skull.

Parents Leave Little Girl in Strange Hands.

Simultaneous reports that a child had been abandoned by a tearful mother in a Main-street restaurant yesterday and that an unidentified woman with her skull crushed had been found unconscious in the shadow of a house at Rose avenue, Venice, gave the city and beach police a double mystery last night.

Detectives placed on the case at midnight are working on the theory that the abandonment and assault cases are linked in some as yet unascertained way and they are scouring the city for a man who was with the woman when the child was abandoned.

Report of the abandonment case was made to the officer on the beat at First and Main streets, when the proprietor of the restaurant, whose name the authorities are temporarily withholding, appeared with the child.

According to his story to the patrolman, the child was brought to his establishment early yesterday morning by a couple who have been dining there for some time. Their identities are not known to the police or to the restaurant keeper.

"We are going to Venice," the woman said, "and wish you would keep our baby here until we return. We shall not be long."

At 10 o'clock last night the child toddled up to the restaurant proprietor and placed a note in his hand.

"My mamma told me to give you that at 10 o'clock," she said.

The note read: "Take South Pasadena car to Gates street; turn three blocks east and wait."

The proprietor reported the matter and then, on a long gamble, bundled the child up last night and took her to Pasadena. At midnight the police had failed to locate the parents.

The second link in what they believe is a double mystery came when the beach police reported the discovery of the unidentified woman in Venice.

Surgeons at St. Catherine's Hospital stated after examination of the patient that she had been struck by some blunt instrument which fractured the skull just back of the right ear.

The woman is rather attractive, about 30 years of age, attired in a tailored dark purple suit, the coat of which had been torn, as had her waist. Inspection of her effects failed to reveal a single identification mark and she had not regained consciousness so the authorities were unable to procure a statement.

Electricity to Reduce Fat.

[Indianapolis News:] "Bergonization" is the name given to the application of electricity as a method of strengthening the muscles and reducing the fat. This new method has been devised by Prof. Bergonie of Bordeaux. In this application there are required the Faraday current, rheostat, an electrode chair and electrodes, and the "session," accompanied by excessive perspiration, lasts an hour. Bergonie claims to have had cases in which fat men were made to shrink as much as thirty-three pounds in six weeks.

SCHOOL PROSPECTS GOOD DESPITE CASH HANDICAP.

Seventy-five Thousand Children on Opening Day Will Soon Be Ninety Thousand—Some Departments Badly Crippled for Lack of Money—Credit for Home Work the Biggest Innovation This Year.

FACING a crippled financial condition and much uncertainty regarding the budget, now in the hands of the County Supervisors, the public schools of the city will open their doors today to approximately 75,000 children.

The most serious difficulty which faces the department is the lack of school accommodations for grammar grades, while Polytechnic, Los Angeles and Manual Arts high schools are also expected to be overcrowded, despite the opening of the new Lincoln High School, with its forty rooms, in East Los Angeles. Two new schools, the Forty-ninth-street school, near McKinley avenue, which contains sixteen rooms and an auditorium, and Santa Barbara-avenue school, near Western avenue, with eleven rooms and auditorium, will accommodate children of these neighborhoods; but in the rapidly-growing sections, especially in the southeast, it is expected that many half-day schools must be opened within a short time.

Last year the total enrollment was 79,882. Deputy Superintendent Monlux is authority for the statement that the enrollment, judging from the experience of past years, will this year mount up to 90,000. Last year there were 2100 teachers; this year there are 2200.

"We are facing a double obstacle to the building of additional schools," said Monlux yesterday. "Not only has the appropriation been cut down, but a recent ruling has been made that money cannot be raised as heretofore by special tax levy, and we must go through the long and cumbersome process of obtaining a bond issue for the purpose. Fifty thousand people are reported coming in with the home-seekers' excursion this fall. Also we must prepare for the hordes that will enter our city with the opening of the Panama Canal. Seventy-five thousand tickets have been sold in Berlin alone to those coming to this State. What are we to do with this immense growth?"

"We don't know yet what the Supervisors will do concerning high schools and kindergartens, but while exercising all due economy, we are beginning our school work along the lines we consider best for the children," said Superintendent Francis. "We sympathize with every effort to economize, and are preparing for strict measures in this direction, but hope the work of the schools will not be crippled, for this will be expensive to the city in the long run."

CRAMPED FACILITIES.

"Los Angeles is facing another famine in school buildings, and the old regrettable practice of half-day schools will soon be forced upon us, and the enrollment per teacher will have to be raised, seriously handicapping the work. Demands are coming from all parts of the city for an enlargement of school facilities, and in the newer sections of the city this is especially true. The board this year will be unprepared to meet this demand, on account of limited finances. There is a great call for the establishment of kindergartens in all sections where they do not exist, and this demand the board is anxious to meet, but in most places they will be powerless.

"I do not see, indeed, how we can close our night schools, since the law demands that children under a certain age who do not attend day school must attend night school. Thus not only are they given practical education, but they are kept off the streets. Another class of people who greatly benefit by the night schools are the foreigners, who must be assimilated with American civilization and be prepared for American citizenship."

The evening schools are located at Los Angeles High, Polytechnic High, at Macy street, Amelia street, Vernon avenue, Olive street, Loreto street, Castelar street, Grand avenue, Fourteenth street, Boyd street, Utah street, First and Cornwell street schools. Classes will be closed, however, whenever enrollment falls below fifteen.

The strictest economy is to be practiced wherever this can be done without crippling the work. In the purchase of supplies, apparatus and equipment a plan is to be worked out whereby committees may pass upon the absolute necessities of the schools.

VOCATIONAL GUIDANCE.

Vocational guidance in the High Schools will be developed during the coming year, and it is hoped to have a vocational and employment bureau in each one of the secondary schools, besides an instructor whose business it is to confer with students regarding the occupations for which they are best suited.

CREDITS FOR HOME WORK.

Credits for home work! Los Angeles will during the coming year have the distinction of being the first city in California to adopt this plan of recognizing all the work which the child does and of which he is capable. A committee of teachers is at work on a plan by which such credit may be intelligently given. Doubtless weary mothers and fathers will rejoice, for if the long arm of education can reach out and gently propel Johnny toward the woodpile, and if Mary thinks she will be rewarded at school by a proper setting of the table and dusting of the furniture, she will probably be more interested in dealing the proper number of knives and forks and the casual visitor will be able to tell that the piano is really mahogany and not ironwood, as had been suspected.

Credits will be given for music and art studied with private teachers, for cookery and sewing, where results can be shown, for care of domestic animals and pets, and all other home work showing definite results.

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL.

A cosmopolitan school for the teaching of French, German, Spanish and probably Italian, will be opened in two rooms at Grand-avenue school. This is in answer to a demand from many foreign societies of the city and for foreign-born parents that their children be taught to properly speak the tongue which they themselves hold dear, and partly because of the demand for clerks, stenographers and others who speak foreign languages in this cosmopolitan city. The school will be a center to which pupils will come from all parts of the city for two or three periods a week.

NEW SCHOOLS.

Lincoln High School, with its forty rooms, will open tomorrow. An enrollment of about 500 is expected, and if the High School budget is allowed, the complete equipment will be at once installed, and the sewing-rooms, domestic science-rooms, domestic art, millinery, laboratories, library and shops will be made ready for business. Boyle Heights intermediate school will not open until February, but when finished will be in many respects the best school in the city or on the Coast, not even excepting the High Schools.

In time it is expected to carry the work beyond the ninth grade. The domestic science rooms and woodshops and laboratories are said to be among the best planned in the country.

Gardena Agricultural High School will continue to turn out farmers. The fourteen acres are all under cultivation by the pupils, the dairying department is well equipped, and the laboratories are used merely as aids to the real business of farming. Both Dean Hunt and Prof. Hummel of the agricultural department of the State University, declared last summer that Los Angeles was doing the most effective educational work in agriculture that is being done in California.

The junior college work will be continued this year at Los Angeles and Polytechnic High Schools, thus enabling boys and girls to go to college without leaving home.

FINANCIAL.

The High School situation, as shown by figures from Auditor Lenz's office, is critical. The enrollment last year was nearly 10,000; this year it will be about 12,000. The report of the financial condition of this department shows disbursements and liabilities assumed for two months, July 1 to August 31, 1913, with an approximate estimate of the income for the year 1913-14 as follows:

Balances on hand July 1, 1913, not including building fund, $181,083; estimated income from State and county school funds for 1913-14, $71,810; to be raised by special tax on assessed valuation of $413,420,013, less allowance of 5 per cent. delinquencies at rate of 27 cents, $1,060,424. Total income year 1913-14, approximately, $1,313,317, less for outstanding debts of 1912-13, $159,543. Balance for maintenance of High School department, 1913-14, $1,153,774. This is an average of $96,148 per month; deduct estimate for salaries, $91,148, and we get a balance to run all the High Schools of the city, for all purposes except salaries, $5000 per month. This is as against the income of $30,000 last year.

Their Own Educators.

for the child's development. She says: "It is not hygiene which renders us robust, it is the freedom that hygiene gives." And again, "In the field of the psychological development of our children, joy is the sign that they are developing normally."

"The apparatus is easy to handle, enabling the child to help himself and to put it away. Much of the work is done on the floor, on mats, as the limbs at this age are making a greater growth than the rest of the body, and should be protected from too much weight.

DEVELOPING THE SENSES.

"The thermic exercises render the sense of touch more acute; rough and smooth exercises develop touch for sandpaper letter tracing. The direct object of sandpaper letters is to assist the child's speech and hearing, develop language, and to discover defects of sight, hearing or speech before too late; the indirect object is to select letters as an apparatus useful for reading and writing. As the last step in a long series of sensory and motor correlations, the sandpaper letters teach children to write almost perfect script. Through exercises with the solid geometrical insert apparatus, children are prepared to learn arithmetic."

Owing to the widespread interest in these schools, visitors will be permitted to enter them only by permit from Superintendent Francis's office.

Charged With Selling Mortgaged Property He Fails to Impress Court at Preliminary Trial.

TULARE, Sept. 14.—W. A. Iden, former minister and realty operator of Tulare, was held to answer to the Superior Court by Judge DeWitt yesterday afternoon on a charge of having disposed of property mortgaged to E. A. Stellar, a resident of the Pixley district. Evidence offered by the prosecution had occupied two days. The defense did not offer any witnesses.

Stellar, who was the chief witness, related that Iden had given him a mortgage for $3500, covering 115 head of stock. A short time later, Stellar said, the cattle could not be found and it was learned that the animals had been sold to various dairymen throughout the county.

Several witnesses were called to corroborate the story of Stellar.

Iden's second hearing starts Monday on a similar charge of disposing of mortgaged property, preferred by W. B. Cartmill, manager of a local creamery.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

Officers for the ensuing year were elected yesterday evening by delegates in convention in this city for the San Joaquin Valley district Fraternal Aid Association. Tulare secured the president, the secretary and the chaplain.

Officers chosen were as follows: R. A. Carr, La Granda, Past President; Edna Grayton, Tulare, President; Mattie Ferguson, Hanford, Vice-President; A. Gustafson, Hanford, Treasurer; Mrs. C. S. Eaton, Tulare, Secretary; Mary A. McMillan, Tulare, Chaplain; Edna Vail, Hanford, Guide; T. W. Anderson, Visalia, Observer; M. Phillips, Lindsay, Sentinel.

Fresno was chosen as the next meeting place for the association.

"MOVIE" OPERATOR CONFESSES HE KILLED MECHANIC.

Weak Infatuation for Latter's Wife, Clerk in a Tailor's Shop, Cause of the Crime—Prisoner Sprawls on Sheriff's Floor in Maudlin Effort to Elicit Sympathy.

The mystery behind the killing of Frank E. J. Nelson early Saturday morning at Florence Station was dissipated yesterday by the arrest and subsequent confession of James Francis Cook, a moving picture operator who lives with his wife in an apartment near the corner of West Eighth and Georgia streets. Infatuation for Nelson's wife is Cook's reason for the crime.

Cook was arrested at his home early yesterday morning by Deputy Sheriffs Wright, Bradfield and Green, working under the direction of Sheriff Hammel. He was in bed and made no effort at escape. At first he denied the shooting although admitting that he knew Nelson slightly. After several hours of close questioning and being confronted by the evidences gathered yesterday, he made a formal confession.

Yesterday afternoon Cook lay on the floor of the Sheriff's office, apparently too weak to repeat his story, but the Sheriff told it for him and Cook agreed to every detail.

The prisoner has the look of a patient in the last stages of tuberculosis. He says he has catarrh of the stomach and he displayed a desire to make his physical condition appear as bad as possible. He is very thin, about five feet six inches tall, has a receding chin, eyes which seem set in the back of his head and are unnaturally bright. He wears a straggling mustache and has a general air of indecision.

The story Cook tells is about as sordid as himself. In love with the wife of the murdered man he determined that the best way to get her was to kill the husband. On Tuesday he bought a cheap .38-caliber revolver from a pawn shop on Main street. He saw Mrs. Nelson on that day, but did not tell her of his purchase.

Friday night instead of going home after his work at the Federal Theater on North Broadway was completed and he had spun his last reel of movy thriller, he boarded a car for Florence Station; walked up and down in lonely patrol until about 5 o'clock when he knew Nelson started for work. No one was about. The country was quiet; Nelson was unsuspecting. He stole close to him in the half light, and shot him dead, leaving the revolver by his side to indicate suicide.

Then he rode home and went to bed. His wife noticed nothing unusual in his demeanor, and he went to work as usual on Saturday. In the meantime the officers at work upon the case traced the gun back to the Main-street pawn shop where they found it had been sold to a man giving the name of Nelson. His description did not tally with that of the dead man, but the description of the purchaser who bought the revolver and that given by neighbors living near Nelson's of a mysterious visitor to the house tallied to a nicety. The trail after that led directly to the Cook domicile. Mrs. Nelson was yesterday interrogated at considerable length and is said to have corroborated the officers' suspicions.

Mrs. Cook is a clerk in a Broadway store and claims to have known nothing of her husband's infatuation for the other woman. She endeavored to shield him by stating that he was home as usual on the night of the murder. Mrs. Nelson is a clerk in a downtown tailoring establishment. Cook maintained an "office" in the Germain building until the first of September, when he was requested by the management to vacate because of the complaint of other tenants, who objected to the frequent visits of a woman. A favorite pastime of Cook and Mrs. Nelson during the leisure hours of each was attending moving picture theaters.

The prisoner is 33 years old and is the son of W. H. Cook, No. 2005 Roberts street, Hollywood.

PORTERVILLE STONE.

PORTERVILLE, Sept. 14.—In competition with stone from all portions of California and the Coast, Porterville granite will be used in the construction of the new $2,000,000 City Hall in San Francisco. Adolph Fernu of Rocklin, where he owns a granite quarry, has been given the contract for furnishing the stone, and Porterville black granite and gray granite will be shipped in train-load lots for the construction. Large forces of men will be put at work in the quarries, of which there are four in the foothills east of this city, and large additions will be made to the cuting and polishing works in this city to handle the immense lot of stone expeditiously. It is stated by experts that the Porterville rock is the best quarried in America and that in density and hardness surpasses even the best stone from Barre, Vt., which has a national market.

ROYALTY IN A BATTLE ROYAL.

Los Angeles Countess Lands in Arizona Hospital.

Klondike Romance Punctured by Desert Cactus.

Latterly the count has fallen upon evil days, and from the proud eminence of a pampered favorite at the court of the Czar of all the Russias he has come to be a caretaker for J. J. Brown, a millionaire resident of the old pueblo city.

There isn't much romance, however, in the story of the alleged assault. It reads like a page from the record of any police court, any day. "The countess denied strongly," it reads, "that she tried to carve the count with a butcher knife, or that she kicked His Highness. She testified that the count tried to make a plaster cast of her face in the mud bank of an irrigation ditch."

KLONDIKE ROMANCE.

The beginning of the love story which promises so sordid an ending had its setting away up in the frozen northland. The count occupied a lonely cabin far from the haunts of man. One day the countess-that-was-to-be passing that way with dog sleds and Indian guide seeking local color for her work as newspaper correspondent sent into the Klondike to tell the people of California and the world just how much truth there was in the wonderful stories of fabulous riches to be had for the plucking, was held up and robbed almost within sight of the temporary "palace" of the count.

He went to the rescue, and almost immediately a magnificent opal which the Los Angeles girl was wearing attracted his attention. "It was my mother's," he declared. "Be mine." She protested that she came by the opal as security for a certain debt. The opal, the count declared, was a family heirloom.

So she married him and they returned to the States, where she had mining claims in Arizona and real estate in Los Angeles and San Diego. Since then their wanderings have been varied, finally taking them to Tucson, where he became a caretaker and carpenter, while she spent much of her time in this city. According to her story related in Tucson their life has been marked by frequent quarrels and harsh treatment, ending in the alleged assault, the arrest of the count and her removal to a hospital.

DRAMATIC HEARING.

The countess is 49 years old and in the preliminary hearing became so dramatic as to excite the comment of the attorney for the defense. The countess said that what appeared to be heroics was in reality deepest suffering.

The trouble is said to have been brought about because of a will drawn by the countess, cutting her royal husband off with only income rights. She claims to be worth at least $100,000.

NUMBER THREE.

The count represents her third trial in the matrimonial mart, although Nos. 1 and 2 were plain American citizens. The first one was Frank Higbee, whom she married when she was 16, and who, she says, "was killed in the apartments of an actress in New York under circumstances which have never been explained."

No. 2 was a capitalist, Col. L. P. Crane, whose money was tied up in projects in Lower California. He made his headquarters in Los Angeles and San Diego. There was a divorce and his wife says she went to Alaska as a newspaper correspondent and personal representative of a number of wealthy Los Angeles women, who wanted first hand knowledge of the opportunities in the Klondike.

The countess told an interviewer that she had once saved Morojeski from the penitentiary, and that while she may forgive him again she will tell the truth on the witness stand.

FACILITIES WERE TAXED.

VENICE, Sept. 14.—Facilities of the Pacific Electric were taxed today in taking care of one of the largest crowds which ever came to seek a day's recreation and relief from the heat at the seashore. An estimate of 45,000 visitors, by trolley and autos, was made by one of the traction officials.

The places of interest and travel were densely crowded with those who moved hither and thither in search of amusement after they had found the cool breezes. The pier, Windward avenue, the ocean front and the sand held thousands during the late morning and afternoon.

Considering the congestion of autos it is wonderful that there were not serious accidents. There was but one arrest, that of Morris Rothman, accused of larceny. Roger McLean, a photographer at the Venice Drug Store, was approached by Rothman, who offered to sell him a $60 camera for $5. McLean held him in talk until he got the police. It is stated that Rothman took the camera from an automobile at Ocean Park belonging to E. F. Morgan, No. 2139 Cambridge street, Los Angeles.

LAND OPEN FOR ENTRY.

IMPERIAL, Sept. 14.—About 3000 acres of land will be thrown open for entry by the government in the Imperial Valley September 15. The land is above high line canal and is therefore of questionable value. It is in township 16½ south, range 12 east, together with a small tract located in the sand hills between the Ost Canal and the Alamo River, which cannot be irrigated by gravity flow. Many adjustments of lands in the excess tracts of the Imperial Land Company survey not taken care of in the government resurvey take effect on that date, according to plats recently received from the general land office. These latter corrections in the map are merely to allow the patenting of land filed on several years ago.

FREAK SUITS ARE FILED.

Past Week Has Added an Unusual Chapter to the History of Kern County Litigation.

BAKERSFIELD, Sept. 14.—The past week has been unusual for the filing of unusual and sensational suits in the Superior Court of this county. In addition to the $200,000 damage suit filed by C. L. Dennen against the Democratic county leaders and the members of the grand jury, and the $50,000 libel suit filed by Edmund Burke against Barclay McCowan, Dist.-Atty. Irwin, in the name of the People of the State of California, has filed a suit against the city of Maricopa to recover $3275 in fines taxed against gamblers in Maricopa by City Recorder Brown.

The District Attorney says the suit is unlike any ever filed before. Following the incorporation of Maricopa the City Trustees adopted an ordinance identical in terms with the State law against gambling, and as soon as the ordinance went into effect the City Marshal and Recorder got busy with the people who were running illegal games. Upward of twenty gamblers were fined $100 each, a very few getting off with $50 or $75 each.

But the County Supervisors and the District Attorney evolved the theory that the Maricopa ordinance, being a copy of the State law, is void, and Recorder Brown, being also a justice of the peace, the fines levied by him should go to the county and not to the city.

Still another unusual suit was filed by Matthew S. Platz, a local attorney, and one of the depositors of the defunct Kern Valley Bank. Platz had something over $4000 on deposit when the bank failed, and has received half the amount in dividends from the State Bank Superintendent. Instead of suing all the stockholders for the entire amount due him, he has brought suit against H. A. Jastro for $225.51, which he figures is Jastro's proportion of the liability for his claim, according to the amount of stock in the bank which stands in Jastro's name. Jastro has several times made public announcement that he owns no stock in the bank, and that the stock credited to him was merely held in trust.

COUNTY NIGHT SCHOOLS.

South Pasadena and Other Cities Are to Have Meetings Where Teachers Will Study Methods.

SOUTH PASADENA, Sept. 14.—That South Pasadena together with other cities scattered over Los Angeles County will be the headquarters of a night school under the supervision of county school authorities, seems probable, according to statements made by E. E. Knepper, former school superintendent of Monrovia, who was appointed last Wednesday as one of the two assistant superintendents of county schools by Superintendent Mark Kepple.

At county night schools and social centers, farmers could gather to study better methods of irrigation, fertilization and farming and hear lectures by experts on different topics, according to the new appointee. Such a system, Knepper asserts, would soon result in increased crops at the same or reduced cost of planting.

The grammar schools of the city were scenes of unusual activity Friday forenoon when the newly arrived text-books were distributed to all grades. Out of 4400 books ordered, 3000 were received by Superintendent Bush, and no time was lost in the matter of distribution and before evening every pupil was fairly well supplied. There are still 1400 to come, but those on hand together with the old books, can be made to tide over for another week. It is believed that South Pasadena schools are the first in the county to receive the new books.

The schools have opened with a larger attendance than in any previous year. It is believed that there will be still a further increase within the next week, as many of the parents have not returned from the beaches. The increase is noticeable in all grades at all the buildings. Superintendent Bush is much enthused over the prospects ahead for the most successful year in the history of the schools.

South Pasadena is particularly interested in statues recently adopted by the State Legislature, because they affect a number of local issues that heretofore have been open questions. Among them are the new laws which govern the payment of salaries by the city; payment for street work by property owners; power to keep close-in lots free from weeds and debris and to charge cost of cleaning to property owners; provision that office holders other than trustees do not necessarily have to live in the city. Following these laws, the City Treasurer has been made a salaried officer, instead of depending upon fees for his emoluments from his position. The salary was fixed at $75 per month. City Clerk John W. Scott has been appointed Deputy Tax and License Collector, to accommodate those South Pasadenans, including women property owners with household cares, who find it difficult to go to Los Angeles to pay taxes.

The South Pasadena Women's Improvement Association has issued stock certificate forms for use in taking subscriptions to the club house fund. This step, somewhat after the plan of the Shakespeare club in Pasadena, will make contributors part owners of the clubhouse until such time as the club as a body can buy in the stock. As the clubhouse is in one of the finest residential districts, and as the building is substantial and handsome, it is expected that the certificates will be bought up quickly. This plan has been successful elsewhere and the club members after making thorough investigation of ways and means have decided that this is the most feasible way to finish paying off their new clubhouse.

IMPERIAL BRIEFS.

IMPERIAL, Sept. 14.—County Bee Inspector A. F. Wagner declared a quarantine yesterday against the importation of bees from all districts infested with European foul brood.

The local honey industry has been and is seriously menaced by the appearance of the European foul brood from Riverside and San Diego counties, where proper precaution has not been taken by the authorities to stamp out the disease. When a colony of bees dies from this disease the bees of other colonies steal the honey and in that way spread the disease. For four years or more this disease has been known to be spreading toward the Southwest at the rate of from forty to fifty miles every year, and now it is within seventy-five miles of the Imperial Valley. The quarantine against all bees from infected sections will be rigidly enforced by the bee authorities here.

NEWS BRIEFS.

A large Chinese colony is being formed in the vicinity of Guaymas, Mex. More than 1000 Chinese left their native land bound for that point within the last month. Of this number 360 are confined on Angel Island under bond at the immigration station. All are farmers from the neighborhood of Hong Kong. The Chinese on Angel Island are all of the new China class, wearing no queue and dressed in the style of Americans, and all have discarded the Chinese shoes for the leather ones.

List of All Prize Winners of Tourney.

BY ALMA WHITAKER.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

DEL MONTE, Sept. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The open championship, thirty-six holes total play, started this morning with twenty-one professionals entered. The morning round was a disappointment as it was expected that seventy would be beaten. Bob Black of Claremont had the low score for the first eighteen with a 37 out 37 in, 74.

William Hanley was the low score going out with 36, but coming in his putts would not go down and the best he could do was 41. Total 77.

The other scores for the morning round were:

George Smith	out 38	in 36	74
F. J. Reilly	out 40	in 38	78

In the afternoon round George Smith, last year's winner, settled down to business and out in 35 led the field by one stroke. Coming home in 33 he showed the class and once more is champion golfer of the State.

HAS THE HABIT.

This is Smith's eighth championship and the younger school, although improving each year, have not been able to beat him. His score this year is two strokes better than the winning score last year when his brother, Mac, and he tied, George winning in the play off.

Final scores: George Smith, 144, first prize, $100; John Black, 150, second prize, $50; Hutt Martin, 150, second prize, $50; Jim Smith, 152, third prize, $45; George Martin, 152, third prize, $45; A. Hutt Martin of the Los Angeles Country Club played fine 71 in the afternoon and if he could have got away well in the morning round had a grand chance for the championship.

His brother, George, of the Virginia Country Club of Long Beach had a fine 73 in the afternoon, tieing for fourth place.

William Hanley of Annandale failed to get going good in the afternoon and the best he could do being an 80, getting a tie for tenth money. Ernest Martin with 159 just failed to get in the money.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Ground was gained last week by both the major league leaders in line for world's championship honors and with both Giants and Athletics playing a stronger and more consistent game than for weeks previous there seems hardly a chance remaining for an upset before the close of the season, now a bare three weeks away.

The most marked improvement was shown by McGraw's men. While the Athletics dropped two games to the White Sox before they braced and evened up the series, the Clevelands broke under the Washington attack and again missed a splendid chance to work themselves into a position where the Mackmen would have had the fight of their lives for championship laurels.

Washington, Cleveland's Nemesis since the early days of the American League, has thus to all appearances put the final check upon the Naps' chances for the flag and in the last few days even the Cleveland title to second place has been threatened. Birmingham's men, however, made a good start in Philadelphia by downing the Athletics yesterday in the first game of the series.

In the National League the Giants' lead as the week opened was an even eight games and though they met defeat in Chicago today, their advantage is so commanding that they would have to lose the great majority of their future games while Philadelphia was winning steadily to give the Quakers a look in for ultimate honors.

The Giant boxmen, with the possible exception of Marquard, are showing class. Marquard, indeed, won his only game of the week, but was mauled with some severity by the Cubs as

THE TIGERS went into training yesterday for the important Portland series.

In the morning they beat the Angels, 8 to 3—a mere exercise romp.

They settled down to heavy work in the afternoon, hit the ball until they were blue in the face, ran the bases until their tongues hung out, and didn't stop for a rubdown and a hair-comb until they had reduced the once proud Los Angeles team to a couple of shoe buckles and a grease spot.

The score of the afternoon malady was Venice 17, Los Angeles 8.

Those who are not willing to take my unbiased word for this are at perfect liberty to consult the box score.

Incidentally, we venture the suggestion that the Tigers hereafter, when they have any training to do, attend to it in private.

If yesterday's fulmination is any criterion of what the Tigers are planning to do in Portland, then bye, bye, Beavers.

"TY" HOGAN.

Hap Hogan led the afternoon rampage in person. Hap gave an exhibition of hitting calculated to make Joe Jackson throw away his bat and quit the diamond for life. He began running amuck with the bludgeon in the second inning, and didn't let up until he had cracked out four singles in five trips to the bingle bin.

Everyone of his blows were timely and psychological. Hap's individual fusillade alone drove five runs over the pan, and he delivered one in person.

Inspired by the noble example of their slugging leader, the Tigers tore off a grand total of twenty hits. Men have been sent to the pen for less than that. Jack Ryan was the unhappy centerpiece for five and a third innings.

Poll Perritt followed Ryan into the death trap, and the Tigers sprung the mine under him in the eighth. There wasn't enough left of Poll to make a good healty corpse.

ROY POPULAR.

Roy Hitt's curves also met with universal favor, the fat boy being hammered sixteen different ways from the box office for eight honest runs. Roy remained unruffled through it all. He should worry with his pals spotting him to seventeen tallies.

Hogan began shedding baseknits in the second inning, following McDonnell's triple with a single through the heart of the diamond for the first ace of the game.

In the fourth with McDonnell on second, Hap again hove into view on the batting horizon. It was the general concensus of opinion in sporting circles that he couldn't repeat. Hogan resented this skepticism and skimmed a "Texas leaguer" over Page, scoring McDonnell a second time.

HAP ENSHRINED.

By this time Hap was the worshipful hero, and he couldn't spit without the crowd getting up and cheering.

But he fell into sudden disfavor by openly chiding Litschi for not going after Krueger's foul in the fourth, when the Angels scored their first marker on singles by Ellis and Metzger.

The game degenerated into a mere batting epidemic in the sixth, the Tigers running around the bases like a squad of Kiviats. Ten of them batted and seven of them scored.

The slaughter started with rapid-fire doubles by Bayless and Brashear, Dick scoring. O'Rourke walked and Litschi was penalized for the unpardonable sin of bunting the third strike foul. McDonnell dumped the ball in front of the plate. Mac reached first while Ryan and Arbogast were arguing as to which of them should pick it up.

MORE ENTHUSIASM.

Hogan, aflame with batting zeal, confounded his critics with a line single over second, scoring Brashear. The fickle fans who had been hooting Hap since the Litschi unpleasantness now cheered him with much zeal and frenzy.

That was Ryan's finish. Dillon declared that any pitcher whom Hogan could hit three times in a row couldn't work for him. Perritt stepped forth with many misgivings. Hitt skipped the ball to Howard. Ivan, with not much chance to get O'Rourke at the plate, threw the ball there anyway. That was bad enough, but his aim was worse. Patsy and McDonnell scoring in a heap, Hogan steaming around to third and Hitt waddling to second. Carlisle died to Krueger and Hogan, running like a duck, scored after the catch. Perritt hit Kane in the pot roast section of his anatomy.

Dick Bayless, who if you will jog up your memory, will be recalled as having started the massacre with a double, called around again and swatted a single to center, the same hoisting Hitt to the plate. Dick started to steal second, and delayed his demise on the line until Kane had gum-shoed in from third.

Brashear's walk, O'Rourke's single and a couple of sacrifices gave the Tigers a run in the seventh, and kept them from taking cold.

Hogan's men ran themselves into a lather again in the eighth, eleven of them taking exercise with the bat and seven of them flocking over the plate.

THE SLAUGHTER.

Hitt opened the round mildly with a fly to Ellis. The wrecking crew then began to get Jeremiah to the ball. Carlisle beat out a bunt that brought Perritt and Arbogast face to face, and pilfered the midway. Kane beat out a rap to Metzger, and Bayless scored all hands with a well-directed shot to right. Brashear got into action with a double, and Bayless finished the last three laps of the grand tour. O'Rourke singled to infield, Brashear judiciously retaining second. Roy and Patsy then engineered a bad, bold double steal, third and second being ravished.

Litschi singled Brashear in with a ponderous tally, Pat taking third. McDonnell drove to Page, who threw to Arbogast. Patsy beat a frenzied retreat back to third, and was spared when Charley's throw caught him where he reclines at meal time. Hogan, peeved at himself for having failed to hit in the seventh, bounced a high single over Metzger, releasing O'Rourke and Litschi and putting McDonnell on third.

Hitt here had the nerve to show up again. Roy rammed to Page, Hogan stopped abruptly between first and second, and while Billy was figuring out the proper course to pursue, Mc-

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Fifteen thousand delirious fans packed Recreation Park to cheer San Francisco to the echo this afternoon, when after a 4 to 1 victory in the forenoon, Pete Standridge, the novice, backed up by healthy stick work, once more trimmed the Beavers, 6 to 0, and made it seven out of eight games for the lowly Seals.

As a baseball game pure and simple, the afternoon spectacle could not be called the best game in the world, but the packed house didn't care. All they wanted was for San Francisco to win so the early lead acquired off Higginbotham was greeted with more applause than if the score had been nip and tuck. Krause followed Higginbotham and while the southpaw was likewise touched for six swats during the balance of the game, he got away with just one run registered.

FIXED IT EARLY.

The game was practically won and lost when a third way over. Mundorff, first up, planted a safe one in right and McArdle sacrificed. Johnston scratched a hit to short that took a bad bound and Mundorff came all the way around from second. Hogan's out carried Johnston to second and when he started to steal third, Fisher's throw was so far wide of the baseman that Johnston completed the circuit.

With one down in the second, Nig Clarke singled to center, chiefly because Chadbourne and Doane got their signals crossed. Standridge grounded out to Higginbotham but Mundorff beat out a hit to first. Derrick trying to beat the runner to the bag. Then Mundie stole and McArdle drove them both home with a nice poke back of first base.

The last of that group of runs came in the third. Johnston doubled, went to third on an infield out by Hogan and came home on the same sort of an out for Downs.

KRAUSE BETTER.

Harry Krause, who worked thereafter, staved off further run getting until the sixth, when Cartwright clipped a two-sacker to left field, took second when Clarke laid the ball back of short, and scored on McArdle's liner through Krause.

In a quick, snappy game that set a new record of one hour and twelve minutes, the Seals walked away with the morning's game to the tune of 4 to 1. The Seals fielded and hit the ball like real champions, and the crippled Beavers, with West in the box, could do nothing to stop them. Leifield let the northerners down with only four hits and he was given well nigh perfect support.

MAY DROP THREE CITIES.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BLOOMINGTON (Ill.) Sept. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Failure of the three cities to reach the attendance limit of 35,000 will probably result in a "Three I" League circuit change. Springfield, Decatur and Danville all fell short of the required number of admissions and under the rules their franchise may be transferred to other points if a majority of the remaining clubs vote to do so.

The total attendance of the league during the recent season was slightly in excess of 500,000, which is behind former years. Davenport led with 54,000; Quincy was second with 48,000; Peoria third with 45,000; Bloomington fourth with 38,700; Dubuque fifth with 38,500; Danville sixth with 34,000; Decatur seventh with 31,000; and Springfield last with 30,000. It is practically assured that Springfield will surrender its franchise.

CUBS SHUT OUT GIANTS, JOHNNY EVERS BANISHED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 14.—Chicago shut out New York 7 to 0 in the first game of the visitors' farewell series here today.

The locals played a careful game behind Cheney, who was hit hard, while the league leaders took too many chances on the bases.

In the opening inning Leach singled and Corridon sacrificed. Schulte followed with a single and Leach scored. Marquard then settled down and the locals were unable to place a safe hit until the sixth.

Before the game had gotten under way, Manager Evers was banished to the clubhouse by Umpire Rigler. The umpire had thrown a new ball to Cheney who immediately began to discolor the sphere. This was followed by the players tossing the ball around the field until Rigler told Evers the ball was unfit to play with. Thereupon the local manager threw the ball over the stand and was ordered off the field. Score:

CINCINNATI (O.) Sept. 14.—Philadelphia nosed out Cincinnati in the ninth inning today and won an exciting game 7 to 6. Hogan Leads Tigers.

Carlisle ended the carnage with a grounder to Page, for which praise be given.

Something must have been ailing the Tigers in the ninth, as only three of them faced Perritt, who had come to look upon life as a joke.

Again, we suggest that the Tigers do their training in private.

It was a pleasant little game for six innings with the Tigers leading 3 to 1.

In the seventh Hogan's men engaged in fifteen minutes of turbulence and the affair lost all semblance of a contest. They scored five runs in a clump, and removed all doubt as to the ultimate outcome.

John Raleigh opened the seventh with an out and closed it in the same unostentatious manner, the same being a polite way of saying that the Tigers batted clear around.

Raleigh led off with a pitcherly batting effort, abdicating on a grounder to Goodwin. Carlisle clapped a triple to right. Ellis then gave Slagle's prospects a cruel stab by muffing Kane's short fly after a long run. "Rube," in an effort to repair the damage, threw home with designs on Carlisle. The sphere shifted through Jimmy Byrnes's noble legs, Carlisle counting and Kane not stopping short of third.

Slagle then engaged in some of the stuff that made Andrew Carnegie famous, and benevolenced Bayless and Brashear. O'Rourke bunted to Howard, and beat Ivan to the base, Kane scoring. Litschi dumped the ball down the first base line. Howard charged in with lowered head, scooped the ball and then shoveled it over against the grand stand. The sphere was foul by a foot, and Howard made an effort to recover it. Bush ruled it fair, and Bayless and Brashear scored with Howard protesting. Patsy was pinioned at the plate on McDonnell's drive to Goodwin, Litschi going to third. Mac and Litschi engineered a double steal, Lou negotiating the plate. Slagle winged Hogan with a pitched ball. Raleigh, up for a second helping, ended the riot with a fly to Maggert.

Los Angeles was the first over the hurdles, Krueger landing the first of his two doubles and coming home on a duplicate drive by Johnson.

The Tigers helped themselves to a brace in the third, Raleigh's walk and singles by Kane and Bayless being the ingredients. Kane's double and a single by Bayless gave them another in the fifth. Bayless spiked Johnson while sliding into second in this round, just about severing Ernie's big toe. Goodwin finished the game at short.

Howard's single and theft of second followed by Ellis's double gave the Angels an ace in the eighth. In the ninth, Arbogast, batting for Byrnes, bumped the ball over the left field barricade for a consolation tally.

FERRARIS HEAVES A NO-HIT GAME.

Ferraris has had a number of offers to enter the professional ranks recently, but has not seen fit to accept them.

The Pacific Electrics are under the management of Lan Burrell, the former Tiger, who has built up one of the strongest semi-pro clubs ever seen in the south. Burrell is playing third base for the team, preparatory to getting back into league ball next season. Yesterday he cracked out two doubles and a home run.

Will Meet Oaks Again Next Week at Oakland.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Sacramento Wolves today lived up to their reputation of having the best record of any club in the league in the winning of double headers.

MANY HEAVERS.

Each team used five pitchers in yesterday's double header. In the morning game the score see-sawed back and forth with the Wolves out in front twice and the Oaks out in front once before Sacramento finally carried the day. But in the afternoon, things were different, the Wolves started in and built up a commanding lead in the first three frames and then added a few more for good measure to show that a change in pitchers did not annoy them.

GAGE IS CHAMP OF SOUTHWEST.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

EL PASO, Sept. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Frankie Gage of Los Angeles was declared the lightweight champion of the Southwest today by Referee Ed Stewart, after four rounds of a twenty-round go had been fought with "Battling" Mantell of Brooklyn. Gage was awarded the decision on a foul as Mantell repeatedly hit low until Referee Stewart grabbed him, swung him around and threw him into his corner, holding Gage's glove aloft as the winner.

The decision was not generally accepted, as it was declared that Gage was playing for a foul and guarded Mantell's blows so they would glance down. Gage was leading for three of the rounds and landed a number of hard wallops to the Brooklyn boy's face and head, but Mantell seemed superior in infighting.

INTO SARDINIA FOR POLO PONIES.

FAMOUS "SARDS" OF THE MOORS THEIR DESCENDANTS.

The Italian Government, Seeing the Possibility of Reviving the Charger Stock of the Middle Ages, Have Imported Irish Hunters. Reserve Farms Have Expectations.

CAGLIARI (Sardinia) Sept. 1.—Archaeologists and polo men are not usually found in the same gallery. Yet they are happy enough here in Sardinia. In fact, they have discovered Sardinia and shown the traveler in search of quietude and interest at least one remaining spot in Europe not overrun with conducted parties of globe-trotters.

Sardinia, in fact, was the most backward of all the corners of the earth that are lapped by the blue waters of the Mediterranean, till dry-as-dust ransackers in the moldy records of the past found queer mysteries in the Sardinian round towers and till the American polo players learned that here they could secure most tractable ponies for their sport, of a Barb strain.

Away back in the sixteenth century cavaliers used to draw from the island their prized chargers. They were of Moorish blood with local characteristics and were known as "Sards." Of late years the Italian government has seen good money in the perpetuation of this old-established trade and has strengthened the breed of horse flesh by introducing several first - class Irish-blooded hunter sires, and placing them at the disposal of local breeders at nominal fees. Three government reserve farms are kept going in Sardinia, and with their aid

CHARLEY CARR MAY BE SUCCESSOR TO MITZE.

Man Who Brought Out "Rube" Marquard Is Candidate for Management of Oakland Team—Believed that He Will Be Favorably Considered — Recently Quit Iowa City—"Dope" on the Race.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

If a change be made in the management of the Oakland team of the coast league, as seems likely, Charley Carr, the former Kansas City and Omaha leader, is regarded as Jimmy Kerrigan's probable successor.

The case may be stated positively: Carr is a candidate for the place in case there is a change, and he is considered by the owners of Oakland club.

Kerrigan had a miserable year. It is true, in a sense, not as a manager, but as a player, on probation. He is not universally blamed for the slump of the club. Many believe that the one time championship outfit was due to disintegrate, and no managerial genius on earth could have piloted the club into the money this year.

Many of the Oakland pitchers have bettered their performances of last year, while Harry Ables, the kingpin of the staff, has been a flat failure in handing his hand early in the season.

It is pointed out that the club never comes up to championship form but once a season, and was there for the flag.

Others have a club degenerate from championship winner into an object talk in the short space of six months, a condition calculated to bring about a change of management.

Several owners have been lynched, and have shown a tendency to give him the benefit of every doubt. They have admitted the possibility, not the probability, of error. Recently, however, the heads of clubs being succeeded by men have been more persistent.

Carr is believed to be in line for the job in the event that he does not demand a price for his services. Carr is a first baseman and a .300 hitter in any company. He managed the management of Iowa City club became of personal differences with George Tebeau. Tebeau, it is said, went to Carr's head in the Breton deal in Chicago, and in other transactions.

Carr piloted Indianapolis a pennant-winner in 1908, and is the man who made one "Rube" Marquard.

Carr Game in Portland.

Portland will be the center of the baseball world this week, the Tigers and Beavers being scheduled to scramble for the honors in a series which, apparently the deciding one, will have an important bearing on the pennant in October.

The Tigers are now close enough to the Beavers to feel their feverish breath, Portland's men having pruned their lead down to a paltry game.

The teams are going at a great clip, and it seems to have the strain. If Hogan's men can win this week's series by a majority they will have a fine chance to win in front, judging from their present form. Portland is hitting the ball and the pitching staff is in fine fettle. At any time this week the Beavers are in a batting slump, and McCredie's men, who are according to the "old army" adage a comeback group when they are down, may pass under the wire a game or two ahead.

Portland has six weeks to go. The Tigers will battle each team a series, including two with each club will be in the league race. Portland finishes the season at home, Portland winding up in Sacramento and Oakland drawing the curtain in Frisco.

Portland has a hard fight for each game in the last ditch. The Tigers have met four times, and have won two games, lost two games, and played a draw in the other game. It seems that they have a slight edge on the Beavers, but not enough to count for the pennant.

Oakland, Sacramento, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Venice may pass under the wire a game or two apart.

Dan Howley a Holdout.

Dan Howley, who performed behind the bat for Portland last season, has dropped from the big league.

Dan went from Portland to the Phillies and bore his share of the burden there until recently, when an attempt was made to tag him for Montreal. This was not wholly successful.

Howley was drawing down $400 a month from Philadelphia. There being no United States mint in Montreal, an attempt was made to reduce his income approximately 15 per cent. Dan, having a proud spirit, rebelled at the idea, and is now engaged in living up his past earnings.

Texans for Oil League.

Ruddy Schwenk, Dutch Kellerman and Bud Basham, late arrivals from Texas, have signed to play with Maricopa in the Gusher League the coming winter. They were with Dallas during the 1913 season, which closed somewhat prematurely in Texas.

Tyler's Squad to Practice.

Sarg Tyler will today sound the clarion call for fall practice. Tyler, be it known, is the manager of the Los Angeles police baseball team, and declines to take a back seat to any other municipal department when it comes down to the great American amusement. His system is to start the club to work in the fall. By this means he has it in shape to send against the Coast League clubs in the spring workouts the following March. Sarg will exhibit his 1913 talent for the first time at Doyle's park in Vernon this afternoon.

Maier Bucks Options.

Regardless of the result of the fight which it is planned to make at the annual meeting, Maier will refuse to have an "optioned" player on his club.

He intends to buy his players outright, regardless of the expense.

Johnston Greatest, Says Mac.

Walter McCredie has considerable unfeigned admiration for Jimmy Johnston as a pirate.

Walter frankly admits that the speedy Seal is the greatest base runner that he was ever permitted to see in action.

"Johnston doesn't steal on the catchers," quoth Mac. "He does his thieving at the expense of the pitchers. He has a faculty of taking an enormous lead, and gets back to the base with the agility of a cat when an attempt is made to catch him off the base.

"In a way he is handicapped, for the pitcher and catcher know, as a rule, that he is going to steal when he gets on base. But with this advantage they seem unable to stop him.

"I would feel safe in recommending him to any big league club."

Sox Pitcher a Peanut Butcher.

I have Tom Dawson's word for this, and Tom being a native of the South should know whereof he speaks.

Smith's fondness for baseball led him to the park when he was a youngster, and he was willing to do any kind of work around the place in order to be present at the games.

In the course of time he managed to get out on the field with the players in the preliminary practice, and was eventually given a tryout.

Two years ago he won a regular berth, and last season he was a big factor in winning the Southern Association pennant for Birmingham.

His advent into the professional ranks was similar to that of Harry Lord of the White Sox and Chester Chadbourne of Portland. Both of these were mere minions around the Worchester baseball park before they broke into the game on a money basis. Their chance came when a couple of the regular Worchester players sprung a fandon, and they have been playing ball ever since.

the new week opened. Mathewson, Tesreau and Demaree are swinging along in world's series form. Demaree, by the way, is working up a remarkable record for a first year man, being tied with Humphries of Chicago for the lead among the league's twirlers who have taken part in twenty or more games. The New Yorker, however, has the edge on the Cub hoxman in having pitched through a greater percentage of the twenty-three games he is credited with having won. Each of these two men has lost but three games.

In the other camp of probably post-season contenders, Bender, Plank, Brown and Shawkey, the twirlers expected to do the bulk of the work against the National League champions, have been holding their opponents to close scores recently, but the old hitting power of the team has not been strongly in evidence.

In the National League Chicago still is in third place with small chance of being ousted. Pittsburgh lost considerable ground and apparently is booked to finish in fourth place.

"GIRL IN TAXI" SOME BREEZE.

"Bought and Paid For" at the Majestic.

Man Who Purchased Luxury and a Wife.

Only Five Characters and Each an Artist.

BY HENRY CHRISTEEN WARNACK.

Well, this is a sweet mess they have brought us to. The Staffords having a red hot quarrel right under our eyes at the Majestic for a whole week and no way to sneak out except between acts.

We have shaken off the unhappy woman who was sold to the minute to make a place for the one who is sold only to her husband.

"Bought and Paid For" is a protest of the lady who would like to see her husband on the grounds of failure to neglect. The grounds of suspicion are that documentary evidence cannot take the place of love and that the man who begins to talk about his legal rights shows that he has lost all moral rights.

It is also a fine illustration of what happens to a man who takes a reluctant bride to his bosom, or to his home if he has one, in spite of the high cost of living, and of the stupidity of the programme which lets a man make a great deal of money alone and permits him to feel that, after he has acquired such rugs and bric-a-brac as his taste or lack of it may inspire, that he can then buy a wife to match the furniture. He can buy her along with the other things, but she is not worth keeping and he doesn't.

Stafford gets his wife back again in the last act with the chance that they may make a go of the second trial. They will succeed because it is more of a partnership. You must have noticed that folks who start poor while life is still young enough to be good, manage to work up together and to hold onto one another with their little bit of property. It is the equality of the relationship which makes it stand.

It takes something warm and red to cement a tie as close as marriage. This play is a joy for the jag which Stafford wears. It is certainly worth the price of admission to see an illumination like that.

The cast has five characters and each is an artist. Charles Richmond is in the role of Stafford and William Harrigan in that of James Gilley, the $16 a week shipping clerk whose sister-in-law Stafford marries. Kathleen MacDonnell is Virginia Blaine, the girl who took Stafford for better and who gave him up for worse. She is a slender, piquant little person of fine touch and a question mark in her eyes. She doesn't act much and except for the third act she does not have to. It is her presence or perhaps I should say her prudence that carries the part.

If one enjoys positive people, Hattie McDonnell is delicious. Marie Nordstrom in cast for a rare contrast with her sister as Fanny Baline and bridges the distance adequately. Allan Atwell is refreshing as Oku, the Japanese servant. The part of Gilley taken by Harrigan is in itself a fine study of the man who gets nowhere and why. On the whole "Bought and Paid For" is satisfactory.

The unconscious contemplation of a woman's first surrender is always art. A woman does not cease to be interesting because she is spoiled as a subject of art. "The Girl in the Taxi" misses the first blush, but she is far from stale. She arrived at the Burbank yesterday afternoon with Miss Lillian Tucker in the title role, and a house full of people who probably wouldn't have the courage to admit their unholy joy in the salacious production found its spiciness filling a long-felt want.

Los Angeles has had "The Girl in the Taxi" too often to be expected to take her seriously, yet it likes her too well to throw her down. The man who goes to see her feels exactly like the verses by Ella Wheeler Wilcox where the hero sits in a box at the theater contemplating his wife's stately blonde head while he dreams of a red-lipped, dark-eyed laundry grisette. The woman who goes feels a little, perhaps, as if she had been a party to a stolen kiss or had taken her first cigarette. Don't ask me how I know. Other people's confessions have nothing to do with the good of my soul.

A fitting prelude for "The Girl in the Taxi" would be "Everybody's Doing It," and the orchestra might finish with the same tune. The play advises every man to take a wife without admonishing him to be careful about whose wife he takes.

People laugh at it and forgive the cheapness and rawness of its merry quips because it shows up a very common sort of blackmail in which a married woman flings herself at suckers who are willing to bite and has her husband appear at the psychological moment for what is in it. We like having people sold—other people—and nothing seems so funny as the other fellow's embarrassment.

A play like this has enough fun in it to be above anything so out of date as morality. It gets away with the goods, not because it is immoral, but because it exaggerates enough to pass for a joke. It is a story in which a whole household finds itself involved in a dance-hall escapade. We always suspect everybody else, and it is fun to find out that the rest are as guilty as we would like to be ourselves.

Another thing in favor of a play of this kind is the way that it keeps up to date. For instance, Percy Bronson comes through with some real baseball stuff which takes the Tiger end of it, and Miss Doris Vernon and Miss Emily Stead have a racy and vivid dance in which the new slashed skirt shows up well. A lady who has anything to conceal would think twice before wearing that kind of skirt once. It was not made with the idea of keeping anything under cover.

I must protest against the sacrilege of our old friend and idol, Harry S. Duffield, in the part of Dr. Paul. It is not that he doesn't make good. Duffield's last work is always his best. But it is a profanation to see the dear old chap, with his rustic dignity and gentle presence, trying to get away with a stew and a squab at the same time. Chicken and Duffield are not compatible in the public eye. Leave it to John Kearney, Percy Bronson and William G. Colvin. They do not find it hard work, and they make it a pleasant dose for the rest of us. Grace Travers makes John Stewart a good wife, May Vokes keep all wives as innocent and as gay. I hope it does and I suspect it won't.

For my part Winnie Baldwin as Mrs. Stewart's maid, and Morgan Wallace as head waiter, are a whole show in themselves, and I don't think it slights Miss Tucker to say so. The parts of the two women are different enough to require distinct types and each does her own work so well that I would not undertake to say who is supporting whom.

James Carrigan is a keen and refreshing Watson and Thomas McLarnie is a gorgeous Frederick Smith. I don't know why Fred Koetch or anybody else takes the part of a policeman. I do not even know why there is a policeman in the play, but I like him because he faints. Having been a police reporter I have always wanted to see a fainting policeman. It was so very gentle of him. Most policemen under the same circumstances would merely have knocked the lady's block off as long as she was only his wife. The "Girl in the Taxi" is better than a white slave play because it is so much worse.

SAILORS HAVE FINE OUTING.

EAT FISH DINNER AT PORTUGUESE BEND.

BY E. D. SEWARD,
(Secretary of the South Coast Yacht Club.)

Ideal sailing weather, a goodly bunch of boats and nearly a hundred yacht men and their lady friends made the annual cruise to Portugese Bend yesterday, one of the big successes of a busy season and one of the best "clambake" cruises the club has ever had.

The early wind yesterday morning took the boats out of the harbor, the little Seabird being the first boat to up anchor at 10 o'clock. The larger and faster boats were later in starting, but all of them were away by 11:30.

It is a long beat up the coast with innumerable short tacks in and out of the kelp line. Commodore Hubbell was the first to drop his hook at the little kelp-locked harbor at Portugese, the Seabird being but a few minutes behind the Mischief at 1 p.m. Then came Columbine and Alert.

Without waiting for the rest of the fleet the big bunch of hungry sailors and sailoresses on these four boats swarmed into Charley Lindrose's dining hall and were quickly served with the fish dinners which have made Portugese Bend famous.

In the meantime the early arrivals were making themselves at home in various and sundry ways.

One party from the Seabird took a long hike over the hills to the big caves up the coast. Here some fishing was indulged in without the aid of line of bait. In a big pool some fine smelt were entrapped although it took nearly an hour to catch the slippery quartette.

Bob Kaawa, one of the famous Duke's cronies, was in the party with Commodore E. K. Miller of the Hui Nalus, the famous surf board Canoe Club of Honolulu, and some fine music and singing was enjoyed by the crowd around the bend.

The jolly big crowd on the Trojan was missed today, Ellis Taylor taking a party to Avalon over Sunday.

The crowd was loath to leave the bend and most of the boats did not get away until well after 5, but the westerly wind held late and with both spinnakers and ballooners set, the yachts made good time on the home run.

For the first time for months, the club will enjoy a day of rest next Sunday, although sailing parties will be in order after another dance next Saturday night.

The announcement of the Automobile Board of Trade relative to the motor shows in New York and Chicago in January and February cancelling the truck section, leaves Boston as the only city of the big three that will hold a truck show. The pleasure car show will take place beginning Saturday evening, March 7, and the truck show will begin the following Tuesday evening.

LA BRAES WALLOP SANTA BARBARA.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SANTA BARBARA, Sept. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The La Braes of Los Angeles this afternoon defeated Santa Barbara in an eleven-inning game, thereby winning the pennant in the Southern State League. The teams each had won fifteen and lost three games, and today they played off the tie. The score was 7 to 4. The managers of the two teams agreed today to play a series of five games, the first to be played next Sunday.

La Braes, 7; hits, 10; errors, 2; Santa Barbara, 4; hits, 8; errors, 2. Batteries—Kelley and Valdes; Brown, Romero and Backus.

EDDIE IS SCARED.

President Maier last night requested that the newspapers not elaborate on Hogan's batting streak, but confine themselves to the merest mention of it. He fears that Hap will be drafted, or that Detroit may try and trade Ty Cobb for him.

Up and Down Broadway.

BY GARDNER BRADFORD.

WELL, what do you know about it? The Orpheum announces that today it will present moving pictures of the escape and adventures of Harry Thaw. Of course Harry really isn't in the pictures, but his double is, and also a replica of Jerome and the ground that is covered is the real films.

It ought to be class at that, and I understand that Thaw has seen the films and put his O.K. on them.

I see where there is going to be a merry little vaudeville war right in our midst which may go to the courts before it is over. Late Friday night, according to Manager Fountain of the Hippodrome, his bill posters were ordered by Manager Bovyer of the Empress to stop putting up the Hip paper on penalty of losing the Empress work.

There was some tall hustling, all the old-time "snipers" around town were pressed into service and the billing was finally placed, but Fountain has expressed the intention of finding out whether or not his work can be interfered with in this way. At that he is tickled to death for recognition by the opposition is the highest indorsement of success one could possibly get.

Ordinarily I don't write a column Tuesday on account of the reviews, but I promise one for tomorrow because Oliver Morosco has agreed to divulge the name of the new leading woman of the Morosco Theater.

He says "she is scarcely 21, is pretty as a picture, and will come here to make her reputation. I don't know whether she will be a success or not—that is up to her—but she certainly looks good to me."

Incidentally he remarked that the latest "Peg" company, in Philadelphia, broke even the New York records of the play.

Of course we all went to the opening of "The Girl in the Taxi" yesterday afternoon, and we saw a good show, too. Mr. Warnack has reviewed it elsewhere, but I can't help commenting on the way Percy Bronson and Winnie Baldwin sing "You Make Me Love You."

They accompany it with a dance which is immense, and the whole is presented with some "business" which makes the offering doubly delightful.

It is not amiss either to mention that Lillian Tucker "is there" all the time. She never sang better, or was more daintily gowned. This Burbank is getting to be a regular star factory.

Tim Frawley, eastern stage director for Oliver Morosco, arrived last night, an hour late, as is customary. He is making a 6000 mile journey just to see about three performances of "Help Wanted," after which he will select a cast and stage the New York production.

Who should walk into the Alexandria Saturday but Dick Vivian and he is minus all the superfluous avoirdupois he took away with him to Salt Lake, a fact which makes him once again one of the best little juveniles in the business. He lost forty pounds while away.

So many people have asked me "Where is Selma Paley" that I feel I must allay their anxiety by remarking that she is taking a much-needed rest, and incidentally preparing for her appearance in "The Quaker Girl," which is slated as the next production at the Burbank.

There will be a whole cluster of diving girls at Pantages this week, and the fact that Vivian Marshall and Lottie Mayer head the sextette, gives a line on its excellence. But why put "The Happy Chappie" and the "English Johnny" on the same bill?

I understand that we are shortly to see a sketch at the Orpheum by a Los Angeles girl, Ruth Comfort Mitchell. It is called "The Goat," and Maude O'Dell, who has been here before, is presenting it.

Naturally we were all curious to see "Bought and Paid For" at the Majestic last night, because it brought us a new cast and at the same time retained the sure-fire success Charles Richmond, who created the role of the two-personality husband.

The most anxious moment to me was the first appearance of William Harrigan as "Jimmy" the shipping clerk. You see, John Craven, who created the role, made it so big that it was lifted out of what was meant to be a common-place part, and became the real hit of the piece.

I had my doubts about Harrigan, but he banished them in a twinkling so everything was lovely. At that, it was to be expected, for he is the son of the famous old Ned Harrigan of Harrigan and Hart.

Miss McDonald, who has succeeded Julia Deane, does splendidly too, which leads me to ask of the manager "why don't you send round some of her pictures instead of a lot of Julia Deane stuff which we wouldn't use under any circumstances?"

I see that my prediction regarding the condition of Timothy D. Sullivan, of Sullivan and Considine, proved correct after all. At the time of his return from Europe it was reported generally that he was well, in the face of which The Times exclusively printed an inside report that his days were numbered.

It is with regret that we report the passing out of this man, who with his partner, John W. Considine, created the great S. & C. circuit. The latter has always had the active management of affairs, and I understand no changes will be made in the present conduct of business.

People's Orchestra.

NEW MUSICAL FEATURE ADDED.

MUSIC STUDIED IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS TO BE GIVEN.

Two Series of Twenty Concerts Each Begin Next Sunday—American Compositions Features of Each Programme—Virgil Moore Composes the Real Booster Song.

BY HECTOR ALLIOT.

An important educative feature has just been added to the activities of the People's Orchestra.

During the coming season which will open on Sunday, September 21, at the Auditorium, the orchestra will play the works of the composers that the public schools are studying each month, thus giving to the students an opportunity of hearing the great artists they are becoming familiar with, in the way they should be interpreted.

If possible, this will be complemented by giving concerts in the schools with a small orchestra selected from the main body.

Instead of engaging soloists of international reputation, which is the special field of the symphony orchestra, it has been decided to give an opportunity to the local artists of merit, both in the vocal and instrumental classes, to be heard in public.

Singers and players of various instruments will thus have the advantage of a wholesome publicity and the public an excellent chance of becoming acquainted with the quality of the musical talent to be found in our city.

Two series of twenty concerts each will constitute the season, the first one extending from September 21 to February 1.

Since the People's Orchestra undertakes its second season, with greater promise and a wider clientele, but without guarantee fund nor endowment, it is desirable that to insure the success of the enterprise as great a number of season tickets as possible be secured at once. The prices are 50, 35, 25 and 15 cents; tickets for twenty concerts at $9, $6, $4.50 and $2.50 respectively are now on sale at the offices of the People's Orchestra, No. 344 Blanchard building.

It is proposed to equal, if not surpass, this year the number of offerings of last season when thirty-five singers, four pianists, three organists, four violinists, two 'cellists and others were heard with an orchestra of fifty.

Many of the leading American composers are now sending their works to the People's Orchestra to be given this season as it was the only musical organization that played as many as forty-five works of American composers in a season, fourteen of the artists represented residing in this State.

The Booster Song.

Realizing that music and song are the most valuable adjuncts to the activities of the enthusiastic booster, Virgil Moore has composed "Sunny California" and set his boosting words to allegretto music, which has been arranged by Homer Tourjee.

The tourists, back home firing the furnace, will now be able to whistle the charms of "this orange blossom country" allegretto moderato while the family will close with the chorus, in tempo di marcia, "Native daughters and your sons all adore their Golden West."

GREAT FALLS WINS.

OGDEN (Utah) Sept. 14.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] The season for the Union Association officially closed today, Great Falls taking the pennant.

Detroit owners, manufacturers and dealers in motor trucks are up in arms because of the new ordinance making it imperative for all motor trucks using Detroit's streets to be provided with special front fenders. At first it was thought that no great hardship would devolve upon the users of such trucks if the ordinance went through, but after considerable experimentation it has been found that no satisfactory fender so far has been designed.
